Reports Received In Cleveland Estimate Killed In Lorain At Between 100 and 300 and At Sandusky From 25 To 100.

Heaviest Toll Reported Taken In Wrecked Theatre From Which 165 Bodies Have Been Recovered; Thousands Are Injured.

(United Press)

CLEVELAND, O. June 29—(Sunday, 1 a. m)—Reports early today brought evidence of an appalling loss of life in a storm which swept northern Ohio late Saturday The towns hardest hit are Lorain, Sandusky and French Creek

The dead at Lorain are estimated all the way from 100 to 300, while reports from Sandusky are that from 25 to 100 persons perished there.

The little town of French Creek, with a population of 300, has been completely swept off the map, according to reports received by Cleveland police.

Communication with a number of other towns is cut off and it is feared that they too suffered severely.

All night long, reports kept pouring into Cleveland adding details to the seriousness of the disaster The storm seemed to have followed the lake shore, leveling houses uprooting trees, wrecking telephone and telegraph systems while the heavy rain which accompanied the wind, sent little streams over their bank

One report from Lorain is that scores of persons were standing on a bridge watching the turbulent black river when a freight steamer swept from its moorings, crashed down on the bridge and wrecked it

Those standing on the bridge according to this report, were plunged into the stream and either drowned or crushed to death against stones as the river swept them on to the lake

Lorain a thriving manufacturing town of 40,000 is a stricken city this morning

Schools have been turned into morgues and first aid stations Hospitals are crowded to their utmost capacity

Twenty five blocks including ten blocks of the business section of Broadway main business thoroughfare of the town are laid waste

The city was in darkness through the night save for lanterns and electric searchlights which were pressed into service in the search for the dead and injured

Two hours after the storm broke bodies were still lying in the streets and hurriedly organized relief parties were devoting their energies to an effort to relieve the injured

Automobiles on Colorado avenue Lorain were found cut in two One was thrown on top of a house by the wind

3,500 Are Injured

ELYRIA Ohio June 28—(By special messenger from Lorain)—More than 300 persons were killed and about 3 500 injured in a tornado which destroyed ten blocks of the city of Lorain tonight according to word brought here from Lorain police at 10 30 p m

One hundred and sixty five bodies have been taken from the State theater according to Lorain police

The theater collapsed during the storm

Jack Ambrose of the Cleveland Press who arrived here from Lorain after aiding in the rescue work described the disaster

'There were about 200 in the theater when the tornado struck it A vaudeville show was on The roof of the theater fell with a crash tons of plaster crushing out the lives of many in the building

I worked for an hour passing out the bodies of men women and children and not one was alive Ambrose said

They all were crushed to death and horribly mutilated

Relatives Fight Police

Hundreds of relatives of the victims fought madly with police outside They were in a frenzy because they were not allowed to come into the great death place

We had taken out eighty bodies when I became so sick I had to leave The plaster and roof was covered with the blood of the victims We worked by candle light as the city current was off

After I left the building and before I left town eighty five more bodies were recovered Ambrose said

After the storm struck darkness descended

People ran screaming from their homes and the big Saturday night crowd ran helter skelter through the darkness fearful of seeking shelter for fear it would tumble

Buildings Collapse

Buildings collapsed People were panic stricken an eye witness stated

The terrified hundreds trapped along Broadway rushed into the streets as the buildings crumpled down into the streets

The cries of the injured and dying pierced the air as the electric light which had been shortly before lighted up went out

Every hospital was full of victims Schools and churches were filled with the injured and dying

Ambrose said the American Legion members firemen and city officials were working feverishly to save the lives of 3 500 estimated injured

Eyewitness Reports

CLEVELAND O June 29—Sunday It was horrible

Thus Ham Hook, Cleveland who witnessed the tragic scene in Lorain immediately following the tornado described the havoc Hook arrived here this morning

I walked up a residential street The street was crowded with men carrying trunks and suitcases There were many mothers carrying their babies Many were injured dragging themselves along begging and moaning for the doctors to hurry

I saw an automobile on top of a house

Sides of houses were crushed in roofs of houses were off some of them in the streets some in tree tops and some piled on wrecks of other houses

Police Chief Reports

More than 100 persons were reported killed in a terrific storm that tore down scores of buildings including a crowded theater at Lorain according to Chief of Police Shankard of Elyria

Shankard told the United Press over the telephone at Cleveland that all the ambulances in Elyria had been sent to Lorain to aid the many hundreds which were reported injured Shankard said telephone communication was down and that he could not be positive how many were killed He said refugees from there estimated the number of dead at from [illegible] to 300

The dead and injured littered the streets Shankard said the refugees told him

Telegraph poles trees and houses were in one jumbled mass of twisted wreckage he said [illegible]

Appeals for Help

The heaviest toll was taken in a theatre crowded with more than 30[illegible] persons Shankard said

State Has Big Amount On Hand For Investment

Failure to secure the $423 000 of Lincoln paving bonds which he had been counting upon as an investment for the state s permanent school fund and other trust funds of Nebraska has left several hundred thousand dollars of cash in State Treasurer Robinson s hands for which he has no immediate use The treasurer has been holding money to purchase these bonds expecting to add them to the list of 5 per cent securities which are now in his custody earning money for the common schools of Nebraska the university and its branches the state normal schools and the soldiers relief fund

He will now have to find other bonds for the state to buy in order to put to work the large amount of cash uninvested and drawing no interest for the respective funds He could deposit some of it in banks at 4 per cent and may do so if opportunities for placing it otherwise to better advantage are not found Mr Robinson would be glad to hear from cities villages and school districts that have bond issues paying 5 per cent

Under the law the state treasurer is not permitted to pay a premium for bonds So when private firms offered premiums for the Lincoln issue and one or two of them also named a lower interest rate than that at which the state was willing to take them Robinson had no chance

DEMOS ADOPT LEAGUE PLANK OF MAJORITY

Newton D. Baker Makes Dramatic Appeal For Support of Policies of Dead Leader, Woodrow Wilson.

VOTE IS 742 to 353 AFTER HEATED FIGHT

Former War Secretary's Impassioned Speech Moves Crowd to Cheers and Sobs, But Is Ineffective.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN NEW YORK June 28—Turning down an eloquent plea of Newton D Baker former secretary of war for adoption of the minority resolution on the League of Nations the democratic national convention tonight adopted 742 to 358 the majority plank offered by the platform committee and then turned its attention to the bitter fight on the Ku Klux Klan

Lifting the convention out of cold politics and thoughts of domestic issues such as the klan and literally carrying it away to higher planes Baker delivered an impassioned emotional appeal that turned the convention from anger which existed earlier in the day to tears

Men and women alike stood unabashed in the glare of great flood lights weeping sobbing as Baker pictured Woodrow Wilson beside him pleading through his voice for mankind

Woodrow Wilson the captain of my soul is here He is before you now speaking though my voice to call upon you pleaded Baker as he stood with his arms outstretched his face tense with emotion

The great throng in the garden leaped to its feet Cheers and shouts mingled with sobs

The former war secretary was speaking in behalf of his minority report on the plank covering international affairs

He would have the party pledge itself to entrance into the League of Nations The majority report provides for a referendum

Pittman Jeered

At the conclusion of the Pittman speech which was jeered and booed at times Chairman Walsh ordered a roll call of the states to decide whether the Baker minority resolution should be substituted for the majority report

The convention refused to pledge the party to entrance into the League of Nations

The majority report endorsing the principle of the league but providing for a referendum on the question of entrance was then adopted

Baker s plank was defeated 742 to 353

The atmosphere in the garden was electrical as debate on the league plank opened Rows upon rows of

PROPOSITION FOR ONE-HOUSE NOT TO BE SUBMITTED

Proposed Literacy Amendment Also Lacking Required Number of Signatures.

There will be no proposition for a one house legislature on the official ballot at the November election to divide the attention of Nebraska voters with the choosing of national state and local officials The campaign undertaken by Otto Mutz of Lincoln and others to place that question on the ticket as an initiated measure has been abandoned because of failure to secure the 41 000 signatures required by law

Likewise the American Legion effort to initiate a constitutional amendment making it an essential qualification for voting that one should be able to read write and understand the English language will also prove fruitless so far as this year s election is concerned Although 20 000 signatures have been gathered to the Legion s petitions within four weeks time and hundreds more are coming in to the state headquarters daily there is not sufficient time remain

The 144th infantry of Toledo has been ordered by the governor to entrain immediately for Sandusky, picking up other troops at Oak Harbor and Port Clinton

PARTY TURNS DOWN PROPOSAL TO NAME "INVISIBLE EMPIRE"

Minority Resolution Providing Direct Naming of Ku Klux In Platform, Defeated 542 to 541 3-20.

(United Press)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, N Y. June 29—(Sunday, 2 a m)—The democratic party will not go before the people in November with a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name Also it will not conduct its campaign upon the basis of a pledge of entrance into the League of Nations

These two momentous points were decided by the convention early today when it adopted the majority report of the resolutions committee after defeating minority planks which would have denounced the klan and pledged the party to the league

From 6 o clock in the evening when debate started until nearly 2 a m Sunday the battle raged Two hours of debate were given to each subject The league came first and the convention was moved to great emotional heights by a remarkable speech delivered by Newton D Baker former secretary of war

Bryan Makes Supreme Effort

William Jennings Bryan made the supreme effort of those who sought to avoid mentioning the klan A long list of speakers appeared for both sides The sentiment of the convention certainly seemed to be anti klan whether the hooded order was to be mentioned or not Every denunciatory reference to the klan was cheered and following a speech by Andrew C Erwin of Georgia a demonstration broke which lasted for several minutes and was ended only after a parade of delegations from a dozen states behind their standards

Then came two hours of utter confusion as the roll call was taken and delegations began changing and challenging

The party thus passed through what had threatened to develop into a serious crisis

Fears of Rioting

Hundreds of policemen were in the convention hall There had been open talk of fears of rioting Nerves were on edge and at every slight commotion within a delegation two or three policemen were immediately on the job The night passed however without serious disturbance

The victory of those who would deal with the klan indirectly was won by 17 20 of a vote The official result as finally announced after nearly two hours of confusion tussles in delegations and near fist fights while votes were being changed was that 541 3 20 in favor of the amendment and 542 opposed to the amendment

Wildest scenes were enacted early Sunday morning as delegates stood on their chairs shouting and gesturing changing their votes and fighting to the last for their favorite planks The absolute even division in the convention is apparent in the vote insofar as the adoption of the plank is concerned

All the fight was gone out of the convention by 2 a m and Chairman Walsh railroaded the adoption of the platform as submitted by a viva vote Adjournment was then taken until 9 30 Monday morning

vote there is some possibility of the question coming up again Monday Anyone who voted in the affirmative has the right under rules to move reconsideration and demand another polling of delegation such as took place last night

Senator Robert Owen of Oklahoma, was selected by Chairman Cummings of the resolutions committee to lead off with a fifteen minute address in support of the majority report containing no reference directly to the klan

This is not a question of the klan winning or losing this election Owen declared in opening Your committee recommends a plank strongly insisting upon freedom of religion speech and press The question is merely whether the democratic convention shall stigmatize the klan by name as being guilty of interfering with religious liberty and disregarding the lawful rights of their fellow citizens

Don t think I would support any organization the klan or any others who would trample on the rights and privileges of other citizens

It is true that there may be criminals among the klan and that some of them do carry on depredations upon their neighbors But there are lunatics outside that organization and there are criminals also who do not wear that badge

Tells Of Own Life

Senator Owen spoke of his own feelings for Catholicism the care that has been taken of him by negro servants all his life and added

From the Jews we have received the blessings of the Bible Our Christian church is founded upon the doctrine of a Jew

And when the great war came he added we did not ask a man whether he was a Catholic a Protestant a Gentile or a Jew

Shall we now use this question to promote or demote any candidate whatever? When we hesitated to put this issue into the platform plank they said we were afraid to mention the klan Well I m not afraid of the Ku Klux Klan Im not afraid of any kluxer living or dead

Owen Is Cheered

Owen was receiving loud approbation for his line of attack

In Oklahoma he said we're not afraid of the klan We re not afraid of them politically or in any other way We licked the stuffing out of a kluxer candidate for the governship down there recently

Owen asked if this convention wished to pass condemnation on members of the klan without there being evidence submitted on the other side

There was a shout of Yes' from the anti klan section

Owen concluded with an appeal for no indictment of the klan until the klan was asked to present its case

William R Pattangall of Maine led off on behalf of those on the resolutions committee who submitted a minority report which would name directly the Ku Klux Klan

The amendment we offer you is a splendid document he said We ask nothing but that you apply the abstract principles offered in the majority plank to the concrete example which we give in our proposed amendment

Strong in Opposition

We don t condemn the Ku Klux Klan unheard we oppose the klan or any other organization interfering with the religious freedom or civic rights of any citizen

Everyone knows the society we name lays down that no man who is Jew or Catholic or alien-born is reliable for office

Therefore we say we oppose any attempt of that organization or any other to interfere with American institutions

Pattangall was given a great demonstration when he concluded

For several minutes the galleries joined with the delegates in cheering and applauding Many delegates leaped to their chairs beckoning to the McAdoo delegates who remained seated to stand up There was no indication however of any trouble on the floor and within a couple of minutes order was restored

SCORES OF LIVES LOST AND TOWNS ALMOST WIPED OUT BY TERRIFIC WIND; LOSS BIG

(United Press.)

CLEVELAND, O. June 29—(Sunday, 1 a. m.)—Reports early today brought evidence of an appalling loss of life in a storm which swept northern Ohio late Saturday. The towns hardest hit are Lorain, Sandusky and French Creek.

The dead at Lorain are estimated all the way from 100 to 300, while reports from Sandusky are that from 25 to 100 persons perished there.

The little town of French Creek, with a population of 300, has been completely swept off the map, according to reports received by Cleveland police.

Communication with a number of other towns is cut off and it is feared that they too suffered severely.

More Tales of Disaster Pour Into Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., June 28.—(Sunday)—Additional reports of destruction and death from the tornado which swept this section were brought to Cleveland early today as follows:

Mayor Hoffman officially estimated the property damage in Lorain at more than $15,000,000. Fourteen city blocks were entirely wiped out.

Cedar Point, famous summer resort, reported twenty-five dead and at Sandusky it was said that the death list was at least as large..

A report from Lorain just before 11 o'clock said that fire broke out in several sections of the cty.

At Sandusky a tidal wave, following in the path of the tornado, swept away the wharfs and some boats.

At Cedar Point the big docks and varehouses were lifted bodily and thrown into the lake.

Near Lorain a freight train of sixty-five cars was blakn from the tracks and carried into an adjoining field. The tracks were carried along with the wreckage.

The ferry boat Reliance had just left the pier at Sandusky for her mile run to Marblehead when the storm hit her. She turned turtle and latest reports placed the number of drowned at twelve.

All night long, reports kept pouring into Cleveland, adding details to the seriousness of the disaster. The storm seemed to have followed the lake shore, leveling houses, uprooting trees, wrecking telephone and telegraph systems while the heavy rain which accompanied the wind, sent little streams over their bank.

One report from Lorain is that scores of persons were standing on a bridge watching the turbulent black river when a freight steamer, swept from its moorings, crashed down on the bridge and wrecked it.

Those standing on the bridge, according to this report, were plunged into the stream and either drowned or crushed to death against stones as the river swept them on to the lake.

Lorain, a thriving manufacturing town of 40,000 is a stricken city this morning.

Schools have been turned into morgues and first aid stations. Hospitals are crowded to their utmost capacity.

Twenty-five blocks, including ten blocks of the business section of Broadway, main business thoroughfare of the town, are laid waste.

The city was in darkness through the night, save for lanterns and electric searchlights which were pressed into service in the search for the dead and injured.

Two hours after the storm broke, bodies were still lying in the streets, and hurriedly organized relief parties were devoting their energies to an effort to relieve the injured.

Automobiles on Colorado avenue, Lorain, were found cut in two. One was thrown on top of a house by the wind.

3,500 Are Injured.

ELYRIA, Ohio, June 28.—(By special messenger from Lorain)—More than 300 persons were killed and about 3,500 injured in a tornado which destroyed ten blocks of the ctiy of Lorain tonight, according to word brought here from Lorain, police at 10:30 p. m.

One hundred and sixty-five bodies have been taken from the State theater, according to Lorain police.

The theater collapsed during the storm.

Jack Ambrose of the Cleveland Press, who arrived here from Lorain after aiding in the rescue work, described the disaster.

"There were about 200 in the theater when the tornado struck it. A vaudeville show was on. The roof of the theater fell with a crash, tons of plaster crushing out the lives of many in the building.

"I worked for an hour passing out the bodies of men, women, and children, and not one was alive," Ambrose said.

"They all were crushed to death and horribly mutilated.

Relatives Fight Police.

"Hundreds of relatives of the victims fought madly with police outside. They were in a frenzy because they were not allowed to come into the great death place.

"We had taken out eighty bodies when I became so sick I had to leave. The plaster and roof was covered with the blood of the victims. We worked by candle light as the city current was off.

"After I left the building and before I left town, eighty-five more bodies were recovered," Ambrose said. "After the storm struck, darkness descended.

"People ran screaming from their homes and a big Saturday night crowd ran helter skelter through the darkness, fearful of seeking shelter, for fear it would crumble."

Buildings Collapse.

"Buildings collapsed. People were panic stricken," an eye witness stated.

"The terrified hundreds trapped along Broadway, rushed into the streets as the buildings crumpled down into the streets.

"The cries of the injured and dying pierced the air as the electric lights, which had been shortly before lighted up, went out.

"Every hospital was full of victims Schools and churches were filled with the injured and dying."

Ambrose said the American Legion members, firemen and city officials were working feverishly to save the lives of 3,500 estimated injured.

Eyewitness Reports.

CLEVELAND O. June 29.—Sunday "It was horrible!"

Thus Ham Hook, Cleveland, who witnessed the tragic scene in Lorain immediately following the tornado, described the havoc. Hook arrived here this morning.

"I walked up a residential street. The street was crowded with men, carrying trunks and suitcases. There were many mothers carrying their babies. Many were injured, dragging themselves along, begging and moaning for the doctors to hurry.

"I saw an automobile on top of a house.

"Sides of houses were crushed in, roofs of houses were off, some of them in the streets, some in tree tops and some piled on wrecks of other houses.

"The homeless wandered about aimlessly. Rescuers with flashlights and lanterns hunted through the debris for victims."

Police Chief Reports.

More than 100 persons were reported killed in a terrific storm that tore down scores of buildings, including a crowded theater, at Lorain, according to Chief of Police Skankard of Elyria.

Skankard told the United Press over the telephone at Cleveland that all the ambulances in Elyria had been sent to Lorain to aid the many hundreds which were reported injured. Skankard said telephone communication was down and that he could not be positive how many were killed. He said refugees from there estimated the number of dead at from 50 to 300.

The dead and injured littered the streets, Skankard said the refugees told him.

Telephone poles, trees and houses were in one jumbled mass of twisted wreckage, he said he was told.

Appeals for Help.

Skankard appealed to Cleveland to send ambulances to the stricken city.

The heaviest toll was taken in a theater crowded with more than 300 persons, Skankard said.

FINDS A FORTUNE IN AN OLD SAFE

Court Orders Union Pacific Bonds Of 1873 Redeemed.

OMAHA, Neb., June 28.—Eight one thousand dollar Union Pacific sinking fund bonds of 1873, which had lain for more than forty years in an unopened safe in an old house in Plymouh, Mass., brought $16,500 to their owner by order of Federal Judge Woodrough Saturday. This includes the face value of the bonds, plus interest, and the value of the 149 interest coupons.

The owner, Henry H. Litchfield, now 74 years old, asserted in his deposition requesting redemption of the bonds, that he had discovered them when passing curiosity prompted him to open the old safe in the family homestead before selling it. His father had given him the bonds just prior to his death in 1884, Litchfield said. He put them in the safe and forgot about them.

Ten thousand dollars worth of other negotiable securities also were found in the old safe.

The bonds will be redeemed from a fund, set aside with the United States treasurer in 1898, to pay for twelve bonds of the issue which had never been presented for redemption in 1893, the year due.

KLANSMEN MEET HERE THIS WEEK

Ten Thousand Robed Men Expected In Lincoln For Annual Convention.

Imperial Wizard to Give Public Address—Stage Big Parade Tuesday.

Klansmen from over the realm of Nebraska, and the northern part of Kansas will gather in Lincoln July 1 and 2 for the annual convention of the order. Ten thousand visitors are erpected by klansmen. Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, will be in Lincoln to address the public at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

The public is invited to attend all demonstrations and gatherings on the first day, but all meetings Wednesday are to be closed.

The address to the public by the imperial wizard at 2 p. m., a parade by all visiting klansmen in full regalia through the business section of the city at 7:30 p. m., a fireworks display costing about $1000 and a band concert at 9:30 p. m., and a naturalization at 10:30 p. m. constitute the program of the first day.

The fireworks display and initiation, will be held on a farm one mile north of the State Fair grounds. The place is aaccessible by the Fourteenth and Twenty-seventh street roads and drivers are to be directed by robed men. Parking space is to be provided at the grounds.

The official state meeting, open only to members of the klan, is scheduled for 2 p. m. the second day in the city auditorium. The program of the meeting includes addresses by all prominent klan officials who will be in Lincoln, and by Zach Harris, national lecturer.

Klansmen say that 250 are coming from Hiawatha, Kan., 500 from Hastings, 250 from Grand Island and a big delegation from York. The Omaha delegation will arrive on a special train, about 400 strong.

The one hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence is also to be celebrated. The meetings could not be held on July 4, it was said. because the imperial wizard had been scheduled to appear elsewhere at that time.

Powers of the klan who are to be in Lincoln for the celebration are: Dr. Evans, the imperial wizard, the imperial klokard, the imperial kligrapp, the major kleagle of W. O. K. K. K. for Nebraska, the realm director of the junior klan, the imperial representative of Nebraska, the grand dragon of Oklahoma, the king kleagle of Nebraska and several national lecturers.

State Has Big Amount On Hand For Investment

Failure to secure the $423,000 of Lincoln paving bonds which he had been counting upon as an investment for the state's permanent school fund and other trust funds of Nebraska has left several hundred thousand dollars of cash in State Treasurer Robinson's hands for which he has no immediate use. The treasurer has been holding money to purchase these bonds, expecting to add them to the list of 5 per cent securities which are now in his custody earning money for the common schools of Nebraska, the university and its branches, the state normal schools, and the soldiers' relief fund.

He will now have to find other bonds for the state to buy, in order to put to work the large amount of cash uninvested and drawing no interest for the respective funds. He could deposit some of it in banks at 4 per cent, and may do so if opportunities for placing it otherwise to better advantage are not found. Mr. Robinson would be glad to hear from cities, villages, and school districts that have bond issues paying 5 per cent.

Under the law, the state treasurer is not permitted to pay a premium for bonds. So, when private firms offered premiums for the Lincoln issue, and one or two of them also named a lower interest rate than that at which the state was willing to take them Robinson had no chance.

DEMOS ADOPT LEAGUE PLANK OF MAJORITY

Newton D. Baker Makes Dramatic Appeal For Support of Policies of Dead Leader, Woodrow Wilson.

Former War Secretary's Impassioned Speech Moves Crowd to Cheers and Sobs, But Is Ineffective.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, June 28—Turning down an eloquent plea of Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, for adoption of the minority resolution on the League of Nations, the democratic national convention tonight adopted, 742 to 358, the majority plank offered by the platform committee and then turned its attention to the bitter fight on the Ku Klux Klan.

Lifting the convention out of cold politics and thoughts of domestic issues, such as the klan, and literally carrying it away to higher planes, Baker delivered an impassioned, emotional appeal that turned the convention from anger which existed earlier in the day to tears.

Men and women alike stood unabashed in the glare of great flood lights, weeping, sobbing, as Baker pictured Woodrow Wilson beside him pleading through his voice for mankind.

"Woodrow Wilson, the captain of my soul is here. He is before you now, speaking though my voice to call upon you," pleaded Baker as he stood with his arms outstretched, his face tense with emotion.

The great throng in the garden leaped to its feet. Cheers and shouts mingled with sobs.

The former war secretary was speaking in behalf of his minority report on the plank covering international affairs.

He would have the party pledge itself to entrance into the League of Nations. The majority report provides for a referendum.

Pittman Jeered.

At the conclusion of the Pittman speech, which was jeered and booed at times, Chairman Walsh ordered a roll call of the states to decide whether the Baker minority resolution should be substituted for the majority report.

The cnvention refused to pledge the party to entrance into the League of Nations.

The majority report, endorsing the principle of the league, but providing for a referendum on the question of entrance was then adopted.

Baker's plank was defeated 742 to 353.

The atmosphere in the garden was electrical as debate on the league plank opened. Rows upon rows of

PROPOSITION FOR ONE-HOUSE NOT TO BE SUBMITTED

Proposed Literacy Amendment Also Lacking Required Number of Signatures.

There will be no proposition for a one-house legislature on the official ballot at the November election to divide the attention of Nebraska voters with the choosing of national, state and local officials. The campaign undertaken by Otto Mutz of Lincoln and others to place that question on the ticket as an initiated measure has been abandoned because of failure to secure the 41,000 signatures required by law.

Likewise, the American Legion effort to initiate a constitutional amendment making it an essential qualification for voting that one should be able to read, write and understand the English language will also prove fruitless, so far as this year's election is concerned. Although 20,000 signatures have been gathered to the Legion's petitions within four weeks time, and hundreds more are coming in to the state headquarters daily, there is not sufficient time remain-

BURGLARS WORK AT WYOMING, NEB.

Search For Two Men Seen In Store at Time of Robbery.

Thieves entered the Sam Gatenby store at Wyoming, Neb., sometime Friday evening and stole four automobile tires, four cartons of cigarets and three dollars in stamps, according to the report received at the state sheriffs office Saturday.

The stamps were taken from the U. S. postoffice which is in the store. Two men, who are believed to have committed the robbery were seen in the store by persons who passed by about 9 o'clock in the evening and again at 11 o'clock. Suspicions were not aroused at the time, however.

One of the men is said to have been tall and fairly light complexioned. The other was short, heavy and dark complexioned. The two men are thought to have escaped in an old Ford coupe which was seen in town during the evening. The car bore no license number, according to State Sheriff Tom Carroll.

All Facilities Ordered to Aid In Storm Area

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O, June 28.—Governor Donahey tonight ordered every facility at the state's command be sent to the storm torn area along Lake Erie, between Sandusky and Lorain.

The governor said he had advised State Adjutant General Henderson at Columbus to order out all state troops necessary to give relief to storm sufferers and that he himself would proceed to the stricken district tomorrow and perhaps take personal charge of relief work.

The 112th engineers of the Ohio national guard are already on board a train at Cleveland waiting to be moved to Lorain, Donahey said.

The 144th infantry of Toledo has been ordered by the governor to entrain immediately for Sandusky, picking up other troops at Oak Harbor and Port Clinton.

The part of the 144th at Findlay was ordered to Sandusky in motor trucks.

(United Press.)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, N. Y. June 29—(Sunday, 2 a. m.)—The democratic party will not go before the people in November with a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name. Also it will not conduct its campaign upon the basis of a pledge of entrance into the League of Nations.

These two momentous points were decided by the convention early today when it adopted the majority report of the resolutions committee after defeating minority planks which would have denounced the klan and pledged the party to the league.

From 6 o'clock in th evening, when debate started, until nearly 2 a. m., Sunday the battle raged. Two hours of debate were given to each subject. The league came first, and the convention was moved to great emotional heights by a remarkable speech delivered by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war.

Bryan Makes Supreme Effort.

William Jennings Bryan made the supreme effort of those who sought to avoid mentioning the klan. A long list of speakers appeared for both sides. The sentiment of the convention certainly seemed to be anti-klan, whether the hooded order was to be mentioned or not. Every denunciatory reference to the klan was cheered, and following a speech by Andrew C. Erwin of Georgia, a demonstration broke which lasted for several minutes and was ended only after a parade of delegations from a dozen states behind their standards.

Then came two hours of utter confusion as the roll call was taken and delegations began changing and challenging.

The party thus passed through what had threatened to develop into a serious crisis.

Fears of Rioting.

Hundreds of policemen were in the convention hall. There had been open talk of fears of rioting. Nerves were on edge, and at every slight commotion within a delegation, two or three policemen were immediately on the job. The night passed, however, without serious disturbance.

The victory of those who would deal with the klan indirectly was won by 17-20 of a vote. The official result, as finally announced after nearly two hours of confusion, tussles in delegations and near fist fights while votes were being changed, was that 541 3-20 in favor of the amendment and 542 opposed to the amendment. Wildest scenes were enacted early Sunday morning as delegates stood on their chairs shouting and gesturing, changing their votes and fighting to the last for their favorite planks. The absolute even division in the convention is apparent in the vote insofar as the adoption of the plank is concerned.

All the fight was gone out of the convention by 2 a. m., and Chairman Walsh railroaded the adoption of the platform as submitted by a viva vote. Adjournment was then taken until 9:30 Monday morning.

vote, there is some possibility of the question coming up again Monday. Anyone who voted in the offirmative has the right, under rules, to move reconsideration and demand another polling of delegation such as took place last night.

Senator Robert Owen of Oklahoma, was selected by Chairman Cummings of the resolutions committee, to lead off with a fifteen minute address in support of the majority report, containing no reference directly to the klan.

"This is not a question of the klan winning or losing this election," Owen declared in opening. "Your committee recommends a plank strongly insisting upon freedom of religion, speech and press. The question is merely whether the democratic convention shall stigmatize the klan by name as being guilty of interfering with religious liberty and disregarding the lawful rights of their fellow citizens.

"Don't think I would support any organization, the klan or any others, who would trample on the rights and privileges of other citizens.

"It is true that there may be criminals among the klan and that some of them do carry on depredations upon their neighbors. But there are lunatics outside that organization and there are criminals also who do not wear that badge."

Tells Of Own Life.

Senator Owen spoke of his own feelings for Catholicism, the care that has been taken of him by negro servants all his life, and added:

"From the Jews we have received the blessings of the Bible. Our Christian church is founded upon the doctrine of a Jew.

"And when the great war came," he added, "we did not ask a man whether he was a Catholic, a Protestant, a Gentile or a Jew.

"Shall we now use this question to promote or demote any candidate whatever? When we hesitated to put this issue into the platform plank they said we were afraid to mention the klan. Well, I'm not afraid of the Ku Klux Klan. Im not afraid of any kluxer, living or dead."

Owen Is Cheered.

Owen was receiving loud approbation for his line of attack.

"In Oklahoma," he said, "we're not afraid of the klan. We're not afraid of them politically or in any other way. We licked the stuffing out of a kluxer candidate for the governship down there recently."

Owen asked if this convention wished to pass condemnation on members of the klan without there being evidence submitted on the other side.

There was a shout of "Yes" from the anti-klan section.

Owen concluded with an appeal for no indictment of the klan until the klan was asked to present its case.

William R. Pattangall of Maine, led off on behalf of those on the resolutions committee who submitted a minority report which would name directly the Ku Klux Klan.

"The amendment we offer you is a splendid document," he said. "We ask nothing but that you apply the abstract principles offered in the majority plank to the concrete example which we give in our proposed amendment."

Strong in Opposition.

"We don't condemn the Ku Klux Klan unheard; we oppose the klan or any other organization interfering with the religious freedom or civic rights of any citizen.

"Everyone knows the society we name lays down that no man who is Jew or Catholic or alien-born is reliable for office.

"Therefore, we say we oppose any attempt of that organization or any other to interfere with American institutions.

Pattangall was given a great demonstration when he concluded.

For several minutes, the galleries joined with the delegates in cheering and applauding. Many delegates leaped to their chairs, beckoning to the McAdoo delegates, who remained seated, to stand up. There was no indication, however, of any trouble on the floor and within a couple of minutes order was restored.

Platform Submitted To Democratic National Convention Lauds Former President Wilson And Reviews Eight Years of Accomplishment

(International News Service)

NEW YORK June 28—The text of the democratic national platform follows

We the representatives of the democratic party in national convention assembled pay our profound homage to the memory of Woodrow Wilson Our hearts are filled with gratitude that American democracy should have produced this man whose spirit and influence will live on through the ages and that it was our privilege to have co-operated with him in the advancement of ideals of government which will serve as an example and inspiration for this and future generations We affirm our abiding faith in these ideals and pledge ourselves to take up the standard which he bore and to strive for the full triumph of the principles of democracy to which he dedicated his life

Democratic Principles

The democratic party believes in equal rights to all and special privilege to none The republican party is essential to national prosperity It believes that national prosperity must originate with the special interests and seep down through channel of the trade of our industries to the wage earners and small salaried employes It has accordingly inthroned private and nutured selfishness The republican party is concerned chiefly with material things the democratic party is concerned chiefly with human rights The masses burdened by discriminating laws and unjust administration are demanding relief The favored special interests represented by the republican party contented with their unjust privileges are demanding that no change be made The democratic party stands for remedial legislation and progress The republican party stands still

Comparison of Parties

We urge the American people to compare the record of eight unsullied years of democratic administration with that of the republican administration In the former there was no corruption Party pledges were faithfully fulfilled and a democratic congress enacted an extraordinary number of constructive and remedial laws The economic life of the life was quickened Tariff taxes were reduced A federal trade commission was created A federal farm loan system was adopted Child labor legislation was enacted A good roads bill was passed Eight hour laws were adopted A secretary of labor was given a seat in the cabinet of the president The Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti trust act was passed freeing American labor and commodities The Smith Lever bill for improvement of agricultural conditions was effected A corrupt practice act was adopted A well considered warehouse act was passed Federal employment bureaus were created farm loan banks were organized and the federal reserve system was established Privilege was uprooted A corrupt lobby was driven from the national capitol A higher sense of individual and national duty was aroused

America enjoyed an unprecedented period of social and material progress During the time which intervened between the inauguration of a democratic administration on March fourth 1913 and our entrance in the world war we placed upon the statute books of our country more effective constructive and remedial legislation than the republican party had placed there in a generation

During the great struggle which followed we had a leadership that carried America to greater heights of honor and power and glory than she had ever known before in her entire history Transition from this period of exalted democratic leadership to the sordid record of the last three and a half years makes the nation ashamed It marks the contrast between a high conception of high public service and an avid purpose to distribute spoils

Republican Inefficiency, Corruption

Never before in our history has the government been so tainted by corruption and never has an administration so utterly failed The nation has been appalled by the revelations of political depravity which have characterized the conduct of public affairs We arraign the republican party for attempting to limit inquiry into official delinquencies and impede if not to frustrate the investigations to which in the beginning the republican party and leaders assented but which later they regarded with dismay These investigations sent the former secretary of the interior to Three Rivers in disgrace and dishonor These investigations revealed the incapacity and indifference to public obligation of the secretary of the navy compelling him by force of the public opinion to quit the cabinet These investigations confirmed the general impressions as to the unfitness of the attorney general by exposing an official situation and personal contacts which shocked the conscience of the nation and compelled his dismissal from the cabinet These investigations disclosed the appalling conditions in the Veterans bureau with its fraud upon the government and its cruel neglect of the sick and disabled soldiers of the world war These investigations revealed the criminal and fraudulent nature of the oil leases which caused the congress despite the indifference of the executive to direct recovery of the public domain and prosecution of the criminals

Is Unfit to Govern

Such are the exigencies of partisan politics that republican leaders are teaching the strange doctrine that public censure should be directed against those who expose crime rather than against criminals who have committed the offenses If only three cabinet officers out of ten are disgraced the country is asked to marvel at how many are free from taint Long boastful that it was the only party "fit to govern the republican party has proven its inability to govern even itself It is at war with itself As an agency of government it has ceased to function This nation cannot afford to entrust its welfare to a political organization that cannot master itself or to an executive whose policies have been rejected by his own party To retain in power an administration of this character would inevitably result in four years more or continued disorder internal dissention and government inefficiency

A vote for Coolidge is a vote for chaos

The Dominant Issues

The dominent issue of the campaign are created by existing conditions

Dishonesty discrimination extravagance and inefficiency exist in government The burdens of taxation have become unbearable Distress and bankruptcy in agriculture the basic industry of our country is affecting the happiness and prosperity of the whole people The high cost of living is causing a sharp unrest

The slowing down of industry is adding to the general distress The tariff the destruction of our foreign markets and the high cost of transportation are taking the profit out of agriculture mining and other raw material industries Large standing armies are still casting their burdens upon humanity The conditions the existing republican administration has proved itself unwilling or unable to redress

The democratic party pledges itself to the following program

Pledge Honest Government

We pledge the democratic party to drive from public places all who make barter of our national honor its resources or the administrator of ies laws To punish those guilty of these offenses To put none but the honest in public office To practice economy in the expenditure of public money to reverence and respect the rights of all under the constitution To condemn and destroy government by the spy and blackmailer as by this republican administration was both urage and practiced

Tariff and Taxation

The Fordney McCumber tariff act is the most unjust unscientific and dishonest tariff tax measure ever enacted in our history It is class legislation which defraudts all the people for the benefit of a few It heavily increases the cost of living penalizes the legislature corrupts the government fosters paternalism and in the long run does not not benefit the very interests for which it was enacted

We denounce the republican tariff law which was written in the great part for the aid of monopoly and thus prevents the reasonable exchange of commodities which would aid foreign countries to buy our surplus agriculture and manufactured products which result in a benefit to the toilers and producers in America Trade interchange on the basis of reciprocal advantages to the countries participating is a time honored doctrine of democratic faith We declare our party's position to be in favor of a tax on commodities enterin gthe customs house that will promote effective competition protect against monopoly and at the same time produce a fair revenue to support the government

The greatest contributing factor in the increase and unbalancing of taxes is unscientific taxation After having increased taxation and the cost of living by two billion dollars under the Fordney McCumber tariff all that the republican party could suggest in the way of relief was a cut of three hundred million dollars in direct taxes and that was to be given principally to those with the largest incomes Although there was no evidence of a lack of capacity for investment to meet the present requirements of all legitimate enterprises and although the farmers and the general consumers were bearing the brunt tariff favors were granted to principal interests the administration was unable to devise any plan except one to grant further aid to the few Fortunately this plan of administration failed and under democratic leadership aided by progressive republicans a more equitable one was adopted which reduces direct taxes by about four hundred and fifty million dollars

Favors Income Tax

The issue between the president and the democratic party is not one of tax reduction or of the consumption of capital It is an issue of a relative burden of taxation and of the distribution of capital as effected by the taxation of income The president still stands on the so called Mellon plan which his part has just refused to indorse or mention in its platform The income tax was intended as a tax upon wealth It was not intended to take from the poor any part of the necessities of life We hold that the fairest tax with which to raise revenues for the federal government is the income tax We favor a graduated tax upon incomes so adjusted as to lay the burdensome things of the government upon tax payers in proportion to the benefits they enjoy and their ability to pay We oppose the so called sales taxes and all other forms of taxation that unfairly shift to the consumer the burdens of taxation We refer to the democratic revenue measure passed by the last congress as distinguished from the Mellon tax plan as an illustration of the policy of the democratic party We first made a flat reduction of twenty five per cent upon the tax on all incomes payable this year and then we changed the proposed Mellon plan to eliminate taxes upon the poor reduce them upon moderate incomes and in a lesser degree upon the incomes of multi millionaires

We hold that all taxes are unnecessarily high and pledge ourselves to further reduction We denounce the Mellon tax plan as a device to relieve multi millionaire at the expense of other tax payers and we accept the issue of taxation tendered by President Coolidge

Condemn Foreign Policy

During the four years of republican government the economic condition of the American [illegible] from comfort to bankruptcy with all its attendant miseries The chief causes for this are

(A)—The republican party policy of isolation in international affairs has prevented Europe from getting back to its normal balance and by leaving unsolved the economic problems abroad has driven the European city population from industrial activities to the soil in large numbers in order to earn the mere necessity of life This has deprived the American farmer of his normal export trade

(B)—The republican policy of a prohibitive tariff exemplified in the Fordney McCumber law which has forced the American farmer with his export market debilitated to buy manufactured goods at sustained high domestic levels thereby making him the victim of the profiteer

(C)—The republican policy of high transportation rates both rail and water which has made it impossible for the farmer to ship his produce to market at even a living profit

To offset these policies and their disastrous results and to restore the farmer again to economic equality with other industrialists we pledge ourselves

(A)—To adopt an international policy of such co operation by direct official instead of indirect and evasive unofficial means as will establish the farmers export market by restoring the industrial balance in Europe and the normal flow of interest trade with the settlement of Europe's economic problems

(b)—To adjust the tariff so that the farmer and all other classes can buy again in a competitive market

To Lower Retail Rates

(c)—To re adjust and lower rail and water rates which will make our markets both for the buyer and the seller national and international instead of regional and local

(d)—To bring about the early completion of internal waterway systems for transportation and develop our water powers for cheaper fertilizer and use on our farms

(e)—To stimulate by every proper governmental activity the progress of the co operative marketing corporation or commission in order [illegible] establish the price of the whole crop

(f)—To secure for the farmer credits suitable for his needs

(g) By the establishment of these policies and others naturally suplementary thereto to reduce the margin between what the producer receives for his products and the consumer has to pay for his supplies to the end that we secure an equality for agriculture

Condemns Railroad Law

The sponsors for the Esch Cummins transportation act of 1920 at the time of its presentation to Congress stated that it had for its purpose the reduction of the cost of transportation betterment of labor condition better co operation between employer and employee and at the same time the assurance of a fair and just return to the railroads upon their investment

We are in accord with these announced purposes but contend that the act has failed to accomplish them It has failed to reduce the cost of transportation [illegible] The improvement in such has not been realized The labor provisions of the act have proven unsatisfactory in settling differences between employer and employe The so called recapture clause has worked to the advantage of the strong and has been of no benefit to the weak The pronouncement in the act for the development of both rail and water transportation has proven futile Water transportation upon inland waterways has not been encouraged and limitation of our coastwise trade is threatened by the administration of the act It has unnecessarily interfered with the power of the states to regulate purely intra state transportation It must therefore be so rewritten that the high purposes which the public welfare demands may be accomplished

Railroads freight rates should be so readjusted as to give the bulky low priced commodities such as agricultural products coal and ore the lowest rates placing the highest rates upon the most valuable and less bulky manufacuted products

Muscle Shoals and Fertilizers

We reaffirm and pledge the fulfillment of the policy with reference to Muscle Shoals as declared and passed by the democratic majority of the sixty fourth congress in the national defense act of 1916 for the production of nitrates or other products needed for munitions of war and useful in the manufacture of fertilizers

We hold that the manufacture of cheaper and higher grade fertilizer is essential to agricultural prosperity We demand prompt action by congress for the operation of the Muscle Shoals plants to maximum capacity in the production and sale of commercial fertilizers to the farmers of the country and we oppose any legislation that limits the productions of fertilizers at Muscle shoals by limiting the amount of power to be used in their manufacture

Contraction of Credit and Currency

We denounce the recent cruel and unjust contraction of legitimate and necessary credit and currency which was directly due to the so called deflation policy of the republican party as declared in the national platform of June 1920 and in the speech of acceptance of its candidate for the presidency Within eighteen months [illegible] resulted in withdrawing bank loans and discounts by over five billions of dollars and in contracting our currency by over fifteen hundred millions of dollars

Within eighteen months after the election of 1920 this policy resulted in withdrawing bank loans and discounts by over five billions of dollars and in contracting our currency by over fifteen hundred millions of dollars This contraction bankrupted hundreds of thousands of farmers and stock growers in America and resulted in widespread industrial depression and unemployment Therefore we demand that the federal reserve system be so administered as to give stability to industry commerce and finance as was intended by the democratic party which gave the federal reserve system to the nation

Reclamation Service

The democratic party was the foremost in urging reclamation of arid and semi arid lands of the west These lands are located in the public land states and therefore it is the duty of the government to utilize their resources by reclamation

Homestead entrymen under reclimation projects have suffered from the extravagant inefficiencies and mistakes of the federal government

The reclamation act of 1924 recommended by the fact finding commission and added as an amendment to the second deficiency appropriation bill at the last session of congress was eliminated from the bill by the republican conference in the report they presented to congress one hour before adjournment

The democratic party pledges itself actively effectively and economically to carry on the reclamation projects and to make equitable adjustment for the mistakes the government has made

Conservation of Oil Reserves

We pledge recovery of the navy's oil reserves and all other parts of the public domain which have been fraudulently or illegally leased or otherwise wrongfully transferred to the control of private interests vigorous prosecution of all public of[illegible] revision of the water power act the general leasing act and all other legislation relating to the public domain that may be essential to its conservation and honest and effective use on behalf of the people of the country We believe that the nation should retain title to its water power and we favor the expedious creation and development of our waterpower We favor strict public control and conservation of all the nation's natural resources such as coal iron oil and timber and their use in such manner as may be to the best interest of our citizens

The conservation of migratory birds the establishment of game preserves and the protection and conservation of wild life is of importance to agriculturists as well as sportsmen Our disappearing natural resource of timber calls for a national policy of reforestation

Improves Highways

Improved roads are of vital importance not only to commerce and industry but also to agriculture and rural life We call attention to the record of the democratic party in this matter and favor a continuance of federal aid under existing federal and state agencies

Mining Needs Aid

Mining is one of the basic industries of this country We produce more coal iron copper and silver than any other country The value of our mineral production is second only to agriculture Mining has suffered like agriculture and from the same causes It is the duty of our government to favor this industry and remove the restrictions that destroy its prosperity

Regulation of Corporations

We pledge the democratic party to regulate by governmental agencies the anthracite coal industry and all corporations controlling the necessities of life where public welfare has been subordinated to private interests

The democratic party condemns the vacillating policy of the republican administration in its failure to develop an American merchant marine

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—The text of the democratic national platform follows:

"We the representatives of the democratic party in national convention assembled pay our profound homage to the memory of Woodrow Wilson. Our hearts are filled with gratitude that American democracy should have produced this man whose spirit and influence will live on through the ages; and that it was our privilege to have co-operated with him in the advancement of ideals of government which will serve as an example and inspiration for this and future generations. We affirm our abiding faith in thise ideals, and pledge ourselves to take up the standard which he bore and to strive for the full triumph of the principles of democracy to which he dedicated his life.

Democratic Principles.

The democratic party believes in equal rights to all and special privilege to none. The republican party essential to national prosperity. It believes that national prosperity must originate with the special interests and seep down through channel of the trade of our industries, to the wage earners and smal salaried employes. It has accordingly inthroned private and nutured selfishness. The republican party is concerned chiefly with material things; the democratic party is concernel chiefly with human rights. The masses burdened by discriminating laws and unjust administration are demanding relief. The favored special interests represented by the republican party contented with their unjust privileges are demanding that no change be made. The democratic party stands for remedial legislation and progress. The republican party stands still.

Comparison of Parties.

We urge the American people to compare the record of eight unsullied years of democratic administration with that of the republican administration. In the former there was no corruption. Party pledges were faithfully fulfilled and a democratic congress enacted an extraordinary number of constructive and remedial laws. The economic life of the life was quickened. Tariff taxes were reduced. A federal trade commission was created. A federal farm loan system was adopted. Child labor legislation was enacted. A good roads bill was passed. Eight-hour laws were adopted. A secretary of labor was given a seat in the cabinet of the president. The Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust act was passed, freeing American labor and commodities. The Smith-Lever bill for improvement of agricultural conditions was effected. A corrupt practice act was adopted. A well considered warehouse act was passed. Federal employment bureaus were created, farm loan banks were organized and the federal reserve system was established. Privilege was uprooted. A corrupt lobby was driven from the national capitol. A higher sense of individual and national duty was aroused.

America enjoyed an unprecedented period of social and material progress. During the time which intervened between the inauguration of a democratic administration on March fourth 1913 and our entrance in the world war, we placed upon the statute books of our country more effective, constructive and remedial legislation than the republican party had placed there in a generation.

During the great struggle which followed we had a leadership that carried America to greater heights of honor and power and glory than she had ever known before in her entire history. Transition from this period of exalted democratic leadership to the sordid record of the last three and a half years makes the nation ashamed. It marks the contrast between a high conception of high public service and an avid purpose to distribute spoils.

Republican Inefficiency, Corruption.

Never before in our history has the government been so tainted by corruption and never has an administration so utterly failed. The nation has been appalled by the revelations of political depravity which have characterized the conduct of public affairs. We arraign the republican party for attempting to limit inquiry into official delinquencies and impede if not to frustrate the investigations to which in the beginning the republican party and leaders assented but which later they regarded with dismay. These investigations sent the former secretary of the interior to Three Rivers in disgrace and dishonor. These investigations revealed the incapacity and indifference to public obligation of the secretary of the navy compelling him by force of the public opinion to quit the cabinet. These investigations confirmed the general impressions as to the unfitness of the attorney general by exposing an official situation and personal contacts which shocked the conscience of the nation, and compelled his dismissal from the cabinet. These investigations disclosed the appalling conditions in the Veterans bureau with its fraud upon the government and its cruel neglect of the sick and disabled soldiers of the world war. These investigations revealed the criminal and fraudulent nature of the oil leases which caused the congress despite the indifference of the executive, to direct recovery of the public domain and prosecution of the criminals.

Is Unfit to Govern.

Such are the exigencies of partisan politics that republican leaders are teaching the strange doctrine that public censure should be directed against those who expose crime rather than against criminals who have committed the offenses. If only three cabinet officers out of ten are disgraced, the country is asked to marvel at how many are free from taint. Long boastful that it was the only party "fit to govern" the republican party has proven its inability to govern even itself. tI is at war with itself. As an agency of government it has ceased to function. This nation cannot afford to entrust its welfare to a political organization that cannot master itself or to an executive whose policies have been rejected by his own party. To retain in power an administration of this character would inevitably result in four years more or continued disorder, internal dissention and government inefficiency.

A vote for Coolidge is a vote for chaos.

The Dominant Issues.

The dominent issue of the campaign are created by existing conditions.

Dishonesty, discrimination, extravagance and inefficiency exist in government. The burdens of taxation have become unbearable. Distress and bankruptcy in agriculture, the basic industry o four country is affecting the happiness adn prosperity o fthe whole people. The high cost of living is causing a sharp unrest.

The slowing down of industry is adding to the general distress. The tariff, the destruction of our foreign markets and the high cost of transportation are taking the profit out of agriculture, mining and other raw material industries. Large standing armies are still casting their burdens upon humanity. The conditions the existing republican administration has proved itself unwilling or unable to redress.

The democratic party pledges itself to the following program:

Pledge Honest Government.

We pledge the democratic party to drive from public places all who make barter of our national honor, its resources, or the administrator of ies laws. To punish those guilty of these offenses. To put none but the honest in public office. To practice economy in the expenditure of public money; to reverence and respect the rights of all under the constitution. To condemn and destroy government by the spy and blackmailer as by this republican administration was both urage and practiced.

Tariff and Taxation.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff act is the most unjust, unscientific and dishonest tariff tax measure ever enacted in our history. It is class legislation, which defraudts all the people for the benefit of a few; it heavily increases the cost of living, penalizes the legislature, corrupts the government, fosters paternalism, and in the long run does not not benefit the very interests for which it was enacted.

We denounce the republican tariff law which was written in the greater part for the aid of monopoly and thus prevents the reasonable exchange of commodities which would aid foreign countries to buy our surplus agriculture and manufactured products which result in a benefit to the toilers and producers in America. Trade interchange on the basis of reciprocal advantages to the countries participating is a time-honored doctrine of democratic faith. We declare our party's position to be in favor of a tax on commodities enterin gthe customs house that will promote effective competition, protect against monopoly and at the same time produce a fair revenue to support the government.

The greatest contributing factor in the increase and unbalancing of taxes is unscientific taxation. After having increased taxation and the cost of living by two billion dollars under the Fordney-McCumber tariff, all that the republican party could suggest in the way of relief was a cut of three hundred million dollars in direct taxes; and that was to be given principally to those with the largest incomes. Although there was no evidence of a lack of capacity for investment to meet the present requirements of all legitimate enterprises and although the farmers and the general consumers were bearing the brunt, tariff favors were granted to principal interests, the administration was unable to devise any plan except one to grant further aid to the few. Fortunately this plan of administration failed, and under democratic leadership aided by progressive republicans a more equitable one was adopted which reduces direct taxes by about four hundred and fifty million dollars.

Favors Income Tax.

The issue between the president and the democratic party is not one of tax reduction or of the consumption of capital. It is an issue of a relative burden of taxation and of the distribution of capital as effected by the taxation of income. The president still stands on the so-called Mellon plan which his party has just refused to indorse or mention in its platform. The income tax was intended as a tax upon wealth, It was not intended to take from the poor any part of the necessities of life. e hold that the fairest tax with which to raise revenues for the federal government is the income tax. We favor a graduated tax upon incomes, so adjusted as to lay the burdensome things of the government upon tax payers in proportion to the benefits they enjoy and their ability to pay. We oppose the so-called sales taxes and all other forms of taxation that unfairly shift to the consumer the burdens of taxation. We refer to the democratic revenue measure passed by the last congress as distinguished from the Mellon tax plan as an illustration of the policy of the democratic party. We first made a flat reduction of twenty-five per cent upon the tax on all incomes payable this year, and then we so changed the proposed Mellon plan as to eliminate taxes upon the poor, reduce them upon moderate incomes and, in a lesser degree, upon the incomes of multi-millionaires.

We hold that all taxes are unnecessarily high and pledge ourselves to further reduction. We denounce the Mellon tax plan as a devise to relieve multi-millionaire at the expense of other tax payers and we accept the issue of taxation tendered by President Coolidge.

Condemn Foreign Policy.

During the four years of republican government the economic condition of the American farmer has changed from comfort to bankruptcy, with all its attendant miseries. The chief causes for this are:

(A)—The republican party policy of isolation in international affairs has prevented Europe from getting back to its normal balance, and by leaving unsolved the economic problems abroad has driven the Europeon city population from industrial activities to the soil in large numbers in order to earn the mere necessit yof life. This has deprived the American farmer of his normal export trade.

(B)—The republican policy of a prohibitive tariff, exemplified in the Fordney-McCumber law which has forced the American farmer with his export market debilitated to buy manufactured goods at sustained high domestic levels, thereby making him the victim of the profiteer.

(C)—The republican policy of high transportation rates, both rail and water, which has made it impossible for the farmer to ship his produce to market at even a living profit.

To offset these policies and their disastrous results and to restore the farmer aganl to economic equality with other industrialists, we pledge ourselves:

(A)—To adopt an international policy of such co-operation by direct official instead of indirect and evasive unofficial means as will establish the farmers export market by restoring the industrial balance in Europe and the normal flow of interest trade with the settlement of Europe's economic problems.

(b)—To adjust the tariff so that the farmer and all other classes can buy again in a competitive market.

To Lower Retail Rates.

(c)—To re-adjust and lower rail and water rates, which will make our markets, both for the buyer and the seller, national and international instead of regional and local.

(d)—To bring about the early completion of internal waterway systems for transportation and develop our water powers for cheaper fertilizer and use on our farms.

(e)—To stimulate by every proper governmental activity the progress of the co-operative marketing corporation or commission in order that the exportable surplus may not establish the price of the whole crop.

(f)—To secure for the farmer credits suitable for his needs.

(g)—By the establishment of these policies and others naturally suplementary thereto, to reduce the margin between what the producer receives for his products and the consumer has to pay for his supplies to the end that we secure an equality for agriculture.

Condemns Railroad Law.

The sponsors for the Esch-Cummins transportation act of 1910 at the time of its presentation to Congress stated that it had for its purpose the reduction of the cost of transportation, betterment of labor condition; better co-operation between employer and employee and at the same time the assurance of a fair and just return to the railroads upon their investment.

We are in accord with these announced purposes but contend that the act has failed to accomplish them. It has failed to reduce the cost of transportation. The improvement in such has not been realized. The labor provisions of the act have proven unsatisfactory in settling differences between employer and employe. The so-called recapture clause has worked to the advantage of the strong and has been of no benefit to the weak. The pronouncement in the act for the development of both rail and water transportation has proven futile. Water transportation upon inland waterways has not been encouraged and limitation of our coastwise trade is threatened by the administration of the act. It has unnecessarily interfered with the power of the states to regulate purely intra-state transportation. It must therefore be so rewritten that the high purposes which the public welfare demands may be accomplished.

Railroads freight rates should be so readjusted as to give the bulky. low-priced commodities such as agricultural products, coal, and ore, the lowest rates, placing the highest rates upon the most valuable and less bulky manufacuted products.

Muscle Shoals and Fertilizers.

"We reaffirm and pledge the fulfillment of the policy with reference to Muscle Shoals as declared and passed by the democratic majority of the sixty-fourth congress in the national defense act of 1916 for the production of nitrates or other products needed for munitions of war and useful in the manufacture of fertilizers.

We hold that the manufacture of cheaper and higher grade fertilizer is essential to agricultural prosperity. We demand prompt action by congress for the operation of the Muscle Shoals plants to maximum capacity in the production and sale of commercial fertilizers to the farmers of the country and we oppose any legislation that limits the productions of fertilizers at Muscle shoals by limiting the amount of power to be used in their manufacture.

Contraction of Credit and Currency.

We denounce the recent cruel and unjust contraction of legitimate and necessary credit and currency which was directly due to the so-called deflation policy of the republican party as declared in the national platform of June 1920 and in the speech of acceptance of its candidate for the presidency. Within eighteen months after the election of 1920 this policy resulted in withdrawing bank loans and discounts by over five billions of dollars and in contracting our currency by over fifteen hundred millions of dollars.

Within eighteen months after the election of 1920 this policy resulted in withdrawing bank loans and discounts by over five billions of dollars and in contracting our currency by over fifteen hundred millions of dollars. This contraction bankrupted hundreds of thousands of farmers and stock growers in America and resulted in widespread industrial depression and unemployment. Therefore, we demand that the federal reserve system be so administered as to give stability to industry, commerce and finance, as was intended by the democratic party which gave the federal reserve system to the nation.

Reclamation Service.

The democratic party was foremost inurging reclamation of arid and semi-arid lands of the west. These lands are located in the public land states and, therefore, it is the duty of the government to utilize their resources by reclamation.

Homestead entrymen under reclamation projects have suffered from the extravagant inefficiencies and mistakes of the federal government.

The reclamation act of 1924 recommended by the fact-finding commission and added as an amendment to the second deficiency appropriation bill at the last session of congress was eliminated from the bill by the republican conference in the report they presented to congress one hour before adjournment.

The democratic party pledges itself actively, effectively and economically to carry on the reclammation projects, and to make equitable adjustment for the mistakes the government has made.

Conservation of Oil Reserves.

We pledge recovery of the navy's oil reserves and all other parts of the public domain which have been fraudulently or illegally leased or otherwise wrongfully transferred to the control of private interests; vigorous prosecution of all public offcials, private citizens; revision of the water power act, the general leasing act, and all other legislation relating to the public domain, that may be essential to its conservation and honest and effective use on behalf of the people of the country. We believe that the nation should retain title to its water power and we favor the expedious creation and development of our waterpower. We favor strict public control and conservation of all the nation's natural resources, such as coal, iron, oil and timber, and their use in such manner as may be to the best interest of our citizens.

The conservation of migratory birds, the establishment of game preserves and the protection and conservation of wild life is of importance to agriculturalists as well as sportsmen. Our disappearing natural resource of timber calls for a national policy of reforestation.

Improves Highways.

Improved roads are of vital importance not only to commerce and industry but also to agriculture and rural life. We call attention to the record of the democratic party in this matter and favor a continuance of federal aid under existing federal and state agencies.

Mining Needs Aid.

Mining is one of the basic industries of this country. We produce more coal, iron, copper and silver than any other country. The value of our mineral production is second only to agriculture. Mining has suffered like agriculture and from the same causes. It is the duty of our government to favor this industry and remove the restrictions that destroy its prosperity.

Regulation of Corporations.

We pledge the democratic party to regulate by governmental agencies the anthracite coal industry and all corporations controlling the necessaries of life where public welfare has been subordinated to private interests.

The democratic party condemns the vacillating policy of the republican administration in its failure to develop an American merchant marine

WHAT TO EAT TO PUT IRON IN YOUR BLOOD AND MAKE YOU STRONG

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC. WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH ORGANIC IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

"At their own doors—in the very gardens of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonics and strength-builders known to medical science," said Dr. Emile Sauer, well known New England physician, when consulted recently.

Dr. Sauer further said:—"If your daily diet contains an abundant amount of iron you are giving your body the red blood food it craves. But if your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and easily upset. In such cases, what you need is iron—organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble and the moment organic iron is supplied it is often wonderful how quickly your multitude of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings, while organic iron is a true red blood food, like the iron in your blood itself and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. In fact if you will eat a pint or two of spinach, half a pint of lentils and three or four baked apples each day you will probably not need to take any other form of organic iron but most people prefer to eat a smaller quantity of iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what Nuxated iron can do for you, get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles; then take Nuxated Iron for a month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel; see how the color has come back to your cheeks, how steady and strong your nerves have become. At all druggists.

FIELDS UP FOR THIRD HEARING

at Omaha and elsewhere have written in his behalf. Among them is Harold E. Niebling, a Kansas City attorney, formerly a newspaper man in Lincoln.

Several communications have reached State Probation Ofifcer Harmon from Fields' father-in-law at Omaha, W. B Porter, who asserts that the average time served by men who are paroled is only one-third of their regular terms, and he insists that Fields is entitled to the same treatment. Fields came to the penitentiary in February, 1922, after the supreme court had affirmed his conviction His license as a practicing physician has been revoked since he entered prison.

Ruth Ayer, the victim of the operation, lived at Hayes Center and went to Omaha to find a doctor who would help to conceal the consequences of her relations with a young man named Watson Alexander. Not long after her death, Alexander was killed by the discharge of a gun with which he had gone hunting.

Deason Changes Methods.

Having learned by experience that the arm of the law is long and that a fugitive from justice has a hard time keeping out of its reach, Walter Deason is now willing to take his chances with the state pardon board and is asking it to parole him.

He and Dick Barrett are the two men who escaped from the convict road camp near Tecumseh in May, 1920, and succeeded in eluding recapture for a long time. Both ware finally caught, however, and returned. Barrett served out the remainder of his maximum five-year term for auto theft in York county and was discharged.

Deason was brought back from Colorado in October, 1921, nearly a year and a half subsequent to his getaway, while Barrett was captured in Canada a year earlier. The sentence which Deason is serving is 1 to 10 years for burglary committed in Perkins county.

Was in Auto Stealing Gang.

Charles Elliott, sentenced from Lancaster county [illegible] stealing one of a large number of Ford automobiles in and around Lincoln, which were turned over to a garage man named Mares, at Wilber, is asking parole Omaha detectives, state law enforcement officers, and local officers rounded up a gang that carried on systematic operations The engine numbers on the stolen machines were changed at Mares' garage and the autos were then resold. Mares was among those convicted, and his appeal is now pendnig in the supreme court Elliott's term is 1 to 10 years.

Earl Henry, another man doing 1 to 10 years for auto stealing in Lancaster county, has been in prison four years or more, and the board of pardons has rejected his parole application three times, but he is to be heard again at the coming session. He and William Pavey were said to have stolen a dozen Fords in this vicinity. He escaped in October, 1921, but was caught and brought back the next day For this, he was resentenced to serve 1 to 10 years concurrently with his original term. His record shows a year in jail at Council Bluffs for bigamy.

Two Women Applicants.

Mary Henderson, colored, who has served the first year of a 3-year term for manslaughter, at Omaha, wants the rest of her sentence commuted. She shot and killed Silas Curtice, for whom she had been keeping house while his wife was in a hospital. Her story was that a quarrel arose over the payment of her wages, and that Curtiss got a fork and was threatening to stab her when she shot.

After spending ten months in the penitentiary, Mary Yerkey desires to be relieved from further incarceration under her sentence of 1 to 3 years She was convicted in Platte county of running two disorderly houses at Columbus, on the testimony of Mabel Jones, who conducted one of them for her County Attorney C. F. Walter is strongly opposed to her release He writes that she was for years "a civic sore on this community." Mabel Jones was committed to the women's reformatory at York, and aftreward paroled and discharged.

Objects to Deportation.

Fred Klatt, alias Klien, a native of Germany who has never been naturalizedin this country, asks to have his sentence commuted in order to escape deportation back to his native country. He and Fred Miller were convicted of hog stealing in Knox county, three years ago. They broke jail, were caught, and resentenced for five years each on that charge. The two had served previously in the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater. United States immigration officials are expecting to return both of them to Germany. Miller was paroled to the immigration authorities a monh ago, but is still held at the prison awaiting action on his companion's case.

Bank Robbery Case.

On the pardon board's calendar for July 8 is the name of Joe White, who pleaded guilty to robbing a bank at Nora, Nuckolls county, in July, 1921, and was given 1 to 7 years. George Melrose, who stood trial for [illegible] was convicted. Following is the list of applicants to be heard next month:

MINISTERS AID IN SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Sermons On Sunday, July 6, To Be Devoted To Movement.

Churches have been asked to set aside Sunday, July 6, for a discussion of safety, particularly in reference to the "Cross Crossing Cautiously" campaign of the railroads. Ministers have been asked to discuss this matter in their sermons.

Officials of the Union Pacific railroad have sent to all clergymen a copy of a pamphlet in which the great increase in grade crossing accidents is indicated. The clergymen are asked to use some of the figures contained therein as basis for their sermons.

During the last thirty years, it is said, grade crossing fatalities have increased 345 per cent, and injuries from the same cause 652 per cent.

Last year 2,268 persons were killed and 6,314 injured at railroad-highway crossings. During the present year it is estimated that 2,800 will be killed and 8,000 injured. This is equivalent to one person killed every three hours and one person injured every hour.

Replacement of the present crossings with tunnels is not practicable. The cost would be about $19,000,000,000, more than the total valuation of all railroads.

The value of organized effort to combat the grad ecrossing danger is demonstrated by figures given in the pamphlet. Through this cooperation, the number of accidents was decreased from 4,534 in 1907 to 1,657 in 1922.

SAVING and INVESTING

People who have accumulated wealth began by saving. When their savings reached a given amount—5 hundred or 1 thousand dollars—they INVESTED them for a given period at a higher rate of interest. However, you need not wait until you have saved 5 hundred dollars to begin investing.

We can start you with 1 hundred dollars at 6 per cent interest, investing it for from 6 months to 5 years or more. If you have 1 hundred dollars or more and are getting less than 6 per cent interest you are depriving yourself or your heirs of the difference between 6 per cent and what you are receiving. SAVING and INVESTING

People who have accumulated wealth began by saving. When their savings reached a given amount—5 hundred or 1 thousand dollars—they INVESTED them for a given period at a higher rate of interest. However, you need not wait until you have saved 5 hundred dollars to begin investing.

We can start you with 1 hundred dollars at 6 per cent interest, investing it for from 6 months to 5 years or more. If you have 1 hundred dollars or more and are getting less than 6 per cent interest you are depriving yourself or your heirs of the difference between 6 per cent and what you are receiving. Six per cent is 50 per cent better than 4 per cent. July first is an opportune time for INVESTING your savings. Let us help you.

policy There has been a marked decrease in the volume of American commerce carried in American vessels as compared to the records under democratic administration

We oppose as illogical and unsound all efforts to overcome by subsidies the handicaps to American shipping and commerce imposed by republican policies

We condemn the practice of certain railroads in favoring foreign shipments and pledge ourselves to correct such discriminations We declare for an American owned merchant marine American-built and manned by American crews which is essential for naval security in war and is a protection to the American farmer and manufacturer against excessive ocean charges on products of farm and factory

We declare that the government should own and operate such merchant ships as will insure the accomplishments of these purposes and continue such operation so long as it may be necessary without obstructing the development and growth of a privately American owned shipping

We believe with Thomas Jefferson and other founders of the republic that ignorance is the enemy of freedom and in each state being responsible for the intellectual and moral qualifications of its citizens and for the expenditure of the moneys collected by taxation for support of its schools shall use its sovereign right in all matters pertaining to education The federal government should offer to the states such counsel and advice and aid as may be made available through the federal agencies for the general improvement of our schools in view of our national need

The Civil Service

We denounce the action of the republican administration in its violations of the principals of civil service by its partisan removals and manipulations of the eligible lists in the postoffice department and other governmental departments by its packing the civil service commission so that that commission became the servile instrument of the administration in its wish to deny to the ex service men their preferential rights under the law and the evasion of the requirements of the law with referenc eto appointments in the department

We pledge the democratic party faithfully to comply with the spirit as well as the regulation of civil service to extend its provisions to internal revenue offices and to other employes of the government not in executive positions and to secure to exservice men preference in such appointments

Postal Employes

We declare [illegible] of adequate salaries to provide decent living conditions for postal employes

Popular Elections

We pledge the democratic party to a policy which will prevent members of either house who fail of re election from participating in the subsequent session of the congress This can be accomplished by fixing the days of convening the congress immediately after biennial national elections and to this end we favor granting the right to the people of the several states to vote on proposed constitutional amendments on this subject

We favor the extension of the prohibition principle to the courts of the United States

Activities of Women

We welcome the women of the nation to their rightful place by the side of men in the control of the government whose burdens they have always shared

The democratic party congratulates them upon the essential part which they have taken in the progress of our country and the zeal with which they are using their political power to aid the enactment of efficient laws and the exaction of fidelity in the public service

Veterans of Wars

We favor generous appropriations honest management and sympathetic care and assistance in the hospitalization re-habilitation and compensation of the veterans of all wars and their dependents The humanizing of the veterans bureau is imperatively required

Campaign Contributions

The nation knows now that the predatory interests have by supplying republican campaign funds systematically purchased legislative favors and administrative imunity Thep ractice must stop Our nation must return to honesty and decency in politics Elections are public affairs conducted for the sole purpose of ascertaining the will of the soverign voters therefore we demand that national elections shall hereafter be kept free from the poison of excessive private contributions To this end we favor reasonable means of publicity at public expense so that candidates properly before the people for federal offices may present their claims at a minimum of cost Such publicity should precede the primary and the election We favor the prohibition of individual contributions direct and indirect to the campagn fund of congressman senators or presidential candidates beyond a reasonable sum to be fixed in the law for both individual contribution and total expenditues with requirements for full publicity We advocate a complete revision of the corrupt practice act to prevent election evils disclosed by recent indictments

Will Fight Narcotic Evil

Recognizing in narcotic addiction especially the spreading of heroin addiction among the youth a grave peril to America and to the human race we pledge ourselves vigorously to take against it all legitimate and proper measures for education for control and for suppression at home and abroad

Will Enforce the Law

The republican administration has failed to enforce the prohibition law is guilty of trafficking in liquor permits and has become the protector of violators of this law The democratic party pledges itself to respect and enforce the constitution and all laws

The Rights of The States

We demand that the states of the Union shall be preserved in all their vigor and power They constitute a bulwark against the centralizing and destructive tendencies of the republican party

We condemn the efforts of the republican administration to nationalize the functions and the duties of the states

We oppose the extension of bureacracy the creation of unnecessary bureaus and federal agencies and the duplication of offices and office holders

We demand revival of the spirit of local self government essential to the preservation of the free institutions of our republic

We pledge ourselves to maintain our established position in favor of the exclusion of Asiatic immigration

Philippines Independence

The Filipino people have succeeded in maintaining a stable government and have thus fulfilled the only condition laid down by congress as a pre requisite to the granting of independence We declare that it is now our liberty and our duty to keep our promise to these people by granting them immediate independence which they so honorably covet

The maladministration of affairs in Alaska is a matter of concern to all our people Under the republican administration Alaskan development has ceased and the fishing industry has been seriously impaired We pledge ourselves to correct the evils which have grown up in the administration of that rich domain

An adequate form of local self government for Alaska must be provided and to that end we favor the establishment of a full territorial form of government for that territory similar to that enjoyed by all the territories except Alaska during the last century of American history

Territory of Hawaii

We believe in a policy for continuing the improvement of the national parks the harbors and breakwaters and the federal roads of the territory of Hawaii

We recommend legislation for the welfare of inhabitants of the Virgin Islands

Armenia and Lausanne Treaty

We condemn the Lausanne treaty It barters legitimate American rights and betrays Armenia for the Chester oil concession

We favor the protection of American rights in Turkey and the fulfillment of President Wilsons arbitral award respecting Armenia

We welcome to the sisterhood of republics the ancient land of Greece We extend to her government and people our cordial good wishes

War Relic of Barbarism

War is a relic of barbarism and it is justifiable only as a measure of defense

In the event of war in which the man power of the nation is drafted all other resources should likewise be drafted This will tend to discourage war by depriving it of its profit

Disarmament War Referendum National Defense

We demand a strict and sweeping reduction of armaments by land and sea so that there shall be no competitive military program or naval building

Until international agreement to end war has been made we advocate an army and navy adequate for our national safety That our government secure a joint agreement with all nations for world disarmament and also for a referendum of war except in case of actual or threatened attack

Those who must furnish the blood and bear the burdens imposed by war should whenever possible be consulted before this supreme sacrifice is required of them

We favor and will promote deep waterways from the great lakes to the gulf and to the Atlantic ocean

Flood Control, Water Transportation

We favor a policy for the fostering and building up of water transportation through the improvement of in land waterways and the removal of discrimination against water transportation Flood control and the lowering of flood levels is essential to the safety of life and property the prodectivity of our lands the navigability of our streams and the reclaiming of our wet and overflowed lands and the creation of hydro electric power We favor the expeditious construction of flood relief work on the Mississippi and Colorado Rivers and also such reclamation and irrigation projects upon the Colorado river as may be found feasible and practical

We favor liberal appropriations for prompt surveys by the United States to determine the possibilities of general navigation improvements and water power development of the navigable streams and their tributaries to secure reliable information as to the most economical navigation improvement in combination with the most efficient and complete development of water power

We favor the suspension of the granting of federal water power licenses by the federal water power commission until congress has received reports from the water commission with regard to applications for such licenses

Fraudulent Stock Sales

We favor the immediate passage of such legislation as may be necessary to enable the states efficiently to enforce their laws relating to the gradual financial strangling of innocent investors workers and consumers caused by the indiscriminating promotion financing and reorganizing of corporation on an inflated and over capitalized basis resulting already in the undermining and collapse of many railroads public service and industrial corporations manifesting itself in unemployment irreparable loss and waste and which constitutes a serious menace to the stability of our economic system

Private Monopolies

The federal trade commission has submitted to the republican administration numerous reports shewing the existence of monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade and has recommended proceedings against these violators of the law The few prosecutions which have resulted from this abundant evidence furnished by this agency created by the democratic party while proving the indifference of the administration to the violations of the law by trusts and monopolies and its friendship for them nevertheless demonstrate the value of the federal trade commission We declare that a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable and pledge the democratic party to a vigorous enforcement of existing laws against monopolies and illegal combinations and the enactment of such further measures as may be necessary

Aviation

We favor development of aviation both by the government and commercial

Labor and Child Welfare

Labor is not a commodity it is human We favor collective bargaining and laws regulating hours of labor and conditions under which labor is performed We favor the enactment of legislation providing that the product of convict labor shipped from one state to another will be subject to the laws of the latter exactly as though they had been produced therein In order to mitigate unemployment attending business depression we urge the enactment of public works be initiated in periods of acute unemployment

We pledge the party to co operate with the state governments for the education welfare and protection of child life and all necessary safeguards against exhaustive debilitating employment conditions for women

Without the votes of democratic leaders of the congress the child labor amendment would not have been submitted for ratification

League of Nations

The democratic party pledges all its energies to the outlaying of the whole war system We refuse to believe that the wholesale slaughter of human beings on the battlefields is any more necessary to man s highest development than is killing by individuals

The only hope for world peace and for an economic recovery lies in the organized efforts of sovereign nations co operating ot remove the causes of war and to substitute law and order for violence

Under democratic leadership a practical plan was devised under which fifty-four nations are now operating and which has for its fundamental purpose the co operation of all nations in the work of peace

The government of the United States for the last four years has had no foreign policy and consequently it has delayed the restoration of the political and economic aencies of the world It has impaired our self respect at home and injured our prestige abroad It has curtailed our foreign markets and ruined our agricultural prices

It is of supreme importance to civilization and to mankind that America be placed and kept on the right side of the greatest moral question of all time and therefore the democratic party renews its declaration of confidence in the ideal of world peace the league of nations and the world court of justice as together constituting the supreme effort of the statesmanship and religious conviction of our time to organize the world for peace

Further the democratic party declares that it will be the purpose of the nevt administration to do all in its power to secure for our country that moral leadership in the family of nations which in the providence of God has been so clearly marked out for it There is no substitute for the league of nations as an agency for working for peace therefore we believe that in the interest of permanent peace and in the lifting of the great burdens of war from the backs of the people and to establish a permanent foreign policy on these supreme questions not subject to change with chaneg of party administration it is desirable it is wise and necessary to lift this question out of party politics and to that end to take the sense of the American people a referendum election advisory to the government to be held officially under act of congress free from all other questions and candidacies after ample time for full consideration and discussion throughout the country upon the question in substance as follows

Shall the United States become a member of the league of nations upon such reservations or amendments to the covenant of the league as the president and the senate of the United States may agree upon?

Immediately upon affirmative vote we will carry out such mandate

This can be accomplished by fixing the days of convening the congress immediately after biennial, national elections; and to this end we favor granting the right to the people of the several states to vote on proposed constitutional amendments on this subject.

Campaign Contributions.

The nation knows now that the predatory interests have, by supplying republican campaign funds, systematically purchased legislative favors and administrative imunity. Thep ractice must stop. Our nation must return to honesty and decency in politics. Elections are public affairs conducted for the sole purpose of ascertaining the will of the soverign voters, therefore, we demand that national elections shall hereafter be kept free from the poison of excessive private contributions. To this end we favor reasonable means of publicity at public expense, so that candidates, properly before the people for federal offices may present their claims at a minimum of cost. We favor the prohibition of individual contributions, direct and indirect, to the campagn fund of congressman, senators or presidential candidates beyond a reasonable sum to be fixed in the law for both individual contribution and total expenditues with requirements for full publicity. We declare that it is now our liberty and our duty to keep our promise to these people by granting them immediate independence which they so honorably covet.

An adequate form of local self government for Alaska must be provided and to that end we favor the establishment of a full territorial form of government for that territory similar to that enjoyed by all the territories except Alaska during the last century of American history.

Flood Control, Water Transportation.

We favor a policy for the fostering and building up of water transportation through the improvement of in-land waterways and the removal of discrimination against water transportation. Flood control and the lowering of flood levels is essential to the safety of life and property, the prodectivity of our lands, the navigability of our streams and the reclaiming of our wet and overflowed lands and the creation of hydro-electric power. We favor the expeditious construction of flood relief work on the Mississippi and Colorado Rivers and also such reclamation and irrigation projects upon the Colorado river as may be found feasible and practical.

We favor liberal appropriations for prompt surveys by the United States to determine the possibilities of general navigation improvements and water power development of the navigable streams and their tributaries, to secure reliable information as to the most economical navigation improvement, in combination with the most efficient and complete development of water power.

We favor the suspension of the granting of federal water power licenses by the federal water power commission until congress has received reports from the water commission with regard to applications for such licenses.

Fraudulent Stock Sales.

We favor the immediate passage of such legislation as may be necessary to enable the states efficiently to enforce their laws relating to the gradual financial strangling of innocent investors, workers and consumers caused by the indiscriminating promotion, financing and reorganizing of corporation on an inflated and over-capitalized basis, resulting already in the undermining and collapse of many railroads, public service and industrial corporations, manifesting itself in unemployment, irreparable loss and waste and which constitutes a serious menace to the stability of our economic system.

Private Monopolies.

The federal trade commission has submitted to the republican administration numerous reports showing the existence of monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade and has recommended proceedings against these violators of the law. The few prosecutions which have resulted from this abundant evidence furnished by this agency created by the democratic party while proving the indifference of the administration to the violations of the law by trusts and monopolies and its friendship for them nevertheless to demonstrate the value of the federal trade commission. We declare that a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable and pledge the democratic party to vigorous enforcement of existing laws against monopolies and illegal combinations and the enactment of such further measures as may be necessary.

Aviation.

We favor development of aviation both by the government and commercial.

Labor and Child Welfare.

Labor is not a commodity; it is human. We favor collective bargaining and laws regulating hours of labor and conditions under which labor is performed We favor the enactment of legislation providing that the product of convict labor shipped from one state to another, will be subject to the laws of the latter exactly as though they had ben produced therein. In order to mitigate unemployment attending business depression we urge the enactment of public works be initiated in periods of acute unemployment.

We pledge the party to co-operate with the state governments, for the education, welfare and protection of child life and all necessary safeguards against exhaustive debilitating employment conditions for women.

Without the votes of democratic leaders of the congress the child labor amendment would not have been submitted for ratification.

League of Nations.

The democratic party pledges all its energies to the outlaying of the whole war system. We refuse to believe that the wholesale slaughter of human beings on the battlefields is any more necessary to man's highest development than is killing by individuals.

The only hope for world, peace and for an economic recovery lies in the organized efforts of sovereign nations co-operating ot remove the causes of war and to substitute law and order for violence.

Under democratic leadership a practical plan was devised under which fifty-four nations are now operating and which has for its fundamental purpose the co-operation of all nations in the work of peace.

The government of the United States for the last four years has had no foreign policy and consequently it has delayed the restoration of the political and economic aencies of the world. It has impaired our self respect at home and injured our prestige abroad. It has curtailed our foreign markets and ruined our agricultural prices.

It is of supreme importance to civilization and to mankind that America be placed and kept on the right side of the greatest moral question of all time and therefore the democratic party renews its declaration of confidence in the ideal of world peace, the league of nations and the world court of justice as together constituting the supreme effort of the statesmanship and religious conviction of our time to organize the world for peace.

Further the democratic party declares that it will be the purpose of the nevt administration to do all in its power to secure for our country that moral leadership in the family of nations which in the providence of God has been so clearly marked out for it. There is no substitute for the league of nations as an agency for working for peace; therefore we believe that in the interest of permanent peace, and in the lifting of the great burdens of war from the backs of the people and to establish a permanent foreign policy on these supreme questions, not subject to change with chaneg of party administration it is desirable, it is wise and necessary to lift this question out of party politics and to that end to take the sense of the Amercan people a referendum election, advisory to the government to be held officially under act of congress, free from all other questions and candidacies, after ample time for full consideration and discussion throughout the country upon the question in substance as follows:

"Shall the United States become a member of the league of nations upon such reservations or amendments to the covenant of the league as the president and the senate of the United States may agree upon?"

Immediately upon affirmative vote we will carry out such mandate.

CROQUET CAUSES PRIMROSE BATTLE

Claimed Minister Denounced Sunday Entertainment of Children.

PRIMROSE, Neb., June 28.—The trouble between the Rev. G. E. Eaves pastor of the Presbyterian church, and L. H. Whitman, editor and postmaster, had its beginning when the pastor made a denouncing reference from the pulpit to the editor's two little children, playing croquet on Sunday, it was said here Saturday.

The editorial on the pastor not patronizing "home industry" with his printing was the editor's answer to this, it was stated, and the clash at the postoffice when the pastor was knocked down by Emmett Thoms, the editor's helper, was another chapter.

Thoms pleaded guilty before Judge Allard and was fined $25 and costs, totaling $42. Whitman, who stood trial, was found guilty by a jury of six men and fined the same amount. He was held to have been an accessory.

The town hall, where the trial was held, was too small to hold the crowd which tried to get in.

Mr. Whitman denied striking the pastor or shoving him back from the door when Thoms hit him again.

The pastor testified Whitman had stood at the back door and blocked his escape and suggested the best way out of the trouble would be to sweep the floor as Thoms had demanded of him.

The Rev. Eaves admitted dropping some paper on the floor, but said he did not do it willfully.

Whitman and Thoms said the pastor the day before the assault, had taken a circular from his post office box and torn it to bits on the floor. They warned him then not to do it again, they asserted.

Cowgill Asserts Muny Coal Yard Makes Fair Profit

Denial that the municipal coal yard is not paying legitimate expenses and that it is "sponging off the city" is made by City Commissioner A. P. Cowgill in charge of this branch of the city's business. The yard makes a fair profit, Cowgill declares.

Cowgill says that after paying all expenses he has made a profit of $3,792.74 for the city, and that he devotes only half of his time to this business.

The muny yard is treated as a private business, he says, and is not entering into unfair competition with any dealer.

Ten Millionth Car Made By Factory Sent On Cross Continent Journey.

From New York to Philadelphia, and then out toward the setting sun, the tenth millionth was accompanied by many other Ford cars sent out by dealers along the way to do honor to this historic member of the great Ford family.

Its arrival immediately attracted thousands of passers-by on the famous thoroughfare. J. Science Will Seek Birthplace of Man In China Deserts

Having established to their own satisfaction the fact that man existed 600,000 years ago, scientists will now attempt to trace his origin back

Led by Roy Chapman Andrews, who returned from Asia a year ago with a nest of twenty six dinosaur eggs ten million years old, another expedition sailed from the United States May 25 for China Thence the party will proceed into the heart of the Gobi desert, in Mongolia, where it is hoped a 5-year search will reveal further amazing secrets concerning the early life of man, beast and reptile

As in the previous expedition, the scientists will rely on American-built motor cars and trucks for transportation, although roads are unknown in most of the vast territory to be explored. Mr. Andrews recently visited Dodge Brothers' factory in Detroit, where five cars were being equipped for the expedition

Fifteen scientists representing twelve branches of learning, chosen from 4,000 applicants constitute the party.

In their quest the scientists will push farther west than they have ever gone before, working both to the north and the south of the Altai mountains. As the beginning of exploration will be made about 1,000 miles from the nearest base, Kalgan, it will be necessary to organize with especial care Arrangements have been made for 200 camels to carry provisions ahead of the motor trucks.

Dilution—The Greatest Evil.

Admixture of fuel with the lubricating oil in the crankcase of the engine is an evil that exists in all classes of cars regardless of make or model. It is present and must be tolerated. Careful observation for the detection of its first symptoms, together with a few precautions, will as a rule avoid real trouble.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Care of Idle Tubes.

Inner tubes that are stored should be placed in hot water at least once a month in order to keep them soft and pliable

Inspection of Starter Cable.

As the starter cable is protected in no way whatsoever it should be frequently inspected. Any fraying of the insulation, allowing the bare wire to touch the metal of the car, is likely to cause trouble

To Stop Brake Noises.

Never oil brake linings to stop squeaks This noise is caused by the lining becoming glazed or rivets making contact with metal brake drum If squeaks become annoying it is best to consult a mechanic at the service station or a brake expert.

Give Memos to the Mechanic.

Along with the breaks, knocks, and squeaks, with which a motorist supplies the repairman when having the car overhauled, a record of oil and gasoline consumption should also be furnished This will greatly assist the mechanic in going after many of the direct faults of the engine.

Plugs in Cylinders Break.

In fitting a spark plug in a cold cylinder be very careful not to screw it too tight. The principal cause of the breakage of the porcelain insulators is the expansion of metal when the engines get hot, thereby exerting a crushing effect on the plug and resulting in a cracked insulator

Cylinder Oil.

The careful engine operator never uses too much oil in the engine, for it will form carbon in the compression chamber, foul the spark plugs, and cause improper ignition. The oil gauge should be inspected every morning to see that the proper amount of oil is in the engine

Getting the Most from "Gas."

Gasoline mileage depends largely upon proper carburetor adjustment. Have the carburetor carefully adjusted by an experienced mechanic It is also well to check over connections between the carburetor and intake manifold opening and the cylinder block to see if there are leaks A small gasoline leak around the carburetor or somewhere along the line which carries the fuel from the main supply tank to the carburetor may cause trouble.

Brake Linings.

When brakes need lining, it is wise to insist upon the highest quality lining and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give a better and safer job.

Dangers of Loose Steering Gear.

When a car will not hold the road, even at moderate speed, and requires constant juggling of the steering wheel to keep it traveling in a straight line, it is generally due to looseness in the steering gear.

To Focus Headlights.

The bulb in some some automobile headlights can be moved slightly backward or forward by adjusting a small set screw To focus a bulb, allow light to shine on a wall 25 feet away ove bulb backward or forward until the circle of light on wall is of smallest possible diameter. The majority of headlight devices call for this adjustment. A few call for an adjustment either behind or ahead of the focal centre; correct adjustments for either position give largest possible spot of light without a dark or shaded centre.

Carburetor Adjustment.

Let the engine warm up thoroughly by running for 15 to 20 minutes before adjusting the carburetor. The mixture will be altogether too rich if any attempt is made to adjust the carburetor when the engine is cold.

A Wise Precaution.

When driving the car out of the garage, apply the brakes a few times, especially when the car has been washed. This test will not only assure the condition of the brakes, but will squeeze and dry out the water from linings.

Worth Knowing.

For tightening or loosening a nut, the wrench should be applied with the mouth facing the direction in which the nut is to be turned. Thus the leverage of the wrench arm is against the nut, rather than away from it, and is much more effective. If the wrench is used properly and the nut still sticks, two wrenches might be used, one at each end of the nut, and worked toward each other. This gives double leverage against the recalcitrant nut.

Care of the Transmission.

Because of their tendency to clog the small passages which carry oil to the clutch release bearing, greases and heavy oils should not be used in the transmission. Use a medium grade of engine oil of good quality. Lack of sufficient lubrication at this point causes excessive wear. Do not use a heavy lubricant such as is used in the rear axle At intervals of 1,000 miles, thoroughly drain the transmission and wash with kerosene. Refill with fresh oil.

Soft tires consume much power as well as bring about much wear on them.

The battery should never be allowed to become so far discharged that it will not operate the coil.

New adjustment screws in the valve lifters will often reduce the noise coming from the engine.

Allowing the clutch to engage suddenly results in heavy strains upon the entire driving mechanism.

A brake lining that has worn down to one-sixteenth of an inch at any point should be replaced immediately.

The wearing of the fan hub bearings results in a wobble of the fan pulleys. Too much wobble will cause rattling.

Keep a firm grip on the wheel when meeting another car. The swift passing car will create a sudden gust of wind that may throw the car off course as quickly as an unexpected hole in the road.

Using poor oil or old oil in automobile engines is costly, and will eventually cause bearing trouble as well as scored cylinders.

Never use too much pressure on the sponge or chamois when drying the body of the car after washing, as to do so will dull the lustre.

Whenever a wheel fitted with a cup and cone bearing is removed, the cup of the bearing is removed with it, and the bearin gmust be adjusted in replacing the wheel.

Carelessness in washing the car will sometimes cause spark coil trouble.

Excessive wear will result if the universal joints are not properly lubricated.

Every bearing needs additional care in the summer to keep dust out and the lubrication in

Pistons must run practically airtight in the cylinder, otherwise power is lost by escaping gas.

When grinding valves care must be taken to see that none of the compound works into the cylinders.

When the clutch refuses to work properly the trouble is either a spinning clutch or a seized bearing.

Excessive heat will cause a piston to seize or expand to such an extent as to become wedged in the cylinders

The best way to clean the glass on a car is to dip a clean cloth in gasoline and rub over the surface Then use a dry cloth.

Inspections Save Battery Troubles In Warm Weather

Hot weather, just like extremely cold weather, is a danger period in the life of any storage battery unless the proper care is given it. So warns Mr. Robb, local Willard service station dealer.

"Summer weather is probably the most dangerous time the battery must pass through because the automobile is used more during this period. This is the time when overheating a battery is liable to happen," says Mr. Robb.

"Motorists as an average are prone to forget or neglect keeping the battery filled with pure distilled water in hot weather This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but results in considerable expense later

"Overheating of a battery may result from an undercharged condition continuing or some time.

"When undercharged for some time, plates become hardened and offer greater resistance to the charging current. This starved condition may be due to the inexperience or lack of knowledge on the part of the driver, who does not use judgment in operating his lights, or who uses the starter oftener than necessary. If the battery were in a normal condition this would not occur.

"Periodic inspection of your battery's condition during hot summer weather by a battery service station is about the best sort of trouble insurance you can carry," concludes Mr. Robb.

YORK COLLEGE NOTES

R. C. Russell of Lincoln has been elected as all-year-coach for York college next year

The summer session of this year has the largest enrollment in the history of the institution. There is an increase of about thirty-five over last summer.

President Emery is expected to arrive in York about the last of this week He has been inattendance at conventions and other meetings, and found it imposible to come sooner.

Dean Ashcraft is in the field this summer working for students, and reports very good success Principal Drier of the local high school takes his place teaching in the summer school.

Each Wednesday morning the chapel exercises are turned over to the students. A number of very interesting musical programs have been given .

The Eight Weeks club, which is the summer Y. W. C. A., has held four meetings, with splendid attendance and a great deal of interest The first meeting took the form of a receuption for the summer school students; and each Thursday evening either a program or social time is planned. A week ago Thursday the girls were entertained at the home of Mildred and Minnie Nelson, in the country, and this Thursday another country meeting is being planned.

Prospects for the fall term are the best ever reported. With the new president and coach, York expects to do great things.

Walter P. Chrysler says Maxwell Now Sets a New Pace.

The good Maxwell is displaying the possibilities of the four-cylinder car, in the very things people want in motor cars, in a way they have never been demonstrated before.

With the active participation of the Chrysler Six engineering staff, the process of betterment begun three years ago was tremendously accelerated.

Knowing that the latest Maxwell developments approach the revolutionary in both practice and results, I have every justification in the world for calling Maxwell a most wonderful four-cylinder car.

The difference in the way the Maxwell rides and drives and steers will impress you instantly.

You will be expecting the vibration you've always felt behind a four-cylinder engine.

But you will be delightfully disappointed—and surprised. For we have taken that vibration away from Maxwell. It's gone.

The device which accomplishes this result in Maxwell—for the first time, we believe, in a four-cylinder car—is nothing more than a floating platform spring under the front end of the motor—but it is exclusive to Maxwell.

You can safely count on 22 miles to the gallon or better, and 18,000 miles per set of tires. Those figures are not ours, but the average of Maxwell owner reports.

Main bearings rarely if ever replaced; a longer-lived, smoother-running car because vibration is practically eliminated.

That's the way we are building the good Maxwell today—with a far greater proportion of costly alloy steels than is usual at its price.

Those are the results which I want to drive home to every man and woman who is in the market for a car.

You probably have your own ideas about a motor car and what you want it to do.

The most I ask is that you compare Maxwell riding and driving and performance with those ideas of yours, and then decide for yourself whether any other four you know of can match up to Maxwell.

Leaving Times Square the ten millionth Ford proceeded to the ferry crossing to Jersey City where dealers of that metropolis were awaiting to greet it, and extended to it a big welcome. The trip down through New Jersey was a continual and triumphant procession, Ford dealers in each city joining with others in escorting it along the way.

The car is being sent across the country in celebration of 10,000,000 production by the Ford Motor company.

Science Will Seek Birthplace of Man In China Deserts

Having established to their own satisfaction the fact that man existed 600,000 years ago, scientists will now attempt to trace his origin back

Led by Roy Chapman Andrews, who returned from Asia a year ago with a nest of twenty-six dinosaur eggs ten million years old, another expedition sailed from the United States May 25 for China. Thence the party will proceed into the heart of the Gobi desert, in Mongolia, where it is hoped a 5-year search will reveal further amazing secrets concerning the early life of man, beast and reptile.

As in the previous expedition, the scientists will rely on American-built motor cars and trucks for transportation, although roads are unknown in most of the vast territory to be explored. Mr. Andrews recently visited Dodge Brothers' factory in Detroit, where five cars were being equipped for the expedition.

Fifteen scientists representing twelve branches of learning, chosen from 4,000 applicants constitute the party.

In their quest the scientists will push farther west than they have ever gone before, working both to the north and the south of the Altai mountains. As the beginning of exploration will be made about 1,000 miles from the nearest base, Kalgan, it will be necessary to organize with especial care. Arrangements have been made for 200 camels to carry provisions ahead of the motor trucks.

Dilution—The Greatest Evil.

Admixture of fuel with the lubricating oil in the crankcase of the engine is an evil that exists in all classes of cars regardless of make or model. It is present and must be tolerated. Careful observation for the detection of its first symptoms, together with a few precautions, will as a rule avoid real trouble.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Care of Idle Tubes.

Inner tubes that are stored should be placed in hot water at least once a month in order to keep them soft and pliable.

Inspection of Starter Cable.

As the starter cable is protected in no way whatsoever, it should be frequently inspected. Any fraying of the insulation, allowing the bare wire to touch the metal of the car, is likely to cause trouble.

To Stop Brake Noises.

Never oil brake linings to stop squeaks. This noise is caused by the lining becoming glazed or rivets making contact with metal brake drum. If squeaks become annoying it is best to consult a mechanic at the service station or a brake expert.

Give Memos to the Mechanic.

Along with the breaks, knocks, and squeaks, with which a motorist supplies the repairman when having the car overhauled, a record of oil and gasoline consumption should also be furnished. This will greatly assist the mechanic in going after many of the direct faults of the engine.

Plugs in Cylinders Break.

In fitting a spark plug in a cold cylinder be very careful not to screw it too tight. The principal cause of the breakage of the porcelain insulators is the expansion of metal when the engines get hot, thereby exerting a crushing effect on the plug and resulting in a cracked insulator.

Cylinder Oil.

The careful engine operator never uses too much oil in the engine, for it will form carbon in the compression chamber, foul the spark plugs, and cause improper ignition. The oil gauge should be inspected every morning to see that the proper amount of oil is in the engine.

Getting the Most from "Gas."

Gasoline mileage depends largely upon proper carburetor adjustment. Have the carburetor carefully adjusted by an experienced mechanic. It is also well to check over connections between the carburetor and intake manifold opening and the cylinder block to see if there are leaks. A small gasoline leak around the carburetor or somewhere along the line which carries the fuel from the main supply tank to the carburetor may cause trouble.

Brake Linings.

When brakes need lining, it is wise to insist upon the highest quality lining and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give a better and safer job.

Dangers of Loose Steering Gear.

When a car will not hold the road, even at moderate speed, and requires constant juggling of the steering wheel to keep it traveling in a straight line, it is generally due to looseness in the steering gear.

To Focus Headlights.

The bulb in some some automobile headlights can be moved slightly backward or forward by adjusting a small set screw. To focus a bulb, allow light to shine on a wall 25 feet away. ove bulb backward or forward until the circle of light on wall is of smallest possible diameter. The majority of headlight devices call for this adjustment. A few call for an adjustment either behind or ahead of the focal centre; correct adjustments for either position give largest possible spot of light without a dark or shaded centre.

Carburetor Adjustment.

Let the engine warm up thoroughly by running for 15 to 20 minutes before adjusting the carburetor. The mixture will be altogether too rich if any attempt is made to adjust the carburetor when the engine is cold.

A Wise Precaution.

When driving the car out of the garage, apply the brakes a few times, especially when the car has been washed. This test will not only assure the condition of the brakes, but will squeeze and dry out the water from linings.

Worth Knowing.

For tightening or loosening a nut, the wrench should be applied with the mouth facing the direction in which the nut is to be turned. Thus the leverage of the wrench arm is against the nut, rather than away from it, and is much more effective. If the wrench is used properly and the nut still sticks, two wrenches might be used, one at each end of the nut, and worked toward each other. This gives double leverage against the recalcitrant nut.

Care of the Transmission.

Because of their tendency to clog the small passages which carry oil to the clutch release bearing, greases and heavy oils should not be used in the transmission. Use a medium grade of engine oil of good quality. Lack of sufficient lubrication at this point causes excessive wear. Do not use a heavy lubricant such as is used in the rear axle. At intervals of 1,000 miles, thoroughly drain the transmission and wash with kerosene. Refill with fresh oil.

Soft tires consume much power as well as bring about much wear on them.

The battery should never be allowed to become so far discharged that it will not operate the coil.

New adjustment screws in the valve lifters will often reduce the noise coming from the engine.

Allowing the clutch to engage suddenly results in heavy strains upon the entire driving mechanism.

A brake lining that has worn down to one-sixteenth of an inch at any point should be replaced immediately.

The wearing of the fan hub bearings results in a wobble of the fan pulleys. Too much wobble will cause rattling.

Keep a firm grip on the wheel when meeting another car. The swift passing car will create a sudden gust of wind that may throw the car off course as quickly as an unexpected hole in the road.

Using poor oil or old oil in automobile engines is costly, and will eventually cause bearing trouble as well as scored cylinders.

Never use too much pressure on the sponge or chamois when drying the body of the car after washing, as to do so will dull the lustre.

Whenever a wheel fitted with a cup and cone bearing is removed, the cup of the bearing is removed with it, and the bearin gmust be adjusted in replacing the wheel.

Carelessness in washing the car will sometimes cause spark coil trouble.

Excessive wear will result if the universal joints are not properly lubricated.

Every bearing needs additional care in the summer to keep dust out and the lubrication in.

Pistons must run practically airtight in the cylinder, otherwise power is lost by escaping gas.

When grinding valves care must be taken to see that none of the compound works into the cylinders.

When the clutch refuses to work properly the trouble is either a spinning clutch or a seized bearing.

Excessive heat will cause a piston to seize or expand to such an extent as to become wedged in the cylinders.

The best way to clean the glass on a car is to dip a clean cloth in gasoline and rub over the surface. Then use a dry cloth.

Inspections Save Battery Troubles In Warm Weather

Hot weather, just like extremely cold weather, is a danger period in the life of any storage battery unless the proper care is given it. So warns Mr. Robb, local Willard service station dealer.

"Summer weather is probably the most dangerous time the battery must pass through because the automobile is used more during this period. This is the time when overheating a battery is liable to happen," says Mr. Robb.

"Motorists as an average are prone to forget or neglect keeping the battery filled with pure distilled water in hot weather. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but results in considerable expense later.

"Overheating of a battery may result from an undercharged condition continuing for some time.

"When undercharged for some time, plates become hardened and offer greater resistance to the charging current. This starved condition may be due to the inexperience or lack of knowledge on the part of the driver, who does not use judgment in operating his lights, or who uses the starter oftener than necessary. If the battery were in a normal condition this would not occur.

"Periodic inspection of your battery's condition during hot summer weather by a battery service station is about the best sort of trouble insurance you can carry," concludes Mr. Robb.

YORK COLLEGE NOTES

R. C. Russell of Lincoln has been elected as all-year-coach for York college next year.

The summer session of this year has the largest enrollment in the history of the institution. There is an increase of about thirty-five over last summer.

President Emery is expected to arrive in York about the last of this week. He has been inattendance at conventions and other meetings, and found it imposible to come sooner.

Dean Ashcraft is in the field this summer working for students, and reports very good success. Principal Drier of the local high school takes his place teaching in the summer school.

Each Wednesday morning the chapel exercises are turned over to the students. A number of very interesting musical programs have been given .

The Eight Weeks club, which is the summer Y. W. C. A., has held four meetings, with splendid attendance and a great deal of interest. The first meeting took the form of a receuption for the summer school students; and each Thursday evening either a program or social time is planned. A week ago Thursday the girls were entertained at the home of Mildred and Minnie Nelson, in the country, and this Thursday another country meeting is being planned.

Prospects for the fall term are the best ever reported. With the new president and coach, York expects to do great things.

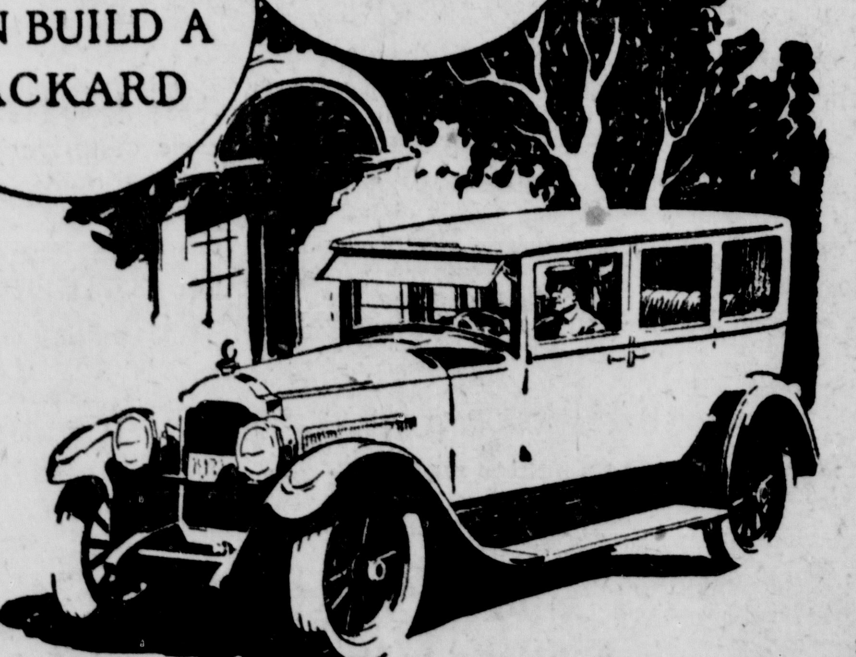
THE LAST 5 YEARS

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

ONLY PACKARD CAN BUILD A PACKARD



Any car will run pretty well for 2 or 3 years. Some can be made to go 7 or 8.

But the maintenance cost is outrageous—and the racket and rattles kill the joy.

The Packard Six is built good enough to run smoothly, sweetly and economically 7 or 10 years—and does it.

Every mile in every year, a Packard mile is one of comfort and economy.

16 to 18 miles and up from a gallon of gas, 500 to 800 miles and up to the gallon of oil, 20,000 miles and more from the set of tires.

And the last mile in the last year in true Packard style—

Even then a better car than the ordinary car at the end of 2 or 3 years.

Ask us to prove it.

Many prefer to take advantage of Packard's extremely liberal time payment plan to enjoy immediately the advantages of a Packard Six or Packard Eight—purchasing out of income instead of capital, just as practically all other necessities are now bought

Walter P. Chrysler says Maxwell Now Sets a New Pace

The good Maxwell is displaying the possibilities of the four-cylinder car, in the very things people want in motor cars, in a way they have never been demonstrated before.

With the active participation of the Chrysler Six engineering staff, the process of betterment begun three years ago was tremendously accelerated.

Knowing that the latest Maxwell developments approach the revolutionary in both practice and results, I have every justification in the world for calling Maxwell a most wonderful four-cylinder car.

The difference in the way the Maxwell rides and drives and steers will impress you instantly.

You will be expecting the vibration you've always felt behind a four-cylinder engine.

But you will be delightfully disappointed—and surprised. For we have taken that vibration away from Maxwell. It's gone.

The device which accomplishes this result in Maxwell—for the first time, we believe, in a four-cylinder car—is nothing more than a floating platform spring under the front end of the motor—but it is exclusive to Maxwell.

You can safely count on 22 miles to the gallon or better, and 18,000 miles per set of tires. Those figures are not ours, but the average of Maxwell owner reports.

Main bearings rarely if ever replaced; a longer-lived, smoother-running car because vibration is practically eliminated.

That's the way we are building the good Maxwell today—with a far greater proportion of costly alloy steels than is usual at its price.

Those are the results which I want to drive home to every man and woman who is in the market for a car.

You probably have your own ideas about a motor car and what you want it to do.

The most I ask is that you compare Maxwell riding and driving and performance with those ideas of yours, and then decide for yourself whether any other four you know of can match up to Maxwell.

World's Greatest Crisis Impending, Declares Toutjian

"The greatest crisis the world has ever known is impending," S. H. Toutjian, representative of the international Bible Students association, declared in an address Friday evening before an audience at 1223 P street. "Great statesmen freely admit that the impending doom of civilization moves steadily onward. Unprecedented preparations for the coming war are being made by all nations." Ramsay Macdonald and David Lloyd George were quoted by Mr. Toutjian to support this contention.

"False standards are disrupting present civilization, because of the corruption, scandals and profiteering in nearly all walks of life's activities," he continued.

"The end of the world (Matthew 24:3) refers to the end of the system or arrangement of things prevailing on the earth. The earth will never be destroyed; but the elements of social, commercial and religious corruption of the earth shall melt with fervid heat—the heat of commotion, friction and discord, caused by hatred, selfishness and pride."

CONTRACT FOR BOND SALE UP

City Council to Consider Disposition of $454,700 Special Issue.

Will Also Buy Furnishing and Finishing Hardware For New Hospital.

Awarding of the contract involving the sale of special assessment bonds of the city of Lincoln aggregating $454,700 will be the outstanding business to come before the city council at its meeting Monday afternoon Bids for the bonds were opened Saturday morning at the city hall by City Treasurer George Dayton and City Clerk Theo. Berg. The issue is the largest ever sold by the city and represents paving done in forty-three districts and water extensions in sixteen different parts of the city.

In addition to the awarding the contract for the bonds the council will also consider the awarding of the contract for furnishing finishing hardware for the new City hospital The contract for the building of a new fire house at Thirteenth and F street will also be up for consideration. Bids on both were opened Saturday morning by City Engineer D. L Erickson.

For the bond issues the White-Phillips company of Davenport, Ia., was the best bidder and the Lahr Hardware company on the hospital hardware. The bid of R. O Stake was the lowest on the fire house.

Another matter that will demand the attention of the council Monday will be the damage claims of Earl Cumming and Christina Cumming, living at 122 South Twenty-fifth street. The claims are for $25 and $1,000, the latter filed by Mr. Cumming, and are the outgrowth of employees of the street department acting under orders of Commissioner Cowgill, taking a gutter crossing from in front of the Cumming home.

In his claim Mr. Cumming alleges that because the gutter bridge was taken away without notice having been given, he drove his automobile against the curb at night and damaged the car and himself suffered grievous injuries. Christina Cumming's claim was to cover the cost of the bridge which she alleges the street department employes carried away and would not return when she asked for it

The request of the Burlington railroad for a right of way along Second street from P street to K street is also scheduled for consideration. The request was made to the council a week ago but action was deferred until the commissioners could make an inspection of the proposed route. The right of way will be used for trackage to the Lancaster county work shops south of K street.

Other business will include the passage of ordinances on third reading and the reading of a number of new ordinances for the first time.

Newton D. Baker Collapses Exhausted After Dramatic Plea For League of Nations Plank

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, June 28.—Climaxing two hours of fervid debate in which charges and counter charges of "deserting Woodrow Wilson" were hurled heatedly from the speaker's platform and just as heatedly denied, the democratic national convention voted down, 742 to 352, in Madison Square Garden tonight, a platform plank which would have pledged the party to carry the United States into the League of Nations, and forecast the adoption of a plank which puts the party on record as favoring a referendum by the American people on America's entrance.

The uncompromising league plank was fathered and fought for by Newton D Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson, who made one of the most dramatic speeches ever heard in a political convention in its favor, and then worn out by days of fighting, collapsed exhausted as he finished his oratorical effort.

Baker took the platform at 6:40. The former secretary of war looked tired, but there was the light of battle in his eyes. He spoke for his own plank.

With tears starting from his eyes he declared:

"The man who should be pleading this case here is gone. He lies in consecrated grounds on the heights of Mount Saint Albans. I am here pleading for him, for his memory."

Denounces Majority.

Baker denounced the majority proposal for a referendum as "the most fantastic scheme ever evolved in a political convention." He demanded to know how this referendum was to be accomplished.

Baker's speech was a monumental effort. Tired to the point of exhaustion, his emotion got the better of him several times and he literally threw himself across the speaker's table behind which he was standing. His hair was awry, his eyes flashing. He ran the gamut of sarcasm, humor, pathos.

"I am not speaking to democrats, my friends. I am speaking to lovers of mankind," he declared.

Baker referred to Senator Lodge, who is credited with having defeated the league in the senate.

"And when I speak of Lodge," he said, "I speak of him not as a man, but as a malevolent institution."

Great cheers greeted this quip.

Says Following Lodge.

"Well," Baker continued, "if you cheer that, think solemnly of what I say, that the majority of your committee on resolutions is following Henry Cabot Lodge in the most evil acts of his life in this report they have laid before you. They are substituting the leadership of Lodge for the leadership of Woodrow Wilson.

"There is no authority under the constitution for the referendum they propose. I think their whole proposal is unconstitutional."

Baker said there was one sure way of getting into the league—if the democratic party really wants to go in—and that is to elect democratic senators to the senate with "courage enough to put us in."

He declared that if the majority proposal was adopted, the republican newspapers of the country would tell the world tomorrow in flaming headlines, "That the democratic convention repudiates Woodrow Wilson."

Tells of Experiences.

He then switched to his experiences as secretary of war. He said he closed the eyes of dying soldiers in France, who had asked him to deliver but two messages, one that their mothers be informed of their ends, and, second that there be erected in the world some instrument of peace that would not make their death in vain.

"I served Woodrow Wilson five years," he said, eyes and arms uplifted. "He is standing before the throne of a just God whose commendation he has won. Here with my weak voice, I can lift up my eyes to him and say, 'I've kept the faith. I have tried. You are still the captain of my soul.'"

Baker virtually collapsed as he staggered back from the rostrum and fell into the arms of his friends

Helped Into Chair.

Perspiration dripped from his face. Joseph P Tumulty and Rabbi Wise of New York helped him into a chair, and he sat shaking with emotion.

Pandemonium was loose again in the garden.

Roar after roar of applause greeted his finish. The band struck up "Onward Christian Soldiers", and the noise increased.

Friend or foe of the league, they cheered Baker's plucky fight and his undoubted fervor and sincerity. But more than these, they seemed to admire his gameness.

Baker gave twelve minutes of his remaining time to Rabbi Wise who declared that "the honor of the American people was plighted" in this league fight and that "Newton D. Baker deserves a niche on high for lifting us up in this sacred hour."

"The only referendum the democratic party needs," he said, "is a candidate standing four square on a League of Nations platform." He proposed as that the republican party has claimed to be "the party of Lincoln, let this party remain the party of Woodrow Wilson."

Senator Harris of Georgia took up the gavel as Rabbi Wise finished

Senator Pittman Replies.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada then came up for rebuttal to close the debate for the majority of the committee. He declared that the majority report was written by friends of Woodrow Wilson." He spoke of Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was the democratic leader of the senate during the league fight.

"Gilbert Hitchcock sacrificed himself and his political fortunes on the altar of Woodrow Wilson," he declared, "and that is more than the gentleman from Ohio (Baker) has done.

"I don't mind how much they may criticize this proposal," he declared heatedly, "but I refuse to stand for the charge that we are deserting Woodrow Wilson. We are not trying to stay out of the league—we are trying to get in."

Hisses Greet Remark.

A volume of hisses broke out at this and they were stopped only by Walsh's gravel.

When they subsided, Pittman went on:

"I don't care how much they may criticize this plank, but I want you to know, as he must know, that the thirty-five men who signed this report are just as honest and sincere as he is."

Chairman Walsh announced the debate ended. He called for a vote on the adoption of the minority report.

Walsh explained that a vote "aye" would mean a vote for the adoption of the Baker plan and a vote "no" would mean a vote in favor of the majority committee report, proposing the referendum.

The vote was: Aye, 353; no, 742

As soon as the league fight was over the convention plunged ahead into a far more bitter and acrimonious controversy—the klan.

CHICKENS BRING LARGE PROFITS

Alexandria Man Makes Three Dollars An Hour By Fattening Fowls.

Use Of Special Feeding Methods Produces Weight Very Rapidly.

Three dollars an hour for labor was the return received by John Glaum of Alexandria, Neb., in crate fattening his White Leghorn cockerels this spring, according to a report sent in to the agricultural college poultry department recently.

The 534 cockerels weighed 567 pounds when put on feed and 803 pounds at the close of a 10 day feeding period. The gain was 23 pounds He was offered 35 cents a pound or $198 27 for them at the beginning of the period He sold them at 40 cents a pound in Omaha after having fed them the 10 day period The difference was $128 42. Feed cost $17.31 and express to Omaha was $18.00, making the total expenses $35 31. The net profit was $93 11 or over $3 00 an hour for the 30 hours which he spent in setting up the crates, caring for the chickens, and shipping them to Omaha

The logical place to finish surplus poultry is on the farm or poultry plant where it is produced, thinks the agricultural college poultrymen in commenting upon results obtained by Mr. Glaum. As well as increasing the weight in a short period of time, the quality of the meat will be improved by the quick feed. The birds should be confined to a crate and gradually fed on a mixture of finely ground corn and wheat bran in equal parts of white shorts or ground oats, all mixed to a consistency of thin mortar with sour milk or buttermilk. After they are on feed, the birds should be given what they will readily clean up of this batter three times a day.

With good conditions it is easily possible to get gains from 20 to 40 per cent of the original weight, during the fattening period Birds that have been fed this way are known as "milk feds" and command a higher price, especially when sold to a dealer who buys on a quality basis It may be practical for a time to sell to a special trade.

The practices as to length of period, feed, will vary somewhat with the size age, type, etc of the birds to be fed, but it is easily seen that there is an extra revenue to be received from the proper feeding and marketing of surplus poultry, says the department at the agricultural college.

World's Greatest Crisis Impending, Declares Toutjian

"The greatest crisis the world has ever known is impending," S. H. Toutjian, representative of the international Bible Students association, declared in an address Friday evening before an audience at 1223 P street. "Great statesmen freely admit that the impending doom of civilization moves steadily onward. Unprecedented preparations for the coming war are being made by all nations." Ramsay Macdonald and David Lloyd George were quoted by Mr. Toutjian to support this contention.

"False standards are disrupting present civilization, because of the corruption, scandals and profiteering in nearly all walks of life's activities," he continued.

"The end of the world (Matthew 24:3) refers to the end of the system or arrangement of things prevailing on the earth. The earth will never be destroyed; but the elements of social, commercial and religious corruption of the earth shall melt with fervid heat—the heat of commotion, friction and discord, caused by hatred, selfishness and pride."

CONTRACT FOR BOND SALE UP

City Council to Consider Disposition of $454,700 Special Issue.

Will Also Buy Furnishing and Finishing Hardware For New Hospital.

Awarding of the contract involving the sale of special assessment bonds of the city of Lincoln aggregating $454,700 will be the outstanding business to come before the city council at its meeting Monday afternoon. Bids for the bonds were opened Saturday morning at the city hall by City Treasurer George Dayton and City Clerk Theo. Berg. The issue is the largest ever sold by the city and represents paving done in forty-three districts and water extensions in sixteen different parts of the city.

In addition to the awarding the contract for the bonds the council will also consider the awarding of the contract for furnishing finishing hardware for the new City hospital. The contract for the building of a new fire house at Thirteenth and F street will also be up for consideration. Bids on both were opened Saturday morning by City Engineer D. L. Erickson.

For the bond issues the White-Phillips company of Davenport, Ia., was the best bidder and the Lahr Hardware company on the hospital hardware. The bid of R. O. Stake was the lowest on the fire house.

Another matter that will demand the attention of the council Monday will be the damage claims of Earl Cumming and Christina Cumming, living at 122 South Twenty-fifth street. The claims are for $25 and $1,000, the latter filed by Mr. Cumming, and are the outgrowth of employees of the street department acting under orders of Commissioner Cowgill, taking a gutter crossing from in front of the Cumming home.

In his claim Mr. Cumming alleges that because the gutter bridge was taken away without notice having been given, he drove his automobile against the curb at night and damaged the car and himself suffered grievous injuries. Christina Cumming's claim was to cover the cost of the bridge which she alleges the street department employes carried away and would not return when she asked for it.

The request of the Burlington railroad for a right of way along Second street from P street to K street is also scheduled for consideration. The request was made to the council a week ago but action was deferred until the commissioners could make an inspection of the proposed route. The right of way will be used for trackage to the Lancaster county work shops south of K street.

Other business will include the passage of ordinances on third reading and the reading of a number of new ordinances for the first time.

Thirty-six students have been graduated from the drivers class for women conducted by the Southwestern Nebraska Motor company. One hundred and thirty-six women have enrolled for the course in driving, and more applications are coming in every day, according to the members of the firm. Sixty per cent of the women in the classes do not own cars, but that fact does not keep them from joining the driving class.

Fruit Shipments For North Break Records

PHILADELPHIA, June 28. — One of the heaviest crops of perishable fruits and vegetables in recent years is now being moved from Maryland, Deleware and Virginia Peninsula, according to railroad officials here.

The strawberry crop now just passing its peak, promises to be one of the largest on record. It is estimated that the full crop will run well over 3,500 cars.

This year's potato crop, which follows closely on the strawberry movement promises to compare very favorably with crops of previous years, and it is estimated that 20,000 cars will be required to carry it to the consuming centers. The heavy cantaloupe crop, together with apples, peaches, pears and general produce, will begin moving after the potatoes are harvested.

Fruits and produce from Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas are also comnig north in considerable volume.

Newton D. Baker Collapses Exhausted After Dramatic Plea For League of Nations Plank

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, June 28.—Climaxing two hours of fervid debate in which charges and counter charges of "deserting Woodrow Wilson" were hurled heatedly from the speaker's platform and just as heatedly denied, the democratic national convention voted down, 742 to 352, in Madison Square Garden tonight, a platform plank which would have pledged the party to carry the United States into the League of Nations, and forecast the adoption of a plank which puts the party on record as favoring a referendum by the American people on America's entrance.

The uncompromising league plank was fathered and fought for by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson, who made one of the most dramatic speeches ever heard in a political convention in its favor, and then worn out by days of fighting, collapsed exhausted as he finished his oratorical effort.

Baker took the platform at 6:40. The former secretary of war looked tired, but there was the light of battle in his eyes. He spoke for his own plank.

With tears starting from his eyes he declared:

"The man who should be pleading this case here is gone. He lies in consecrated grounds on the heights of Mount Saint Albans. I am here pleading for him, for his memory."

Denounces Majority.

Baker denounced the majority proposal for a referendum as "the most fantastic scheme ever evolved in a political convention." He demanded to know how this referendum was to be accomplished.

Baker's speech was a monumental effort. Tired to the point of exhaustion, his emotion got the better of him several times and he literally threw himself across the speaker's table behind which he was standing. His hair was awry, his eyes flashing. He ran the gamut of sarcasm, humor, pathos.

"I am not speaking to democrats, my friends. I am speaking to lovers of mankind," he declared.

Baker referred to Senator Lodge, who is credited with having defeated the league in the senate.

"And when I speak of Lodge," he said, "I speak of him not as a man, but as a malevolent institution."

Great cheers greeted this quip.

Says Following Lodge.

"Well," Baker continued, "if you cheer that, think solemnly of what I say, that the majority of your committee on resolutions is following Henry Cabot Lodge in the most evil acts of his life in this report they have laid before you. They are substituting the leadership of Lodge for the leadership of Woodrow Wilson.

"There is no authority under the constitution for the referendum they propose. I think their whole proposal is unconstitutional."

Baker said there was one sure way of getting into the league—if the democratic party really wants to go in—and that is to elect democratic senators to the senate with "courage enough to put us in."

He declared that if the majority proposal was adopted, the republican newspapers of the country would tell the world tomorrow in flaming headlines, "That the democratic convention repudiates Woodrow Wilson."

Tells of Experiences.

He then switched to his experiences as secretary of war. He said he closed the eyes of dying soldiers in France, who had asked him to deliver but two messages, one that their mothers be informed of their ends, and, second that there be erected in the world some instrument of peace that would not make their death in vain.

"I served Woodrow Wilson five years," he said, eyes and arms uplifted. "He is standing before the throne of a just God whose commendation he has won. Here with my weak voice, I can lift up my eyes to him and say, 'I've kept the faith. I have tried. You are still the captain of my soul.'"

Baker virtually collapsed as he staggered back from the rostrum and fell into the arms of his friends.

Helped Into Chair.

Perspiration dripped from his face. Joseph P. Tumulty and Rabbi Wise of New York helped him into a chair, and he sat shaking with emotion.

Pandemonium was loose again in the garden.

Roar after roar of applause greeted his finish. The band struck up "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the noise increased.

Friend or foe of the league, they cheered Baker's plucky fight and his undoubted fervor and sincerity. But more than these, they seemed to admire his gameness.

Baker gave twelve minutes of his remaining time to Rabbi Wise who declared that "the honor of the American people was plighted" in this league fight and that "Newton D. Baker deserves a niche on high for lifting us up in this sacred hour."

"The only referendum the democratic party needs," he said, "is a candidate standing four square on a League of Nations platform." He proposed as that the republican party has claimed to be "the party of Lincoln, let this party remain the party of Woodrow Wilson."

Senator Harris of Georgia took up the gavel as Rabbi Wise finished.

Senator Pittman Replies.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada then came up for rebuttal to close the debate for the majority of the committee. He declared that the majority report was written by friends of Woodrow Wilson." He spoke of Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was the democratic leader of the senate during the league fight.

"Gilbert Hitchcock sacrificed himself and his political fortunes on the altar of Woodrow Wilson," he declared, "and that is more than the gentleman from Ohio (Baker) has done.

"I don't mind how much they may criticize this proposal," he declared heatedly, "but I refuse to stand for the charge that we are deserting Woodrow Wilson. We are not trying to stay out of the league—we are trying to get in."

Hisses Greet Remark.

A volume of hisses broke out at this and they were stopped only by Walsh's gravel.

When they subsided, Pittman went on:

"I don't care how much they may criticize this plank, but I want you to know, as he must know, that the thirty-five men who signed this report are just as honest and sincere as he is."

Chairman Walsh announced the debate ended. He called for a vote on the adoption of the minority report.

Walsh explained that a vote "aye" would mean a vote for the adoption of the Baker plan and a vote "no" would mean a vote in favor of the majority committee report, proposing the referendum.

The vote was: Aye, 353; no, 742.

As soon as the league fight was over the convention plunged ahead into a far more bitter and acrimonious controversy—the klan.

Alexandria Man Makes Three Dollars An Hour By Fattening Fowls.

Use Of Special Feeding Methods Produces Weight Very Rapidly.

Three dollars an hour for labor was the return received by John Glaum of Alexandria, Neb., in crate fattening his White Leghorn cockerels this spring, according to a report sent in to the agricultural college poultry department recently.

The 534 cockerels weighed 567 pounds when put on feed and 803 pounds at the close of a 10 day feeding period. The gain was 23 pounds. He was offered 35 cents a pound or $198.27 for them at th ebeginning of the period. He sold them at 40 cents a pound in Omaha after having fed them the 10 day period. The difference was $128.42. Feed cost $17.31 and express to Omaha was $18.00, making the total expenses $35.31. The net profit was $93.11 or over $3.00 an hour for the 30 hours which he spent in setting up the crates, caring for the chickens, and shipping them to Omaha.

The logical place to finish surplus poultry is on the farm or poultry plant where it is produced, thinks the agricultural college poultrymen in commenting upon results obtained by Mr. Glaum. As well as increasing the weight in a short period of time, the quality of the meat will be improved by the quick feed. The birds should be confined to a crate and gradually fed on a mixture of finely ground corn and wheat bran in equal parts of white shorts or ground oats, all mixed to a consistency of thin mortar with sour milk or buttermilk. After they are on feed, the birds should be given what they will readily clean up of this batter three times a day.

With good conditions it is easily possible to get gains from 20 to 40 per cent of the original weight, during the fattening period. Birds that have been fed this way are known as "milk feds" and command a higher price, especially when sold to a dealer who buys on a quality basis. It may be practical for a time to sell to a special trade.

The practices as to length of period, feed, will vary somewhat with the size age, type, etc. of the birds to be fed, but it is easily seen that there is an extra revenue to be received from the proper feeding and marketing of surplus poultry, says the department at the agricultural college.

Omaha Rides Over Links; Takes First Place From Denver Bears

BURCH FAMILY RUNNING FIRST IN FLAG CHASE

Omaha Club Trounces Lincoln, 10 to 1, and Steps Ahead of Denver Bears In Western Pennant Pursuit.

(Special to The Star.)

OMAHA, Neb., June 28.—Omaha's aggregation of baseballers stepped on the gas today and rode over Lincoln 10 to 1, to the top position in the Western league flag pursuit. Stubby Mack was on the hurling hill for the Burch family and had the Links shut out all the way to the ninth, when Chili McDaniel got the range and smacked the sphere over the fence for a homer and the capital city club's only marker of the afternoon.

Nick Carter, former American association twirler, displayed a lot of speed and stuff, but his fielding was lumpy and his two errors were a material help to the Burch gang in swatting him off the mound in the third frame, when the home club bunched hits for five runs.

Pallas, young recruit from California, finished the game in good style, the Burch tribe getting to him in but one inning.

"Carter showed enough today to convince me that he will win games for Lincoln," Manager Josh Clarke said tonight. "Until today, Carter had not had a ball in his hands for over a week. Pallas also looked good. Pitcher Hanna got in from the coast today, while Coleman, a new outfielder, may be in tomorrow. We'll get to going and be winning games at home during July, pulling out of the cellar."

Two games are on the books for Sunday afternoon. Today's score:

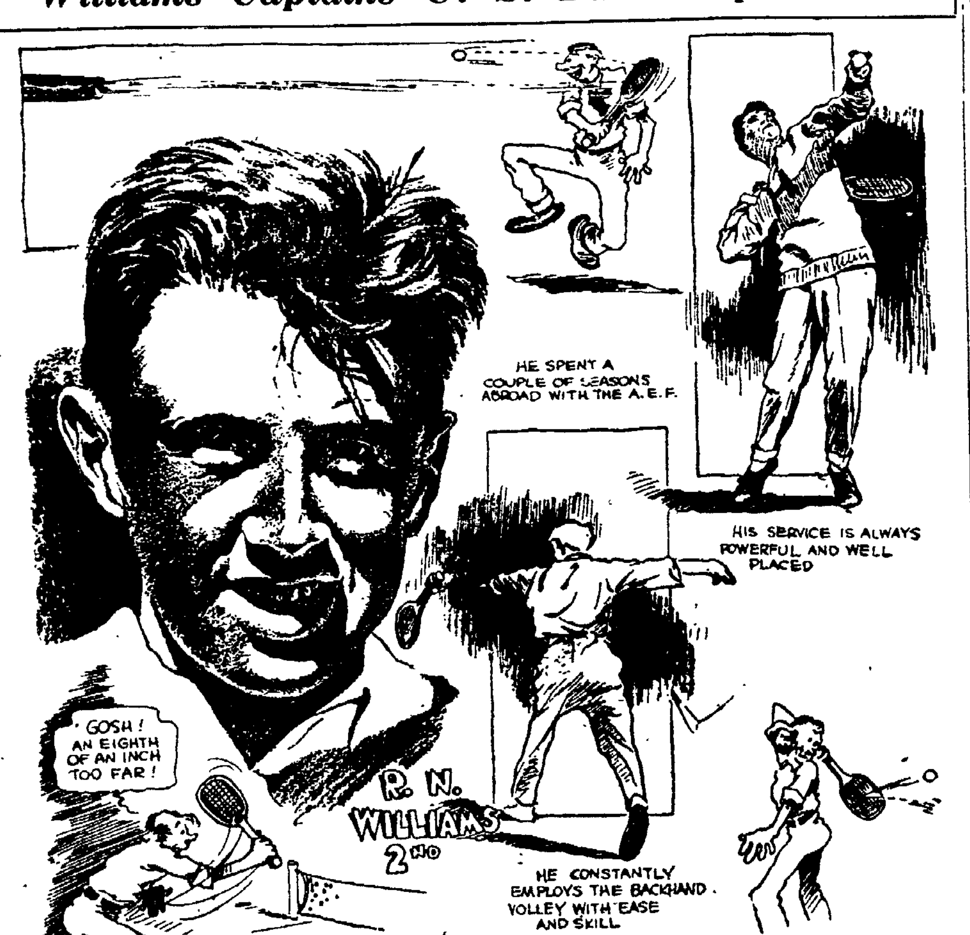
Williams Captains U. S. Davis Cup Team.



HE SPENT A COUPLE OF SEASONS ABROAD WITH THE A.E.F.
HIS SERVICE IS ALWAYS POWERFUL AND WELL PLACED
GOSH! AN EIGHTH OF AN INCH TOO FAR!
R. N. WILLIAMS 2ND
HE CONSTANTLY EMPLOYS THE BACKHAND VOLLEY WITH EASE AND SKILL
HIS GAME DEPENDS ON A PHENOMENAL ACCURACY
RETURNS THEM FROM SEEMINGLY HOPELESS POSITIONS

R. Norris Williams, captain again of America's Davis cup team, stands out as the man who has made the annual rankings a simplier task for the ranking committee.

Williams, by his brilliant play year after year, has left the body with but nine of the "first ten" to pick. For since 1912—twelve long and grueling campaigns ago—Williams has failed to land in the first 10 on only two occasions. His playing fell off a bit in 1918 and the year before that, because of the war, no rankings were announced.

This brilliant record places him by himself as a contender for the honor of appearing in the select group. No other player has ever broken into the list with such regularity or for so long a period.

Williams also holds another record. He has been a leading figure in the net game for a longer period than any other star now sparkling in the tennis firmament.

"Little Bill" Johnston comes closest to Williams first record. Johnston broke into the Big Ten in 1913, a year after Williams did. But Little Bill has not fared so well in the placing as Williams.

Williams has led the field but once, however. That was in 1916. Johnston wore the first position 1915 and 1919. Since that later date Bill Tilden has held it against Johnston, Williams and the small army at their heels.

Williams' greatest asset in his championship play is his accuracy. The naughty-naughty two-gun man who could drive a tack at 50 paces had nothing on Williams, who can pick off a flake of lime on the back line with a return while standing on his head. His ability to make perfect placements from seemingly impossible positions is uncanny.

It was this play that helped him win the national title in 1914 and 1916 and force McLoughlin to the limit in 1913.

Williams has been captain of the Davis cup team since 1921.

VILLA ROAMED FAR ON PRIMROSE PATH

Fiery Filipino All But Lost His Punch By Dallying With Gay Life.

Learned His Lesson In Time To Save Loss of Title As Flyweight Champ.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The very youthful Pancho Villa suddenly has become alive to the fact that perpetution as a champion depends upon the kind of life that one leads when outside the ropes.

Villa flashed into the American view a pair of years ago as one of the most nimble and cyclonic performers that had ever stepped into the ring. He had everything that a pontential champion should have—and energy in amazing abundance.

Within a year, the little Filipino had gained the American flyweight championship and son afterward took on Jimmy Wilde, pulverized the little British warrior, and then took unto himself the crown that goes with kingship in the flyweight division.

Along about that time, the praise showered upon Villa and the adulation of his admirers caused him to believe that the world was his without any further struggle for condition. He fell for the temptation of parties that embraced late hours, the eating of improper foods, and the doing of things which are not at all good for an athlete.

Turned Down Good Advice.

The advisers of Villa and his best friends tried to point out to the youngster that he could not do this and maintain ring greatness. But Villa closed his ears to the suggestions and to the criticisms that came in kindly spirit. He became a frequent inhabitant of New York's gay, white way and, night after night, in the spirit of a lark, became an amateur member of one or another of the cabarets' orchestras. Villa is a splendid musician, plays several different wind instruments and, of course, each cabaret welcomed him into its orchestra because his presence there as a performer added to the attractiveness of the place.

Meanwhile Villa fought various battles around the country against cub performers. He outpointed most of them, and the mere fact that he had scored victories caused him to believe that innocent dissipation had not harmed him to any great extent. But those who know condition of athletes realized that a change had come in him and that he had lost, at least temporarily, much of that which had made him so spectacular. Eventually came Villa's fight against Frankie Ash of England.

All But Lost To Britisher.

The title of the Filipino was at stake in that battle. He trained for the affair, but only spasmodically. He figured that he needed to train but little to condition himself to put away the frail almost anaemic looking boy from the other side.

Villa won the fight—but he was a sad looking champion during the 15

A survey of reports from the tennis camps show a marked increase in interest being shown in the court game and a corresponding improvement in play throughout the state.

Inter-city matches have factored largely in developing this interest. Cities having teams in the field include Omaha, Lincoln, Hastings, Seward, York, Arapahoe, Aurora and Cambridge.

Plan Out-State Trophy.

A feature of this year's state tournament will probably be a series of matches for an out-state cup, a trophy award to go to the winning team outside of Lincoln and Omaha. This series will be run off in addition to the regular tournament play.

The state tournament, which is booked for August 4-9, promises to attract a record entry list. Information received at the office of the state association secretary points to entrants from all sections of the state.

The annual junior tourney will be staged in connection with the senior competition. The age limit for juniors this season will probably be raised to all boys who have not reached their eighteenth birthday January 1 in the year of competition.

Enter Other Tourneys.

Nebraska will send a representation to the Missouri Valley and tenth annual Interstate championship tournament which will be held at the Shore Acres club, Sioux City, Ia., June 26.

Don Elliott and Bob Russell will head the Lincoln delegation, which may also include Fred Archard, Paul Mahood and Clyde Seymour.

Ralph Powell, who won the interstate title in 1916 and 1917, will lead the Omaha squad, which will also include Art Scribner, Ralph Newell, George Stocking and John Brotherton. Charley Mathewson of Walthill will be another Nebraska entrant.

FIGHT FANS EASY FOR FOREIGNERS

Devotees of Mitten Pastime Pay Round Price to See "Ham" Fighters.

But "Punks" From Foreign Shores Are All Through With Their Tricks.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The American fistic devotees apparently have been cured of the attack of alien batters from which they have been suffering for more than a year.

After Senor Luis, the Angelic Firpo, cut such a wide swath in heavyweight circles on these shores, the assumption came to promoters that every foreign fighter must be a gee whiz, a near world beater and a sensational performer.

So the grand and glorious importations of human beef, disguised as fistic talent, began.

On the shores remote from these United States, almost everyone who knew the difference between a boxing glove and a referee's necktie began cabling challenges to one American fighter and then another. And each tacked on a "P. S." cablegram, reciting tales of his own greatness.

Tex Fell for Foreigners.

Promoters blessed with the shrewdness of men like Tex Rickard, flopped for it all, cablegramed money, brought along excommunicated truckmen, reformed bull fighters, stevedores and such from foreign lands—and then tried to bunk the American public into believing that they were wonders.

To the astonishment of fair-minded Americans, Rickard and others gave immediate bouts to the foreigners merely on their own say so that they were fighters—and turned a deaf ear to pleas of American gladiators who for many years have been establishing themselves at, or near, the pinacle of their profession.

Chilean a False Alarm.

Louis Vincentini arrived and proclaimed himself a "very wonderful lightweight." He was given work immediately and since then has been doled out several chances at the top-notchers with a big slice of money for himself. Vincentini has not proven that he is better than a second or a third-rater.

Jose Lombarde arrived from Panama. He is a dark skinned individual, and merely because he was born in Panama and got his fighting experience in that country, he was made one of the headliners at a recent show. He flivvered badly, and demonstrated conclusively that a year of schooling in America would be of vital benefit to him.

Rojos Soft for Johnson.

Quintin Romero-Rojas was brought to the United States by Rickard and guaranteed $8,000 to fight Floyd Johnson, while American gladiators, of infinitely greater worth, could be starving so far as Rickard's matchmaking was concerned. Romero-Rojas got his chance against the fast slipping Johnson and was knocked out.

Then came Andre Balsa. This gentleman was born in Spain and migrated to Mexico. He claimed he was a boxer, of great merit. It develops that his only athletic training of any importance was achieved in the bull ring and on wrestling mats. Just the same, he was awarded big money to mingle in a bout in New York.

Balsa Also a Lemon.

Balsa was the worst looking specimen of a gladiator that has been seen in action in or around New York in ten years. He knew as much about boxing or about the science of the game as a pig does about the use of a toothbrush. He was more like a bull in human form than anything that has been seen in the American ring.

His method of fighting is to cover his chin with both hands and rush in at his opponent. Once in a while, when in the clinches, he would try in the crudest possible fashion to land a punch. And twice, when rushing in, he threw out his right hand much in the fashion that a man throws a baseball. Those were about the only evidences which Balsa, who was stopped in the third round, showed to justify his claim that he was a pugilist.

Public Has Its Fill.

The fact that the public has been bunked in the Vincentini fights, was bunked in the Romero-Rojas affairs, that it was bunked by Balsa and by Lombarde, has caused it to become extremely cold and unresponsive to further bouts in which foreigners may participate.

You can fool all New Yorkers some of the time, you can fool some New Yorkers all the time, but you can't fool all of them all of the time. The promoters have come to this awakening and henceforth the importation of foreign fighters will descend to something equivalent to the irreducible minimum.

VETS CALL OFF MONDAY NIGHT MITTEN SHOW

Seat Sale Was Dragging, Fight Followers Not Buying and Program Cancelled For Lack of Interest.

Sid Socklyn, Lincoln fighter, will be denied the rare pleasure of having his block knocked loose by Navy Rostan, middle champion of the U. S. navy, Monday night at the City auditorium. Rusty Wright, matchmaker for the Foreign War Veterans, who were sponsoring and promoting the proposed glove carnival at the town shed, hopped into the publicity ring Saturday night to proclaim that the Socklyn-Rostan jamboree and the entire bill, for that matter, had been officially cancelled.

Lack of interest in the show and failure of the glove fans to come forward with clinking coin in payment for seat reservations convinced the matchmaker that the local fight-going public was full up and wanted no more of the mitten sport, at least for this season.

"I rather guess the public didn't care for any more of the glove game this season," Wright declared. "The seat sale was dragging and there was nothing to give me hope that the sale would be better, so we have decided to call everything off, notifying the fighters to that effect. We lined up what I considered a lively card and did all we could to put it over. But enough appears to be sufficient. The last fight program in Lincoln was not a success and it would have been the best move, judging from results, to have stayed away from the attempt to put on another card.

"When the coming of a fighter of Rostan's national reputation fails to whet the interest of local fans, I figure there is little use to bring in an outsider. The Veterans will take their loss, but may try again next fall, possibly featuring local talent in an effort to build up another Lincoln fighter."

How It's Done In the Majors
By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

A runner is on second base. He steals third on the pitch.

Is the shortstop supposed to be in the play?

This problem worries a good many teams, for frequently a runner on second is able to start his steal to third without the catcher or pitcher or second or third baseman noting it as they are engrossed in watching the ball or the batter. It is up to the shortstop to pass the signal that the runner is attempting to steal. Such a play is in front of him and he can't help noticing it. He immediately yells aloud enough to advise the catcher and third baseman that the steal is being attempted. In that way the third baseman is able to cover the bag and the catcher to peg the ball to him in time to catch the runner.

Bentley Lacks Reserve Power To Go 9 Innings

Jack Bentley is one of the biggest men in balldom and one of the most pwerful. Yet through some strange twist of fate, the New York Giants pitcher has a reservoir of reserve energy that is amazingly limited.

He would rank as one of the greatest—if not the greatest—pitcher in the world if he had the stamina to carry on for nine innings. But six or seven usually is his limit. He can go that far at wonderful speed nad exhibit peerless form.

Then, of a sudden, he seems to collapse. Sometimes the faltering is not prolonged and he can pull clear of trouble before all is lost.

But much oftener his breakdown is beyond recovery and he must be derricked.

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky., June 28.—Gallagher Bros. Chilhowee, trained to the minute, today won the forty-second renewal of the Latonia derby.

Omaha Rides Over Links; Takes First Place From Denver Bears

(Special to The Star.)

OMAHA, Neb., June 28.—Omaha's aggregation of baseballers stepped on the gas today and rode over Lincoln, 10 to 1, to the top position in the Western league flag pursuit. Stubby Mack was on the hurling hill for the Burch family and had the Links shut out all the way to the ninth, when Chill McDaniel got the range and smacked the sphere over the fence for a homer and the capital city club's only marker of the afternoon.

Nick Carter, former American association twirler, displayed a lot of speed and stuff, but his fielding was lumpy and his two errors were a material help to the Burch gang in swatting him off the mound in the third frame, when the home club bunched hits for five runs.

Pallas, young recruit from California, finished the game in good style, the Burch tribe getting to him in but one inning.

"Carter showed enough today to convince me that he will win games for Lincoln," Manager Josh Clarke said tonight. "Until today, Carter had not had a ball in his hands for over a week. Pallas also looked good. Pitcher Hanna got in from the coast today, while Coleman, a new outfielder, may be in tomorrow. We'll get to going and be winning games at home during July, pulling out of the cellar."

Two games are on the books for Sunday afternoon. Today's score:

SORD

R. Norris Williams, captain again of America's Davis cup team, stands out as the man who has made the annual rankings a simplier task for the ranking committee.

Williams, by his brilliant play year after year, has left the body with but nine of the "first ten" to pick. For since 1912—twelve long and grueling campaigns ago—Williams has failed to land in the first 10 on only tw ooccasions. His playing fell off a bit in 1918 and the year before that, because of the war, no rankings were announced.

This brilliant record places him by himself as a contender for the honor of appearing in the select group. No other player has ever broken into the list with such regularity or for so long a period.

Williams also holds another record. He has been a leading figure in the net game for a longer period than any other star now sparkling in the tennis firmament.

"Little Bill" Johnston comes closest to Williams first record. Johnston broke into the Big Ten in 1913, a year after Williams did. But Little Bill has not fared so well in the placing as Williams.

Williams has led the field but once, however. That was in 1916. Johnston wore the first position 1915 and 1919. Since that later date Bill Tilden has held it against Johnston, Williams and the small army at their heels.

Williams' greatest asset in his championship play is his accuracy. The naughty-naughty two-gun man who could drive a tack at 50 paces had nothing on Williams, who can pick off a flake of lime on the back line with a return while standing on his head. His ability to make perfect placements from seemingly impossible positions is uncanny.

It was this play that helped him win the national title in 1914 and 1916 and force McLoughlin to the limit in 1913.

Williams has been captain of the Davis cup team since 1921.

VILLA ROAMED FAR ON PRIMROSE PATH

Fiery Filipino All But Lost His Punch By Dallying With Gay Life.

Learned His Lesson In Time To Save Loss of Title As Flyweight Champ.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The very youthful Pancho Villa suddenly has become alive to the fact that perpetution as a champion depends upon the kind of life that one leads when outside the ropes.

Villa flashed into the American view a pair of years ago as one of the most nimble and cyclonic performers that had ever stepped into the ring He had everything that a pontential champion should have—and energy in amazing abundance.

Within a year, the little Filipino had gained the American flyweight championship and son afterward took on Jimmy Wilde, pulverized the little British warrior, and then took unto himself the crown that goes with kingship in the flyweight division.

Along about that time, the praise showered upon Villa and the adulation of his admirers caused him to believe that the world was his without any further struggle for condition. He fell for the temptation of parties that embraced late hours, the eating of improper foods, and the doing of things which are not at all good for an athlete.

Turned Down Good Advice.

The advisers of Villa and his best friends tried to point out to the youngster that he could not do this and maintain ring greatness. But Villa closed his ears to the suggestions and to the criticisms that came in kindly spirit. He became a frequent inhabitant of New York's gay, white way and, night after night, in the spirit of a lark, became an amateur member of one or another of the cabarets' orchestras. Villa is a splendid musician, plays several different wind instruments, and, of course, each cabaret welcomed him into its orchestra because his presence there as a performer added to the attractiveness of the place.

Meanwhile Villa fought various battles around the country against cub performers. He outpointed most of them, and the mere fact that he had scored victories caused him to believe that innocent dissipation had not harmed him to any great extent But those who know condition of athletes realized that a change had come in him and that he had lost, at least temporarily, much of that which had made him so spectacular. Eventually came Villa's fight against Frankie Ash of England.

All But Lost To Britisher.

The title of the Filipino was at stake in that battle. He trained for the affair, but only spasmodically. He figured that he needed to train but little to condition himself to pu away the frail almost anaemic looking boy from the other side.

Villa won the fight—but he was a sad looking champion during the 15

DATES FIXED FOR TENNIS TOURNEY

Local Racqueteers Compete Week of July 12-19 On Uni. Courts.

Annual State Tournament Dated Three Weeks Later In Capital City.

DATE FOR CITY TOURNEY.

The annual Lincoln city tennis tournament will be held at the University of Nebraska courts, July 12-19 inclusive. This is two weeks prior to the state tourney which will be held in Lincoln August 4-9.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Nebraska followers of the racquet sport are enjoying one of the greatest years in the history of tennis in the Cornhusker commonwealth.

A survey of reports from the tennis camps show a marked increase in interest being shown in the court game and a corresponding improvement in play throughout the state.

Inter-city matches have factored largely in developing this interest. Cities having teams in the field include Omaha, Lincoln, Hastings, Seward, York, Arapahoe, Aurora and Cambridge.

Plan Out-State Trophy.

A feature of this year's state tournament will probably be a series of matches for an out-state cup, a trophy award to go to the winning team outside of Lincoln and Omaha. This series will be run off in addition to the regular tournament play.

The state tournament, which is booked for August 4-9, promises to attract a record entry list. Information received at the office of the state association secretary points to entrants from all sections of the state.

The annual junior tourney will be staged in connection with the senior competition. The age limit for juniors this season will probably be raised to all boys who have not reached their eighteenth birthday January 1 in the year of competition.

Enter Other Tourneys.

Nebraska will send a representation to the Missouri Valley and tenth annual Interstate championship tournament which will be held at the Shore Acres club, Sioux City, Ia., June 26.

Don Elliott and Bob Russell will head the Lincoln delegation, which may also include Fred Archard, Paul Mahood and Clyde Seymour.

Ralph Powell, who won the interstate title in 1916 and 1917, will lead the Omaha squad, which will also include Art Scribner, Ralph Newell, George Stocking and John Brotherton. Charley Mathewson of Walthill will be another Nebraska entrant.

FIGHT FANS EASY FOR FOREIGNERS

Devotees of Mitten Pastime Pay Round Price to See "Ham" Fighters.

But "Punks" From Foreign Shores Are All Through With Their Tricks.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The American fistic devotees apparently have been cured of the attack of alien batters from which they have been suffering for more than a year.

After Senor Luis, the Angelic Firpo, cut such a wide swath in heavyweight circles on these shores, the assumption came to promoters that every foreign fighter must be a gee whiz, a near world beater and a sensational performer.

So the grand and glorious importations of human beef, disguised as fistic talent, began.

On the shores remote from these United States, almost everyone who knew the difference between a boxing glove and a referee's necktie began cabling challenges to one American fighter and then another. And each tacked on a "P. S." cablegram, reciting tales of his own greatness.

Tex Fell for Foreigners.

Promoters blessed with the shrewdness of men like Tex Rickard, flopped for it all, cablegramed money, brought along excommunicated truckmen, reformed bull fighters, stevedores and such from foreign lands—and then tried to bunk the American public into believing that they were wonders.

To the astonishment of fair-minded Americans, Rickard and others gave immediate bouts to the foreigners merely on their own say so that they were fighters—and turned a deaf ear to pleas of American gladiators who for many years have been establishing themselves at, or near, the pinacle of their profession.

Chilean a False Alarm.

Louis Vincentini arrived and proclaimed himself a "very wonderful lightweight." He was given work immediately and since then has been doled out several chances at the top-notchers with a big slice of money for himself. Vincentini has not proven that he is better than a second or a third-rater.

Jose Lombarde arrived from Panama. He is a dark skinned individual, and merely because he was born in Panama and got his fighting experience in that country, he was made one of the headliners at a recent show. He flivvered badly, and demonstrated conclusively that a year of schooling in America would be of vital benefit to him.

Rojos Soft for Johnson.

Quintin Romero-Rojas was brought to the United States by Rickard and guaranteed $8,000 to fight Floyd Johnson, while American gladiators, of infinitely greater worth, could be starving so far as Rickard's matchmaking was concerned. Romero-Rojas got his chance against the fast slipping Johnson and was knocked out.

Then came Andre Balsa. This gentleman was born in Spain and migrated to Mexico. He claimed he was a boxer, of great merit. It develops that his only athletic training of any importance was achieved in the bull ring and on wrestling mats. Just the same, he was awarded big money to mingle in a bout in New York.

Balsa Also a Lemon.

Balsa was the worst looking specimen of a gladiator that has been seen in action in or around New York in ten years. He knew as much about boxing or about the science of the game as a pig does about the use of a toothbrush. He was more like a bull in human form than anything that has been seen in the American ring.

His method of fighting is to cover his chin with both hands and rush in at his opponent. Once in a while, when in the clinches, he would try in the crudest possible fashion to land a punch. And twice, when rushing in, he threw out his right hand much in the fashion that a man throws a baseball. Those were about the only evidences which Balsa, who was stopped in the third round, showed to justify his claim that he was a pugilist.

Public Has Its Fill.

The fact that the public has been bunked in the Vincentini fights, was bunked in the Romero-Rojas affairs, that it was bunked by Balsa and by Lombarde, has caused it to become extremely cold and unresponsive to further bouts in which foreigners may participate.

You can fool all New Yorkers some of the time, you can fool some New Yorkers all the time, but you can't fool all of them all of the time. The promoters have come to this awakening and henceforth the importation of foreign fighters will descend to something equivalent to the irreducible minimum.

VETS CALL OFF MONDAY NIGHT MITTEN SHOW

Seat Sale Was Dragging, Fight Followers Not Buying and Program Cancelled For Lack of Interest.

Sid Socklyn, Lincoln fighter, will be denied the rare pleasure of having his block knocked loose by Navy Rostan, middle champion of the U. S. navy, Monday night at the City auditorium. Rusty Wright, matchmaker for the Foreign War Veterans, who were sponsoring and promoting the proposed glove carnival at the town shed, hopped into the publicity ring Saturday night to proclaim that the Socklyn-Rostan jamboree and the entire bill, for that matter, had been officially cancelled.

Lack of interest in the show and failure of the glove fans to come forward with clinking coin in payment for seat reservations convinced the matchmaker that the local fight-going public was full up and wanted no more of the mitten sport, at least for this season.

"I rather guess the public didn't care for any more of the glove game this season," Wright declared. "The seat sale was dragging and there was nothing to give me hope that the sale would be better, so we have decided to call everything off, notifying the fighters to that effect. We lined up what I considered a lively card and did all we could to put it over. But enough appears to be sufficient. The last fight program in Lincoln was not a success and it would have been the best move, judging from results, to have stayed away from the attempt to put on another card.

"When the coming of a fighter of Rostan's national reputation fails to whet the interest of local fans, I figure there is little use to bring in an outsider. The Veterans will take their loss, but may try again next fall, possibly featuring local talent in an effort to build up another Lincoln fighter."

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

A runner is on second base. He steals third on the pitch.

Is the shortstop supposed to be in the play?

This problem worries a good many teams, for frequently a runner on second is able to start his steal to third without the catcher or pitcher or second or third baseman noting it as they are engrossed in watching the ball or the batter. It is up to the shortstop to pass the signal that the runner is attempting to steal. Such a play is in front of him and he can't help noticing it. He immediately yells aloud enough to advise the catcher and third baseman that the steal is being attempted. In that way the third baseman is able to cover the bag and the catcher to peg the ball to him in time to catch the runner.

Bentley Lacks Reserve Power To Go 9 Innings

Jack Bentley is one of the biggest men in balldom and one of the most pwerful. Yet through some strange twist of fate, the New York Giants pitcher has a reservoir of reserve energy that is amazingly limited.

He would rank as one of the greatest—if not the greatest—pitcher in the world if he had the stamina to carry on for nine innings. But six or seven usually is his limit. He can go that far at wonderful speed nad exhibit peerless form.

Then, of a sudden, he seems to collapse. Sometimes the faltering is not prolonged and he can pull clear of trouble before all is lost.

But much oftener his breakdown is beyond recovery and he must be derricked.

CHILHOWEE WINS LATONIA DERBY

Black Gold, Kentucky Derby Winner, Content With Third Place.

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky., June 28.—Gallagher Bros. Chilhowee, trained to the minute, today won the forty-second renewal of the Latonia derby.

The race was run in 2:30 1-5, a second slower than the track record.

Mad Play Wins Race.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Mad Play, a Rancocas stable entry today finished first in the Brookdale handicap. Aga Khan ran second and Desperate Desmond was third. The time was 1:50 1-5.

VILLA ROAMED FAR ON PRIMROSE PATH

rounds. If Ash had not been a powder puff hitter he might have knocked out Villa that night, for the British boy had no difficulty whatsoever in hitting the Filipino. And the champion, on the other hand, was wild in the delivery of his punches and punched only in spurts

After the show was over, the crowd cheered Ash for his showing and hooted and jeered Villa for his miserable exhibition for a world's champion. It was the first time that theq little Filipino had been so treated by a crowd. It was a shock to him, and it made him realize that the best thing he could do was to heed the advice that had been given him and to resume leading the simple life of a gladiator of the prize ring.

Took to Real Training.

So the day after, Villa blew a few farewell kisses to Broadway and jumped into intensive training. Day after day he threw himself with all the old spirit into getting back his lost wind, and to rebuilding his softening muscles and into restoring the energy which frivoling around had taken from him.

Then came his fight with Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Indiana.

It was a vastly different Villa who stepped into the ring that night; it was a Pancho Villa of old, catlike in action, fiercely aggressive, wonderful in markmanship, and furiously consistent in attack.

Villa 'spotted" Taylor something like five pounds and gave Taylor a man-sized beating. Villa won almost from beginning to end and the issue, as they say in racing circles, never was in doubt.

After that fight was over Villa said: "I have learned my lesson—I am not going to forget it."

WORLD'S FASTEST RUNNER Is Nurmi; Can U. S. Beat Him?

Uncle Sam's distance runners must show their heels to "the greatest runner that ever lived" if they hope to win the 1,500 to 5,000-meter events in the Olympic games. The finals in these races will be staged July 10.

Paavo Nurmi, slight, muscular Finnish Mercury, is the man European athletic experts have called the premier of all runners. And they may well call him that in view of his wonder feats on the paths. Only a few days ago Nurmi, racing against world's records which he set in the events, broke those records in the 1,500 and 5,000-meter runs in convincing style.

Over the track at Helsingfors, Finland, he clipped two-fifths of a second off the record for the shorter distance and then, with a rest of but 45 minutes, lopped within a fraction of seven seconds off the 5,000-meter classic. His time for the short distance was 3:52 3-5. His mark for the second race was 14:28 3-5.

The men on whom America is counting to turn back this fleetfooted Findlander are Ray Buker, Lloyd Hahn, a Nebraska boy, W. O. Spencer and either Jim Connolly or Johnny Watters.

Buker won the final in that 1,500-meter event in the Olympic tryouts at Cambridge a couple of weeks back. His time was 3:58 8-10. This is six and one-fifth seconds slower than Nurmi's time.

Situations Differed.

Two things must be considered, however. Buker was not trying for a record. A victory and the qualification it gave him was all he sought. Nurmi was running against time.

Nurmi was at his best that day. Buker possibly did not show his best form

There is a possibility also that Hahn or Spencer may be in perfect form that day and display a flash that will surprise even the men who have watched them in preparation for the big day.

In the longer race Uncle Sam's center in Johnny Romig, Phelps, Doolittle and Bill Cox Romig, Penn State runner, won the tryout race in the good time of 15:15 7-10. This however, is 47 seconds slower than Nurmi's

The fact that the Americans will go into the second race against Nurmi fresh may help them in the 5,000-meter run. But the Finlander showed at Helsingfors that he has wonderful recuperative powers.

Apparently Uncle Sam's stars have a task ahead of them.

rounds. If Ash had not been a powder puff hitter he might have knocked out Villa that night, for the British boy had no difficulty whatsoever in hitting the Filipino. And the champion, on the other hand, was wild in the delivery of his punches and punched only in spurts.

After the show was over, the crowd cheered Ash for his showing and hooted and jeered Villa for his miserable exhibition for a world's champion. It was the first time that theq little Filipino had been so treated by a crowd. It was a shock to him, and it made him realize that the best thing he could do was to heed the advice that had been given him and to resume leading the simple life of a gladiator of the prize ring.

Took to Real Training.

So the day after, Villa blew a few farewell kisses to Broadway and jumped into intensive training. Day after day he threw himself with all the old spirit into getting back his lost wind, and to rebuilding his softening muscles and into restoring the energy which frivoling around had taken from him.

Then came his fight with Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Indiana.

It was a vastly different Villa who stepped into the ring that night; it was a Pancho Villa of old, catlike in action, fiercely aggressive, wonderful in markmanship, and furiously consistent in attack.

Villa 'spotted" Taylor something like five pounds and gave Taylor a man-sized beating. Villa won almost from beginning to end and the issue, as they say in racing circles, never was in doubt.

After that fight was over Villa said: "I have learned my lesson—I am not going to forget it."

WORLD'S FASTEST RUNNER Is Nurmi; Can U. S. Beat Him?

Uncle Sam's distance runners must show their heels to "the greatest runner that ever lived" if they hope to win the 1,500 to 5,000-meter events in the Olympic games. The finals in these races will be staged July 10.

Paavo Nurmi, slight, muscular Finnish Mercury, is the man European athletic experts have called the premier of all runners. And they may well call him that in view of his wonder feats on the paths. Only a few days ago Nurmi, racing against world's records which he set in the events, broke those records in the 1,500 and 5,000-meter runs in convincing style.

Over the track at Helsingfors, Finland, he clipped two-fifths of a second off the record for the shorter dictance and then, with a rest of but 45 minutes, lopped within a fraction of seven seconds off the 5,000-meter classic. His time for the short distance was 3:52 3-5. His mark for the second race was 14:28 3-5.

The men on whom America is counting to turn back this fleetfooted Findlander are Ray Buker, Lloyd Hahn, a Nebraska boy, W. O. Spencer and either Jim Connolly or Johnny Watters.

Just what chance have any of these boys of beating the European star?

Buker won the final in that 1,500-meter event in the Olympic tryouts at Cambridge a couple of weeks back. His time was 3:58 8-10. This is six and one-fifth seconds slower than Nurmi's time.

Situations Differed.

Two things must be considered, however. Buker was not trying for a record. A victory and the qualification it gave him was all he sought. Nurmi was running against time.

Nurmi was at his best that day. Buker possibly did not show his best form.

There is a possibility also that Hahn or Spencer may be in perfect form that day and display a flash that wil lsurprise even the men who have watched them in preparation for the big day.

In the longer race Uncle Sam's center in Johnny Romig, Phelps. Doolittle and Bill Cox. Romig, Penn State runner, won the tryout race in the good time of 15:15 7-10. This. however, is 47 seconds slower than Nurmi's.

The fact that the Americans will go into the second race against Nurmi fresh may help them in the 5,000-meter run. But the Finlander showed at Helsingfors that he has wonderful recuperative powers.

Apparently Uncle Sam's stars have a task ahead of them.

HAIL PELTS INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS

Alliance Man Battered By Ice Globules Large As Baseball.

Auto Top Torn to Ribbons and Hood and Fenders Badly Dented.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb, June 28—On his way from Alliance to Chadron V. I. Jackson, of Alliance, was knocked unconscious by huge hailstones, which tore the top of his touring car to ribbons and dented the fenders and hood of the car in a way impossible to duplicate without a hammer Some of the dents were ten inches across and a man's fist could be placed inside

A woman, seeing Mr Jackson slump down in his seat, from a farmhouse window, seibzed a water bucket, stuffed two or three old coats in it, put it over her head, draped several comforters about her body and went to help the unconscious man. He had been dragged several feet from the car before he realized what was being done.

The storm covered a path four miles long and two miles wide. A farmer living in the area found a stone which measured eleven inches in circumference and the general size was from that of a hen's egg to larger than a baseball. A tourist passing through immediately after the storm, which lasted but ten minutes, loaded several dozen in his car and took them to Chadron, ten miles away When he reached there they were still as large as baseballs

Unlike most stones as large, Mr Jackson said, they were not made up of smaller stones frozen together, but were solid balls of ice.

Heavy Damage By Morning Blaze In An Alliance Cafe

The principal damage to the building was in the kitchen, where the floor was burned through, allowing the range to drop into the basement The roof was burned over the greater part of the kitchen and it is estimated that it will cost $4,000 to repair and redecorate the building, and the damage to the dining room and kitchen equipment is about $2,000.

Two firemen fell through the weakened floor in fighting the blaze, but were only slightly hurt.

Considerable damage was done to the Guardian State bank and Dr. E. V. Blak's office, next to the building by the smoke, and some furniture stored in an adjoining basement was also damaged

HAIL PELTS INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS

Alliance Man Battered By Ice Globules Large As Baseball.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., June 28.—On his way from Alliance to Chadron V. I. Jackson, of Alliance, was knocked unconscious by huge hailstones, which tore the top of his touring car to ribbons and dented the fenders and hood of the car in a way impossible to duplicate without a hammer Some of the dents were ten inches across and a man's fist could be placed inside.

A woman, seeing Mr. Jackson slump down in his seat, from a farmhouse window, seibzed a water bucket, stuffed two or three old coats in it, put it over her head, draped several comforters about her body and went to help the unconscious man. He had been dragged several feet from the car before he realized what was being done.

The storm covered a path four miles long and two miles wide. A farmer living in the area found a stone which measured eleven inches in circumference and the general size was from that of a hen's egg to larger than a baseball. A tourist passing through immediately after the storm, which lasted but ten minutes, loaded several dozen in his car and took them to Chadron, ten miles away When he reached there they were still as large as baseballs.

Unlike most stones as large, Mr. Jackson said, they were not made up of smaller stones frozen together, but were solid balls of ice.

Heavy Damage By Morning Blaze In An Alliance Cafe

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., June 28.— Fire, which evidently started from the kitchen range, caused a loss estimated at $6,000 to the building and equipment of the Silver Grill cafe of Alliance early Friday morning. The alarm was turned in at 2:55 a. m.

The principal damage to the building was in the kitchen, where the floor was burned through, allowing the range to drop into the basement. The roof was burned over the greater part of the kitchen and it is estimated that it will cost $4,000 to repair and redecorate the building, and the damage to the dining room and kitchen equipment is about $2,000.

Two firemen fell through the weakened floor in fighting the blaze, but were only slightly hurt.

Considerable damage was done to the Guardian State bank and Dr. E. V. Blak's office, next to the building by the smoke, and some furniture stored in an adjoining basement was also damaged.

Dr. Egbert was found guilty of the murder of his son-in-law, Charles Gordon, and Judge W. A. Dilworth sentenced him to fifteen years in the penitentiary. The supreme court reversed the verdict and sentence and ordered that a new trial should proceed without delay.

Because of his illness, it is not probable that his case will come up now until the September term.

policemen were in evidence everywhere. Streets are closed for two blocks about the garden. The great flags draped as a canopy over the vast crowd in the garden drooped in the torrid atmosphere. Coats were off the men delegates. The women looked upon the proceedings with strained eyes, concealing but little the anxiety that obviously was felt.

Newton D. Baker opened the debate for the minority report on the league after Alfred E. Lucking and Senator Jones of New Mexico, had spoken for the majority.

"There is no subject on this earth." Baker said, "apart from my duties to my God and my family, that measures with my feeling on the League of Nations I have fought with you, marched with you and if at any time in the past I have merited your feeling that I deserved your sympathy and help, give it to me now.

"The man who ought to be pleading here for this cause is resting in hallowed ground," he declared in a broken voice.

He then denounced the majority report as "fantastic and revolutionary."

Weariness Evident.

Baker, showing the weariness and strain of his long fight in the committee on resolutions, declared there was nothing in the majority plank that provided that "we should go into the league before we go through with this proposed unconstitutional, fantastic, revolutionary referendum."

"They march through the dictionary, give it their confidence, but promise it no aid whatever.

"Our attitude is that we are affectionately inclined, but not disposed to marry it.

"The majority report proposed that we lift the league out of party politics and deposit it nowhere."

Impressive Appeal.

The former war secretary made an impassioned appeal. "I'm not talking to democrats," he said. "I am talking to lovers of mankind. I have sat over there in that room for days and nights without sleep. I have heard talk of expediency and votes, till I'm sick of it. I'm talking of life and death and love of our fellowman.

"When we get through with 'full time for consideration,'" he said, "my boy, who I am trying to save from war, will be dead on a field of battle."

He won a great cheer when he attacked Lodge.

"Senator Lodge," he said, "and when I say that name I am not speaking of a person, but a malevolent institution. What this majority report means is that we are substituting for the democratic party the attitude of the republican party—we are substituting Henry Cabot Lodge for Woodrow Wilson."

Has No Quarre.

The committee, he said, he had no quarrel with and had mixed harsh words with none during the long days and nights of work.

"But the trouble is," he said, "that they (the senators on the resolutions committee) have been in the senate until they can't think on a foreign subject.

Baker charged in his speech that the referendum as proposed was actually an election to be held under federal control. It would take years he said, to get all of the referendums taken, if they were taken through the state election machinery, which would be one way of taking it under federal control. The other way would be to hold it through the census bureau.

"Postal cards could be sent out to every one by the census bureau so that the answer could be sent back on a ballot to be clipped off and mailed to Washington.

Would Defeat Senate Vote.

"If you had plenty of votes in the senate to go into the league, you would be compelled to stay out of it until you had gone through with the fantastic proposal made in the majority report," he said.

He then asked: "Will we win or lose votes by going in to the league?"

"I don't think we would lose?

The reefrendum proposed is unconstitutional, he added, "and I know that there are thousands who would like to vote for the league but who would not vote to do so knowing that it would be unconstitutional."

"Now don't think that I love Woodrow Wilson more than I love you. I merely know him better. I can just imagine him looking over my shoulder here and see the fine contempt on his face if he were asked to approve this majority report.

Praises Former President.

"Woodrow Wilson won the war.

"Woodrow Wilson won the world

"Woodrow Wilson won the peace.

"Woodrow Wilson died for what he won for us.

"That's our history.

"And whoever is nominated by this convention—I assume we will nominate a candidate sometime—what will he say when asked for his first interview and the first question asked him is: 'Are you in favor of the league of nations?'

"If he says, 'no,' then the party has ceased to be blessed by Woodrow Wilson.

"If he says 'yes,' then his questioners may answer. 'Well, your party was afraid to say so.'

"Others have opposed this cause. Hiram Johnson opposed it once. Where is he now?

"My plank—the plank of the minority—is to go into the league."

Outburst of Applause.

At this, there was a great outburst of aplause.

"I'm past the military age. I have memories. I have closed the eyes of soldiers dying on the battle field, and they have whispered messages to me to take to their mothers. They were so superbly splendid They were willing to go—if they could be sure of two things; one, that their mothers be notified, and the other that someone might carry on and build upon this earth a temple whence might go forth the appeal to end forever sacrifices bred of hate

"I served Woodrow Wilson for five years I say to him.

'I did my best. I'm doing it now. You're still the captain of my soul. He's standing here—using me to say to you, 'Save mankind. Do your duty!'"

Mighty Cheer Given.

At Baker's conclusion, hundreds of delegates leaped to their feet waving their state standards, shouting, cheering, swinging flags and posters. It was a full blast demonstration, with the band playing and the entire floor in a furore of excitement Tears streamed down the faces or men and women throughout the delegateions and on the platform as Baker referred in touching terms to Wilson.

Spreading out his arms, Baker cried:

"He is here now. He is standing beside me He is speaking through my voice to call upon you to keep the faith to save mankind I don't refer to the pale or shrunken figure that I last saw—a living sacrifice to a cause—but to the great leader as we knew him in his strength—the captain of my soul."

As the demonstration quieted, the band struck up "Onword Christian Soldiers" and for several minutes the vast throng stood, with tears streaming down cheeks and heads bowed

After the vote was taken on the Baker minority report, on the league plank, the two hour debate on the anti-klan plank was begun.

FORD CHILDREN—BELIEVED RICHEST IN HISTORY OF WORLD

Two billions. That's the potential inheritance now of the two small boys and baby girl of Edsel Ford, only child of Henry Ford, motor king. The Ford fortune is growing by leaps and bounds; when they are grown up it may be $4,000,000,000. Statisticians believe they are the richest children in the history of the world.

Henry Ford II is 6, Edsel, Jr., 4, and Baby Josephine five months old.

REJECT PROPOSAL TO NAME KLAN

Mrs. Carrell Miller of Pennsylvania, was introduced to carry on in support of the minority plank favoring reference to the klan direct.

Mrs. Miller denounced the "outlawry and criminality" of the klan.

"Since when has the democratic party knelt before the God of expediency?" she asked.

Prefers Defeat.

"We never have won when we've quibbled. 'I'd rather go down to defeat on a clear cut moral issue than win on an issue which you can't recognize for the hideous mask that is in front of it."

"Let us remember it is better to be a doorkeeper in the house of God than remain in the tents of the wicked forever."

When Mrs. Miller finished there was another sharp outbreak of applause. Delegates rose and shouted their approval—but the applause lasted only a minute.

Governor Morrison of North Carolina, was next introduced to continue the debate.

He declared the principles of the klan are not things that should come in for governmental action. It is a problem for the ministers of the gospel, he said. There is nothing for governmental action until the members commit some crimes. Then it should be the duty of the police to take prompt action."

W. J. Bryan Speaks.

W. J. Bryan in addressing the convention said:

"There is not a state in the union where any one whose rights are denied cannot go an dobtain redress. It is not necessary to protest any church.

"I have much confidence in the Catholic church, which was for over a thousand years my mother church as well as yours.

"The Catholic church does not need a great party to protect it from a million men.

"The Jews," he continued, "do not need a great party to protect them from a million men.

"The Jews do not heed this resolution. They have Moses—they have Elijah, and the Jewish race has its great characters today who will plead for them.

"And next, my friends, the Ku Klux Klan does not deserve the advertisement this would bring. The minority, who could not join with us to leave out these three magic and mystic words, have raised the klan to a higher altitude than the Ku Klux Klan themselves ever raised their fiery cross.

Urges Fight on G. O. P.

"We have no right to let the klan divert us from the greatest issue we ever had. It requires more courage to fight the republican party than it does to fight the klan.

"We find farmers in bankruptcy and while we have distress in the country that cries aloud for relief, and while we have a war-worn world that cries for help and guidance, these minority men say we lack courage if we pass these by and start out to hunt a thing that is dead and will pass away.

"I have left for the last what I regard as the greatest argument. If the democratic party is diverted from its duty some other party will take up its task."

Prepare for Vote.

William Jennings Bryan concluded speaking for the majority at 11:20 and the convention settled down to vote on the minority report from the resolutions committee, which would name the klan directly in the platform plank on religious liberty. Five minutes was given in which the delegates might poll their members

After the vote was completed, several delegations objected to their vote as given and the delegations were polled. On a poll the Louisiana vote was changed to no, 20.

The poll of the Ohio delegation was announced as aye 31½, no 16½. Washington, no 14.

With several delegations demanding a poll of the delegations, the unofficial results indicated the plank mentioning the klan directly had lost by a narrow margin, the unofficial vote being 540½; yes: against 545½ no.

In the confusion preliminary to the announcement of the vote, a delegate in the Illinois section demanded verification of the whole convention vote At the same time, E. H. Moore of Ohio, leaped to a chair and challenged the vote of both the Philippines and the Canal Zone. The challenge on the latter was not allowed.

A long discussion followed over the Philippines vote when it was discovered that not all of the delegates were present.

The Philippines vote was finally changed to aye 2, no 3.

Hall In Confusion.

After the result of the Philippine vote was announced, police rushed in to quell a disturbance in the delegation. The entire hall was soon in confusion. Most of the delegates were standing on their chairs, all shouting at once.

Another row broke out in the Philippine delegation and it was necessary to poll again.

This time on the poll the vote was yes 3, no 2, narrowing the margin by which those opposing the klan being named had obtained on the vote.

Canal Zone asked that its vote be polled and the cordon of police, which had been around the Philippine standard, moved on down to the Panama Canal section.

The Canal Zone vote was unchanged after the recount.

Canal Zone vote was aye 2, no 4

The Georgia delegation then asked to be polled and the flying squad of police moved into that section

PROPOSITION FOR ONE-HOUSE NOT TO BE SUBMITTED

ing in which to get the required 41,000.

July 4 is the last date allowed by statute for filing initiative petitions with the secretary of state As that date is a legal holiday, they would probably have to be presented on the 3rd. The law says that all petitions must be on file not less than four months prior to the date of the general election, which comes on November 4.

Mr. Mutz started his canvass for the proposition to abolish the state senate, five or six months ago, but it has not been pushed vigorously and the necessary number of signatures has not been secured. The task of making a state wide canvass for initiative petitions proved to be greater than was realized before hand. It involved also a considerable expenditure of foney for postage and other items. Mr. Mutz did no tfeel that he could stand this outlay himself, and there was not enough financial support to carry the project throuh.

Sorensen Has Primary Petitions.

Announcement was made Saturday by C. A. Sorensen that his proposed constitutional amendment to take the election of state and local officers and members of the legislature out of partisan politics, and to make the direct primary permanent as the system for choosing candidates, is sure of getting upon the ballot.

"I have petitions now with a total of about 40,000 names attached," said Mr. Sorensen, "and more are coming in every mail. We are now finishing up in Douglas county, which will add two or three thousand names to the list. The filing will be made on Wednesday.

"We already have 5 per cent petitions from about 60 counties, while the law requires only 37. That shows how much interest there is in the nonpartisan plan for selecting public officials in Nebraska. I am confident it will carry by a big majority in November."

Sorensen's amendment to the constitution provides that all candidates for state, county and local offices as well as members of the legislature, shall be nominated and elected without any party designation on the ballot. His plan is simply to extend the method now in vogue for choosing supreme and district court judges, county judges, state and the county superintendents, and regents of the state university.

Will Have Some Speeches.

Preparations are being made for a little ceremonial program at the secretary of state's office in conjunction with the filing of the petitions on Wednesday. Mr Sorensen will be there to arrange the details, which will include brief talks by leading members of the league of women voters, the farmers' union, the W. C. T. U., the railroad brotherhoods and possibly other bodies

A photograph of the proceedings will be taken in order to commemorate the occasion and preserve a historical record of it

Present indications are that the permanent primary-non-partisan ballot proposition will be the only one on the election ballot There was some talk of initiating a state-owned bank scheme, and also one for state fire insurance, but nothing has been heard lately of either matter. Passage of the national bonus bill by congress appears to have killed off the agitation for a state bonus, which some ex-service men were promoting.

Injured Brought From Lorain Disaster Tell Pitiful Story Of Whole Families Wiped Out

CLEVELAND, June 29—(Sunday, 1:30 a. m.)—The first load of injured arrived from Lorain at Lakewood hospital about 1 o'clock this morning.

Steve Kordos, 35, was the first to die. His home had fallen in on him while he was at dinner.

Pitiful tales were told by the injured.

John Takats who lived in the Lorain shipyards reservation told how his home fell in on himself, his wife and two children. He was taken away by rescue squads and does not know what happened to his family.

A similar story was told by Joe Kregon, who was brought into Cleveland without knowing what happened to his wife and four children, who were caught when his home was demolished.

Mrs. Mary Stasiak of Lorain, told how she was blown down the street for blocks, hurled against buildings and automobiles. Others brought into Lakewood were Mrs. Mary Weston and Mrs. Vergs.

Twenty Lakewood physicians were working all night in the operating room.

Whole Blocks Razed.

All buildings in that section of Sandusky between Warren, Meigs and North Washington streets and the river front were razed, Toledo reported.

In one residential section alone fifty homes were destroyed.

Autos were blown into the bay. The city is without water supplies following damage to the water plant, and disease from drinking impure water was feared.

The town is at the mercy of fire, should it break out.

Twenty factories are reported in ruins.

Details of the disaster at French Creek are lacking. The one report received from there came to Cleveland police, who were dispatched to Lorain.

They merely stopped long enough to report that the town had been destroyed No estimate of lives lost at French Creek could be given

About People

Bethel No. 5, Job's Daughters, held an open installation of officers at Masonic temple, 236 South Eleventh street, Saturday night. About 200 witnessed the ceremony which was followed by a short program and the serving of refreshments by the members of Electa chapter, O. E. S.

During the installation ceremony Miss Thora Baer, retiring honored queen was presented with a bouquet by Miss Irene Noyes. SCORES KILLED IN OHIO STORM

the mass of struggling humanity in the wreckage, he said.

Eighty bodies had been taken from the wrecked State theater at Lorain which collapsed during the tornado, Chief of Police Skankard of Elyria, telephoned shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

The electrical storm which struck Lorain about 7 p. m., was general over northern Ohio It struck like exploding dynamite as lightning crashed down accompanied by a terrific gale.

An excursion steamer with more than 200 on board was reported missing in a terrific storm off Sandusky, according to word received here tonight Grave fears were expressed in shipping circles as to her safety

Telephone Wires Down.

All telephone lines to Sandusky and vicinity have been torn down by the storm.

A passenger brakeman from Sandusky relayed the report to Bellevue.

Chief Skankard said over the telephone at 9 p. m.:

"I have just talked with persons coming from Lorain. They tell me that the dead and injured are lying in the streets. Automobiles and other vehicles are piled up in heaps. My information is that eight or ten blocks in the business district were wrecked or partially wrecked, mowing down a typical Saturday evening down-town crowd.

"We already have started receiving injured in hospitals at Elyria we have sent to Lorain all of the doctors that could be spared from emergency work in Elyria. We also have sent a number of nurses.

"We also dispatched our fire department to Lorain to assist in the rescue."

Verification Lacking.

Reports of an excursion steamer sinking could not be verified although the rumor persisted. All direct wires to Sandusky were down.

From 25 to 100 persons may be dead in Sandusky, Ambrose Ball of Bellevue, who just returned from Sandusky to Bellevue told the United Press over the telephone at 9:30 p m.

"Nearly the entire town along the lake front has been wiped out."

"The ferry from Sandusky to Lake Side broke her moorings and is adrift in the bay or lake. Numerous small boats also broke away.

"The excursion steamer, which was reported missing, is safe at her dock with all passengers.

Buildings Jumbled.

"I never saw such destruction," Ball said. "Buildings along the water front are jumbled up in a mass of wreckage.

"My conservative estimate of the number killed from what I heard, is from 25 to 100."

The Nickle Plate passenger station at Kimball, near Bellevue, was reported demolished. The station agent is reported dead.

The Nickle Plate passenger train No. 2, leaving Bellevue at 7:45 for Cleveland, was forced to return because of a washout.

A switch engine crashed through a draw bridge at Lorain and two freighters and a number of small craft were carried out into the lake, according to reports from Elyria.

Restrictions Shunt Immigrants to Latin American Countries

LONDON, June 28.—Barred from entering the United States by the recently passed new immigration act. European emigrants are turning their eyes toward South America.

Shipping companies serving the South American route report that their vessels sailing to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Pernambuco are carrying increased numbers of imigrant passengers, and in some steamers the third-class accommodation is fully booked up for weeks ahead.

Southhampton immigration officials report that nearly every vessel in the South Atlantic trade is carrying between four and six hundred imigrants every trip. Prominent observers think that sooner or later this fact must affect steamships running on the Europe-New York service, and that there will be a transfer of the struggle for North Atlantic bookings to the South Atlantic.

Some authorities even predict that one or two of the "Big Six" liners may desert the Southhampton-New York trade and reinforce the Liverpool-South American route.

Could You Use A Fourth Dimension.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Would you please explain to me what is meant by 'the fourth dimension?'—J. F."

This question is so frequently asked that it seems desirable, once in a while, to attempt an answer. There is no real difficulty in understanding "what is meant" by the fourth dimension provided that first you get clearly in mind what the three ordinary dimensions are, and especially the reason why there are three and only three. I have found that a surprising number of educated people have very misty ideas about this. They are confused by the fact that they can think of an object as having an infinite number of dimensions, because it extends outward from its center on all sides in every conceivable direction

But, while this is true, yet there are but but three fundamental directions involved in the construction of any solid body, or in open spaces, all the others being summed up in these three, which alone are called dimensions. They are length, breadth, and thickness, or height.

Consider the room in which you are sitting: it is say 15 feet long, 12 feet broad, and 8 feet high. These three dimensions are measured at right angles to one another, and you can find no more than three dimensions bearing that relation. The respective names that you give them have no importance except for convenience; you can interchange them all at will. If you run an imaginary line from a lower corner of the room to the diagonally opposite upper corner, little thought will show that the extension of this line is made up of the three original dimensions. It is contained in the length, breadth, and height of the room. Taking those dimensions as a whole you may turn them about as much as you like, and regard them in whatever aspect you will, but you can never add to their number, or change their relation to one another. A solid, then, or space itself, is made up of three and only three dimensions

So, too, a plane, flat surface is made up of only two dimensions,—length and breadth; while a straight line if it had no thickness, would possess but one dimension,—length

Now, with these things clear in your head, consider what a fourth dimension would have to be. Plainly, it would have to be something entirely different from either length, breadth, or thickness, and inasmuch as only length, breadth, and thickness are found to exist in any material object, or in the space around material objects, we must conclude that a fourth dimension can only be described—at least as far as human experience is concerned—as a metaphysical conception which has no corresponding reality for us

Many attempts have been made to present a sort of geometrical representation of the fourth dimension, but they have no real meaning, and are worse than useless for purposes of explanation The fact is that the fourth dimension idea is purely the product of transcendental mathematics, spurning reality, and starting from abstract notions to build up its beautiful structures, for beautiful—as soap bubbles—they do appear to those who, with Bertrand Russell, define "pure mathematics" as a "subject in which we never know what we are talking about, nor whether what we are saying is true."

If you wish, nevertheless, to obtain a sort of ghost-view of the fourth dimension, you could, perhaps, do no better than consider it from the side of Einstein's idea that it is represented by time. We must all admit that things exist in time as well as in space Then you may consider time as being, not independent of space, but something compounded with space; in short a fourth kind of dimension of which our ordinary senses give us no notion, but which we apprehend through our time-sense. This is the origin of what the Einsteinians call "space-time," which possesses a famous "curvature" that cannot be described except in mathematical language, but which they claim would give Newton a bad quarter of an hour if he could come back and consider it.

Blind Man Makes Rescue of Wife

DENVER, June 28.—"Bill" Johnson, forty-two and blind, is the hero of West Denver today. He rescued his wife from drowning when a boat in which they were fishing overturned in Crown Hill lak.

When the woman sank, Johnson, who can swim just a bit, paddled about calling for his wife. She rose to the surface, and, luckily, struck his arm Johnson, struggled fiercely, managed to bear her up until his hand grasped the upturned boat With a heroic effort he threw the woman's arms over the craft and grabbed hold himself. After resting momentarily, Johnson, with only his wife's voice to guide him, struck out for shore and finally reached firm ground again.

GLIMPSES OF INTERESTING FIGURES AT GATHERING OF DEMOCRATIC HOST

Glimpses of interesting figures at the Democratic convention: 1—Joe Tumulty, secretary to the president during the Wilson administration; 2—William Jennings Bryan himself, in person; 3—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, a "dark horse" aspirant for the nomination; 4—Royal S. Copeland, the medical senator from New York, another "dark horse."

Commish Ruling Just a Joke To Mitten Champs

The title of every champion who fails to defend his honors every six months will be forfeited by this commission."

That is one of the so-called iron clad rules of the New York state boxing commission.

It sounds nice—but it is merely a mess of celebrated applesauce

Benny Leonard has not fought for a year—yet the commission still acclaims him champion of his division.

Micky Walker has not fought for at least that long in a decision bout against a top-notcher—and they still call Mickey the champion

Mike McTigue has not fought anyone of any consequence in a decision tilt since he beat Siki on March 17 a year ago The commission still regards McTigue as champion

Johnny Dundee has not fought against a real opponent in usually a year in defense of his featherweight honors—but he is still a champion with the commission

A half dozen men have been fiting Dempsey has not fought since December Just the same, the commission rules that he is champion of the universe.

G. Sisler Fails As Team Pilot; Fans Jeer Him

Just about now George Sisler is coming to the realization that hell has no fury beyond that which is aroused in St. Louis when a manager cannot get a highly touted baseball club into the thick of the pennant fight.

No more popular player ever wore a Brown uniform than Sisler. He was genuinely admired and respected when he was merely a performer in the Mound City. He was named as manager of the 1924 team amid much hurrahing and loud shouts of gladness.

Everybody there expected that Sisler would lead the Browns close to the top and keep them there throughout the season.

But Sisler has failed to do it and, through the past weeks, the natives have become extremely fretful about it They have razzed and jeered Sisler in rather unmerciful fashion, panned him here and there and everywhere—and perhaps it made Sisler wish that once again he was just a ball player and not the leader of what now seems to be a forlorn pennant hope.

Quiet Required If Golfing Gent To Do His Best

It would seem that the temperament of a golfer completely opposes the temperament of practically every other athlete in the celebrated universe. Ball players, football performers, tennis stars, fighters, wrestlers and all the others are not affected by noise. They play just as well amid the thunder of cheers as they do when enveloped by silence.

"But," declares Francis Ouimet, "noise is a terrible thing for a golfer. Nothing happens rapidly in that game. Everything is deliberate It takes some time for a golfer to get his nerves all tuned up to the proper point of concentration. If at that moment there is noise, his whole nervous system is upset and the shot he is about to make is ruined as far as success is concerned."

policemen were in evidence everywhere. Streets are closed for two blocks about the garden. The great flags draped as a canopy over the vast crowd in the garden drooped in the torrid atmosphere. Coats were off the men delegates. The women looked upon the proceedings with strained eyes, concealing but little the anxiety that obviously was felt.

Newton D. Baker opened the debate for the minority report on the league after Alfred E. Lucking and Senator Jones of New Mexico, had spoken for the majority.

"There is no subject on this earth," Baker said, "apart from my duties to my God and my family, that measures with my feeling on the League of Nations. I have fought with you, marched with you and if at any time in the past I have merited your feeling that I deserved your sympathy and help, give it to me now.

"The man who ought to be pleading here for this cause is resting in hallowed ground," he declared in a broken voice.

He then denounced the majority report as "fantastic and revolutionary."

Weariness Evident.

Baker, showing the weariness and strain of his long fight in the committee on resolutions, declared there was nothing in the majority plank that provided that "we should go into the league before we go through with this proposed unconstitutional, fantastic, revolutionary referendum."

"They march through the dictionary, give it their confidence, but promise it no aid whatever.

"Our attitude is that we are affectionately inclined, but not disposed to marry it.

"The majority report proposed that we lift the league out of party politics and deposit it nowhere."

Impressive Appeal.

The former war secretary made an impassioned appeal. "I'm not talking to democrats," he said. "I am talking to lovers of mankind. I have sat over there in that room for days and nights without sleep. I have heard talk of expediency and votes, till I'm sick of it. I'm talking of life and death and love of our fellowman.

"When we get through with 'full time for consideration,'" he said, "my boy, who I am trying to save from war, will be dead on a field of battle."

He won a great cheer when he attacked Lodge.

"Senator Lodge," he said, "and when I say that name I am not speaking of a person, but a malevolent institution. What this majority report means is that we are substituting for the democratic party the attitude of the republican party—we are substituting Henry Cabot Lodge for Woodrow Wilson."

Has No Quarre.

The committee, he said, he had no quarrel with and had mixed harsh words with none during the long days and nights of work.

"But the trouble is," he said, "that they (the senators on the resolutions committee) have been in the senate until they can't think on a foreign subject.

Baker charged in his speech that the referendum as proposed was actually an election to be held under federal control. It would take years he said, to get all of the referendums taken, if they were taken through the state election machinery, which would be one way of taking it under federal control. The other way would be to hold it through the census bureau.

"Postal cards could be sent out to every one by the census bureau so that the answer could be sent back on a ballot to be clipped off and mailed to Washington.

Would Defeat Senate Vote.

"If you had plenty of votes in the senate to go into the league, you would be compelled to stay out of it until you had gone through with the fantastic proposal made in the majority report," he said.

He then asked: "Will we win or lose votes by going in to the league?"

"I don't think we would lose?

The reefrendum proposed is unconstitutional, he added, "and I know that there are thousands who would like to vote for the league but who would not vote to do so knowing that it would be unconstitutional."

"Now don't think that I love Woodrow Wilson more than I love you. I merely know him better. I can just imagine him looking over my shoulder here and see the fine contempt on his face if he were asked to approve this majority report.

Praises Former President.

"Woodrow Wilson won the war.

"Woodrow Wilson won the world.

"Woodrow Wilson won the peace.

"Woodrow Wilson died for what he won for us.

"That's our history.

"And whoever is nominated by this convention—I assume we will nominate a candidate sometime—what will he say when asked for his first interview and the first question asked him is: 'Are you in favor of the league of nations?'

"If he says, 'no,' then the party has ceased to be blessed by Woodrow Wilson.

"If he says 'yes,' then his questioners may answer, 'Well, your party was afraid to say so.'

"Others have opposed this cause. Hiram Johnson opposed it once. Where is he now?

Outburst of Applause.

At this, there was a great outburst of aplause.

"I'm past the military age. I have memories. I have closed the eyes of soldiers dying on the battle field, and they have whispered messages to me to take to their mothers. They were so superbly splendid. They were willing to go—if they could be sure of two things; one, that their mothers be notified, and the other that someone might carry on and build upon this earth a temple whence might go forth the appeal to end forever sacrifices bred of hate.

"I served Woodrow Wilson for five years. I say to him.

'I did my best. I'm doing it now. You're still the captain of my soul. He's standing here—using me to say to you, 'Save mankind. Do your duty!"

Mighty Cheer Given.

At Baker's conclusion, hundreds of delegates leaped to their feet waving their state standards, shouting, cheering, swinging flags and posters. It was a full blast demonstration, with the band playing and the entire floor in a furore of excitement. Tears streamed down the faces of men and women throughout the delegateions and on the platform as Baker referred in touching terms to Wilson.

Spreading out his arms, Baker cried:

"He is here now. He is standing beside me. He is speaking through my voice to call upon you to keep the faith to save mankind. I don't refer to the pale or shrunken figure that I last saw—a living sacrifice to a cause—but to the great leader as we knew him in his strength—the captain of my soul."

As the demonstration quieted, the band struck up "Onword Christian Soldiers" and for several minutes the vast throng stood, with tears streaming down cheeks and heads bowed.

After the vote was taken on the Baker minority report, on the league plank, the two hour debate on the anti-klan plank was begun.

REJECT PROPOSAL TO NAME KLAN

Mrs. Carrell Miller of Pennsylvania, was introduced to carry on in support of the minority plank favoring reference to the klan direct.

Mrs. Miller denounced the "outlawry and criminality" of the klan.

"Since when has the democratic party knelt before the God of expediency?" she asked.

Prefers Defeat.

"We never have won when we've quibbled. I'd rather go down to defeat on a clear cut moral issue than win on an issue which you can't recognize for the hideous mask that is in front of it."

"Let us remember it is better to be a doorkeeper in the house of God than remain in the tents of the wicked forever."

When Mrs. Miller finished there was another sharp outbreak of applause. Delegates rose and shouted their approval—but the applause lasted only a minute.

Governor Morrison of North Carolina, was next introduced to continue the debate.

He declared the principles of the klan are not things that should come in for governmental action. It is a problem for the ministers of the gospel, he said. There is nothing for governmental action until the members commit some crimes. Then it should be the duty of the police to take prompt action."

W. J. Bryan Speaks.

W. J. Bryan in addressing the convention said:

"There is not a state in the union where any one whose rights are denied cannot go an dobtain redress. It is not necessary to protest any church.

"I have much confidence in the Catholic church, which was for over a thousand years my mother church as well as yours.

"The Catholic church does not need a great party to protect it from a million men.

"The Jews," he continued, "do not need a great party to protect them from a million men.

"The Jews do not heed this resolution. They have Moses—they have Elijah, and the Jewish race has its great characters today who will plead for them.

"And next, my friends, the Ku Klux Klan does not deserve the advertisement this would bring. The minority, who could not join with us to leave out these three magic and mystic words, have raised the klan to a higher altitude than the Ku Klux Klan themselves ever raised their fiery cross.

Urges Fight on G. O. P.

"We have no right to let the klan divert us from the greatest issue we ever had. It requires more courage to fight the republican party than it does to fight the klan.

"We find farmers in bankruptcy and while we have distress in the country that cries aloud for relief, and while we have a war-worn world that cries for help and guidance, these minority men say we lack courage if we pass these by and start out to hunt a thing that is dead and will pass away.

"I have left for the last what I regard as the greatest argument. If the democratic party is diverted from its duty some other party will take up its task."

Prepare for Vote.

William Jennings Bryan concluded speaking for the majority at 11:20 and the convention settled down to vote on the minority report from the resolutions committee, which would name the klan directly in the platform plank on religious liberty. Five minutes was given in which the delegates might poll their members.

After the vote was completed, several delegations objected to their vote as given and the delegations were polled. On a poll the Louisiana vote was changed to no, 20.

The poll of the Ohio delegation was announced as aye 31½, no 16½. Washington, no 14.

With several delegations demanding a poll of the delegations, the unofficial results indicated the plank mentioning the klan directly had lost by a narrow margin, the unofficial vote being 540½: yes: against 545½ no.

In the confusion preliminary to the announcement of the vote, a delegate in the Illinois section demanded verification of the whole convention vote. At the same time, E. H. Moore of Ohio, leaped to a chair and challenged the vote of both the Philippines and the Canal Zone. The challenge on the latter was not allowed.

A long discussion followed over the Philippines vote when it was discovered that not all of the delegates were present.

The Philippines vote was finally changed to aye 2, no 3.

Hall In Confusion.

After the result of the Philippine vote was announced, police rushed in to quell a disturbance in the delegation. The entire hall was soon in confusion. Most of the delegates were standing on their chairs, all shouting at once.

Another row broke out in the Philippine delegation and it was necessary to poll again.

This time on the poll the vote was yes 3, no 2, narrowing the margin by which those opposing the klan being named had obtained on the vote.

Canal Zone asked that its vote be polled and the cordon of police, which had been around the Philippine standard, moved on down to the Panama Canal section.

The Canal Zone vote was unchanged after the recount.

Canal Zone vote was aye 2, no 4.

The Georgia delegation then asked to be polled and the flying squad of police moved into that section.

PROPOSITION FOR ONE-HOUSE NOT TO BE SUBMITTED

ing in which to get the required 41,000.

July 4 is the last date allowed by statute for filing initiative petitions with the secretary of state. As that date is a legal holiday, they would probably have to be presented on the 3rd. The law says that all petitions must be on file not less than four months prior to the date of the general election, which comes on November 4.

Mr. Mutz started his canvass for the proposition to abolish the state senate, five or six months ago, but it has not been pushed vigorously and the necessary number of signatures has not been secured. The task of making a state wide canvass for initiative petitions proved to be greater than was realized before hand. It involved also a considerable expenditure of foney for postage and other items. Mr. Mutz did no tfeel that he could stand this outlav himself, and there was not enough financial support to carry the project throuh.

Sorensen Has Primary Petitions.

Announcement was made Saturday by C. A. Sorensen that his proposed constitutional amendment to take the election of state and local officers and members of the legislature out of partisan politics, and to make the direct primary permanent as the system for choosing candidates, is sure of getting upon the ballot.

"I have petitions now with a total of about 40,000 names attached," said Mr. Sorensen, "and more are coming in every mail. We are now finishing up in Douglas county, which will add two or three thousand names to the list. The filing will be made on Wednesday.

"We already have 5 per cent petitions from about 60 counties, while the law requires only 37. That shows how much interest there is in the nonpartisan plan for selecting public officials in Nebraska. I am confident it will carry by a big majority in November."

Sorensen's amendment to the constitution provides that all candidates for state, county and local offices as well as members of the legislature, shall be nominated and elected without any party designation on the ballot. His plan is simply to extend the method now in vogue for choosing supreme and district court judges, county judges, state and the county superintendents, and regents of the state university.

Will Have Some Speeches.

Preparations are being made for a little ceremonial program at the secretary of state's office in conjunction with the filing of the petitions on Wednesday. Mr. Sorensen will be there to arrange the details, which will include brief talks by leading members of the league of women voters, the farmers' union, the W. C. T. U., the railroad brotherhoods and possibly other bodies.

A photograph of the proceedings will be taken in order to commemorate the occasion and preserve a historical record of it.

Present indications are that the permanent primary-non-partisan ballot proposition will be the only one on the election ballot. There was some talk of initiating a state-owned bank scheme, and also one for state fire insurance, but nothing has been heard lately of either matter. Passage of the national bonus bill by congress appears to have killed off the agitation for a state bonus, which some ex-service men were promoting.

Two billions. That's the potential inheritance now of the two small boys and baby girl of Edsel Ford, only child of Henry Ford, motor king. The Ford fortune is growing by leaps and bounds; when they are grown up it may be $4,000,000,000. Statisticians believe they are the richest children in the history of the world.

Henry Ford II is 6, Edsel, Jr., 4, and Baby Josephine five months old.

Injured Brought From Lorain Disaster Tell Pitiful Story Of Whole Families Wiped Out

CLEVELAND, June 29—(Sunday, 1:30 a. m.)—The first load of injured arrived from Lorain at Lakewood hospital about 1 o'clock this morning.

Steve Kordos, 35, was the first to die. His home had fallen in on him while he was at dinner.

Pitiful tales were told by the injured.

John Takats who lived in the Lorain shipyards reservation told how his home fell in on himself, his wife and two children. He was taken away by rescue squads and does not know what happened to his family.

A similar story was told by Joe Kregon, who was brought into Cleveland without knowing what happened to his wife and four children, who were caught when his home was demolished.

Mrs. Mary Stasiak of Lorain, told how she was blown down the street for blocks, hurled against buildings and automobiles. Others brought into Lakewood were Mrs. Mary Weston and Mrs. Vergs.

Twenty Lakewood physicians were working all night in the operating room.

Whole Blocks Razed.

All buildings in that section of Sandusky between Warren, Meigs and North Washington streets and the river front were razed, Toledo reported.

In one residential section alone fifty homes were destroyed.

Autos were blown into the bay. The city is without water supplies following damage to the water plant, and disease from drinking impure water was feared.

The town is at the mercy of fire, should it break out.

Twenty factories are reported in ruins.

Details of the disaster at French Creek are lacking. The one report received from there came to Cleveland police, who were dispatched to Lorain.

They merely stopped long enough to report that the town had been destroyed No estimate of lives lost at French Creek could be given.

About People

Bethel No. 5, Job's Daughters, held an open installation of officers at Masonic temple, 236 South Eleventh street, Saturday night. About 200 witnessed the ceremony which was followed by a short program and the serving of refreshments by the members of Electa chapter, O. E. S.

During the installation ceremony Miss Thora Baer, retiring honored queen was presented with a bouquet by Miss Irene Noyes. She also received a bouquet from Mrs. Truda Rivett as a token from Electa chapter, O. E. S., and past honored queen's pin from Miss Jane Stone. Miss Baer gave each member of the guardian council a group picture of the retiring officers.

Miss Ruth Clendenin, installed as honored queen, was presented with a bouquet of roses by Miss Graham on behalf of Electa chapter. Miss Graham also presented a token from the chapter to Millicent McCord, supreme guardian. As a part of the program following the installation Miss Irene Martin gave a reading and Electa chapter quartet sang. Both responded to encores. SCORES KILLED IN OHIO STORM the mass of struggling humanity in the wreckage, he said.

Eighty bodies had been taken from the wrecked State theater at Lorain which collapsed during the tornado, Chief of Police Skankard of Elyria, telephoned shortly after 10 c'clock tonight.

The electrical storm which struck Lorain about 7 p. m., was general over northern Ohio. It struck like exploding dynamite as lightning crashed down accompanied by a terrific gale.

An excursion steamer with more than 200 on board was reported missing in a terrific storm off Sandusky, according to word received here tonight. Grave fears were expressed in shipping circles as to her safety.

Telephone Wires Down.

All telephone lines to Sandusky and vicinity have been torn down by the storm.

A passenger brakeman from Sandusky relayed the report to Bellevue.

Chief Skankard said over the telephone at 9 p. m.:

"I have just talked with persons coming from Lorain. They tell me that the dead and injured are lying in the streets. Automobiles and other vehicles are piled up in heaps. My information is that eight or ten blocks in the business district were wrecked or partially wrecked, mowing down a typical Saturday evening down-town crowd.

"We already have started receiving injured in hospitals at Elyria we have sent to Lorain all of the doctors that could be spared from emergency work in Elyria. We also have sent a number of nurses.

"We also dispatched our fire department to Lorain to assist in the rescue."

Verification Lacking.

Reports of an excursion steamer sinking could not be verified although the rumor persisted. All direct wires to Sandusky were down.

From 25 to 100 persons may be dead in Sandusky, Ambrose Ball of Bellevue, who just returned from Sandusky to Bellevue told the United Press over the telephone at 9:30 p. m.

"Nearly the entire town along the lake front has been wiped out."

"The ferry from Sandusky to Lake Side broke her moorings and is adrift in the bay or lake. Numerous small boats also broke away.

"The excursion steamer, which was reported missing, is safe at her dock with all passengers.

Buildings Jumbled.

"I never saw such destruction," Ball said. "Buildings along the water front are jumbled up in a mass of wreckage.

"My conservative estimate of the number killed from what I heard, is from 25 to 100."

The Nickle Plate passenger station at Kimball, near Bellevue, was reported demolished. The station agent is reported dead.

The Nickle Plate passenger train No. 2, leaving Bellevue at 7:45 for Cleveland, was forced to return because of a washout.

A switch engine crashed through a draw bridge at Lorain and two freighters and a number of small craft were carried out into the lake, according to reports from Elyria.

Restrictions Shunt Immigrants to Latin American Countries

LONDON, June 28.—Barred from entering the United States by the recently passed new immigration act. European emigrants are turning their eyes toward South America.

Shipping companies serving the South American route report that their vessels sailing to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Pernambuco are carrying increased numbers of imigrant passengers, and in some steamers the third-class accommodation is fully booked up for weeks ahead.

Southhampton immigration officials report that nearly every vessel in the South Atlantic trade is carrying between four and six hundred imigrants every trip. Prominent observers think that sooner or later this fact must affect steamships running on the Europe-New York service, and that there will be a transfer of the struggle for North Atlantic bookings to the South Atlantic.

Some authorities even predict that one or two of the "Big Six" liners may desert the Southhampton-New York trade and reinforce the Liverpool-South American route.

Blind Man Makes Rescue of Wife

DENVER, June 28.—"Bill" Johnson, forty-two and blind, is the hero of West Denver today. He rescued his wife from drowning when a boat in which they were fsihing overturned in Crown Hill lak.

When the woman sank, Johnson, who can swim just a bit, paddled about calling for his wife. She rose to the surface, and, luckily, struck his arm Johnson, struggled fiercely, managed to bear her up until his hand grasped the upturned boat. With a heroic effort he threw the woman's arms over the craft and grabbed hold himself. After resting momentarily, Johnson, with only his wife's voice to guide him, struck out for shore and finally reached firm ground again.

Could You Use A Fourth Dimension.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Would you please explain to me what is meant by 'the fourth dimension?'—J. F."

This question is so frequently asked that it seems desirable, once in a while, to attempt an answer. There is no real difficulty in understanding "what is meant" by the fourth dimension provided that first you get clearly in mind what the three ordinary dimensions are, and especially the reason why there are three and only three. I have found that a surprising number of educated people have very misty ideas about this. They are confused by the fact that they can think of an object as having an infinite number of dimensions, because it extends outward from its center on all sides in every conceivable direction.

But, while this is true, yet there are but but three fundamental directions involved in the construction of any solid body, or in open spaces, all the others being summed up in these three, which alone are called dimensions. They are length, breadth, and thickness, or height.

Consider the room in which you are sitting; it is say 15 feet long, 12 feet broad, and 8 feet high. These three dimensions are measured at right angles to one another, and you can find no more than three dimensions bearing that relation. The respective names that you give them have no importance except for convenience; you can interchange them all at will. If you run an imaginary line from a lower corner of the room to the diagonally opposite upper corner, little thought will show that the extension of this line is made up of the three original dimensions. It is contained in the length, breadth, and height of the room. Taking those dimensions as a whole you may turn them about as much as you like, and regard them in whatever aspect you will, but you can never add to their number, or change their relation to one another. A solid, then, or space itself, is made up of three and only three dimensions.

So, too, a plane, flat surface is made up of only two dimensions,—length and breadth; while a straight line if it had no thickness, would possess but one dimension,—length.

Now, with these things clear in your head, consider what a fourth dimension would have to be. Plainly, it would have to be something entirely different from either length, breadth, or thickness, and inasmuch as only length, breadth, and thickness are found to exist in any material object, or in the space around material objects, we must conclude that a fourth dimension can only be described—at least as far as human experience is concerned—as a metaphysical conception which has no corresponding reality for us.

Many attempts have been made to present a sort of geometrical representation of the fourth dimension, but they have no real meaning, and are worse than useless for purposes of explanation. The fact is that the fourth dimension idea is purely the product of transcendental mathematics, spurning reality, and starting from abstract notions to build up its beautiful structures, for beautiful—as soap bubbles—they do appear to those who, with Bertrand Russell, define "pure mathematics" as a "subject in which we never know what we are talking about, nor whether what we are saying is true."

If you wish, nevertheless, to obtain a sort of ghost-view of the fourth dimension, you could, perhaps, do no better than consider it from the side of Einstein's idea that it is represented by time. We must all admit that things exist in time as well as in space. Then you may consider time as being, not independent of space, but something compounded with space; in short a fourth kind of dimension of which our ordinary senses give us no notion, but which we apprehend through our time-sense. This is the origin of what the Einsteinians call "space-time," which possesses a famous "curvature" that cannot be described except in mathematical language, but which they claim would give Newton a bad quarter of an hour if he could come back and consider it.

Commish Ruling Just a Joke To Mitten Champs

The title of every champion who fails to defend his honors every six months will be forfeited by this commission."

That is one of the so-called iron clad rules of the New York state boxing commission.

It sounds nice—but it is merely a mess of celebrated applesauce.

Benny Leonard has not fought for a year—yet the commission still acclaims him champion of his division.

Micky Walker has not fought for at least that long in a decision bout against a top-notcher—and they still call Mickey the champion.

Mike McTigue has not fought anyone of any consequence in a decision tilt since he beat Siki on March 17 a year ago. The commission still regards McTigue as champion.

Johnny Dundee has not fought against a real opponent in usually a year in defense of his featherweight honors—but he is still a champion with the commission.

A half dozen men have been firing Dempsey has not fought since December. Just the same, the commission rules that he is champion of the universe.

G. Sisler Fails As Team Pilot; Fans Jeer Him

Just about now George Sisler is coming to the realization that hell has no fury beyond that which is aroused in St. Louis when a manager cannot get a highly touted baseball club into the thick of the pennant fight.

No more popular player ever wore a Brown uniform than Sisler. He was genuinely admired and respected when he was merely a performer in the Mound City. He was named as manager of the 1924 team amid much hurrahing and loud shouts of gladness.

Everybody there expected that Sisler would lead the Browns close to the top and keep them there throughout the season.

But Sisler has failed to do it and, through the past weeks, the natives have become extremely fretful about it. They have razzed and jeered Sisler in rather unmerciful fashion, panned him here and there and everywhere—and perhaps it made Sisler wish that once again he was just a ball player and not the leader of what now seems to be a forlorn pennant hope.

Quiet Required If Golfing Gent To Do His Best

It would seem that the temperament of a golfer completely opposes the temperament of practically every other athlete in the celebrated universe. Ball players, football performers, tennis stars, fighters, wrestlers and all the others are not affected by noise. They play just as well amid the thunder of cheers as they do when enveloped by silence.

"But," declares Francis Ouimet, "noise is a terrible thing for a golfer. Nothing happens rapidly in that game. Everything is deliberate. It takes some time for a golfer to get his nerves all tuned up to the proper point of concentration. If at that moment there is noise, his whole nervous system is upset and the shot he is about to make is ruined as far as success is concerned."

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

The sign governing this date is Cancer, the Crab, and the head sign of the Water Triplicity. This sign governs the breast and maternal functions of the grand man. It is a cardinal, feminine, movable, watery phlegmatic, nocturnal sign, the Positive pole of the Water Triplicity.

The higher attributes are feeling and sympathy.

This sign is called the paradox of the twelve. A few harmonious people are found in it, who as far as known have not given or taken special attention to mental or spiritual development; but, generally speaking, the genius of the Cancer sign is exceedingly difficult to explain.

The governing planet of this date is the moon and the birthstone is a black onyx. The astral colors are green and russet brown.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

The sign governing this date is Cancer, the Crab, and the head sign of the Water Triplicity. This sign governs the breast and maternal functions of the grand man. It is a cardinal, feminine, movable, watery phlegmatic, nocturnal sign, the Positive pole of the Water Triplicity.

The higher attributes are feeling and sympathy.

This sign is called the paradox of the twelve. A few harmonious people are found in it, who as far as known have not given or taken special attention to mental or spiritual development; but, generally speaking, the genius of the Cancer sign is exceedingly difficult to explain.

The governing planet of this date is the moon and the birthstone is a black onyx. The astral colors are green and russet brown.

A BATH A DAY KEEPS YOU FIT EVERY WAY

A Bath a Day Keeps You Fit Every Way

This slogan "A Bath a Day Keeps You Fit Every Way." has circled the world It is a messenger of better health, greater ambition, higher efficiency, large happiness

A Bath a Day is a better tonic than anything put up in bottles. Cheaper, too.

It doesn't matter what kind of a bath you take—cold or cool, hot or warm And it doesn't matter how you take it—in a Tub or under a shower. The point is take it every day. It is the every day habit that gives health and all that goes with health.

June is National Bath a Day Month, which means now is a good time to start the daily bath habit.

A TWO-FAMILY BRICK COLONIAL

Conservative in every line is this dignified brick Colonial house of the semi-detached type. Whether you are building as a home or as an investment, you will make no mistake in selecting this plan

There is no gingerbread ornament to get out of date. For ornament, the house depends entirely upon excellent proportions, and the good design and balanced placing of such elements as the pleasing, unassuming porches, the correctly-designed dormers and interesting chimneys. Even the Colonial twelve-light windows symmetrically placed become a decorative element, with their header courses of brick and their blinds and shutters. The homebuilder has a wide range of choice in selecting the color of the brick and the stain for the shingle roof, if he does not choose slate, copper or zinc.

One of the most-often-desired features of a two-family house is that it shall not patently appear to be other than a single residence—in fact zoning restrictions often make this imperative. This design meets that requirement admirably.

Each apartment has five rooms—living room, dining room and kitchen downstairs, and two bed rooms and bath upstairs. In addition, each has its own share of the ample attic space, with private stairs leading to it, and each has its own heating, laundry and storage space in the basement. Especially noteworthy is the absolutely privacy attained for each family—each has its own porch and entrance, its attic, and its outside basement steps.

The little points of interior design that appeal to the housewife seem to have all been included in this desirable home. There is a vestibule, coat closet, fireplace, broom closet, clothing chute, and an outside icing refrigerator. Each bedroom has two closets for hanging clothing. Among the convenient built in items in each apartment are a pair of Colonial corner china closets (ivory doors and the delicately molded trim) enameled, like the six-panel Colonial—kitchen dresser and worktable, and upstairs a tray case, linen case and medicine cabinet.

All of these are standard stock permanent furniture in Colonial designs, whih are produced in quantities and are reasonable in cost.

The dimensions of the building are 39 feet by 31 feet 3 inches, exclusive of porches. It is a design suitable for the most exclusive neighborhood, and the interior incorporates conveniences and beauty for the most fastidious occupants.

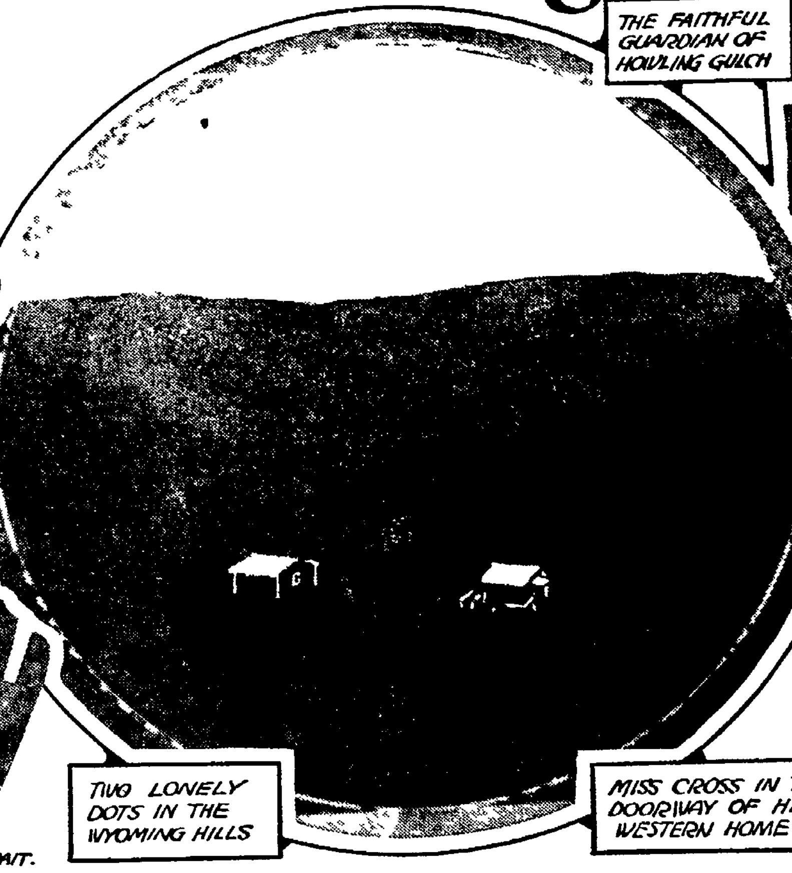
TWENTY-SECOND YEAR LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, JUNE 29, 1924. FOURTEEN PAGES

Nebraska University Co-ed Likes Pioneer Western Life on Howling Gulch Homestead

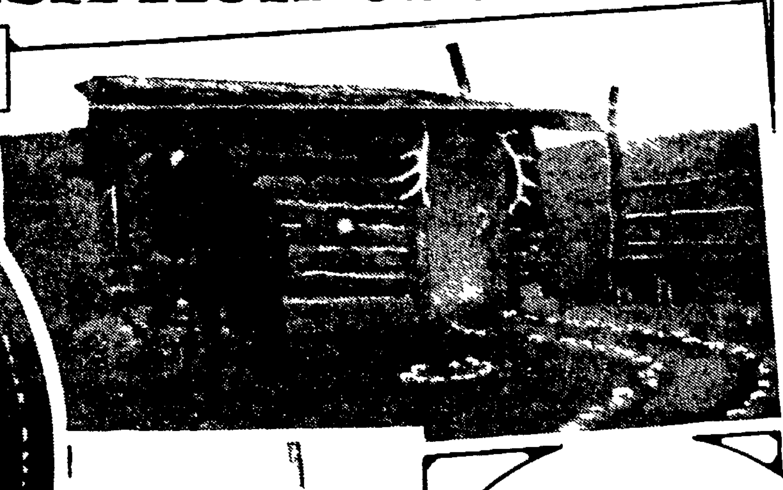
WHEN EMMA CROSS ATTENDS THE UNIVERSITY

TOWNSEND PORTRAIT.



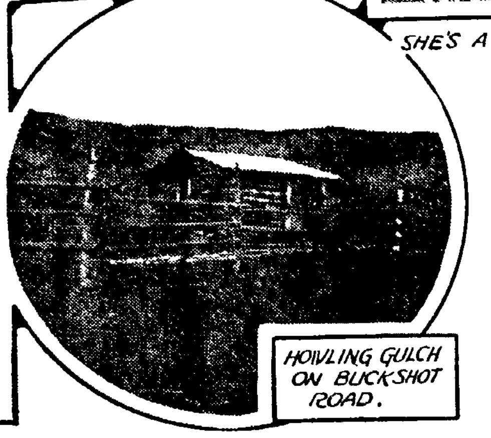
THE FAITHFUL GUARDIAN OF HOWLING GULCH

TWO LONELY DOTS IN THE WYOMING HILLS



SHE'S A REAL COWGIRL HERE

MISS CROSS IN THE DOORWAY OF HER WESTERN HOME.



HOWLING GULCH ON BUCKSHOT ROAD.

By LULU MAE COE

How d you like to be all alone out in Wyoming with nobody nearer than five miles and hear the hungry coyotes howling and see nothing more than a couple of glowering mountains and hear the wind tearing at your little cabin?

And how d you like to be a girl and know all that?

Zane Grey would have a fine time with such a setting but the howling coyotes and the far neighbors do not exist in wild western plots alone

They are realities to Emma Cross who attended the university this past year and two years before that

Emma, hailing into our midst from Douglas Wyo wasn t content to have an education and nothing else Nor was she content to be eddicated and not have for her own a bit of her state Emma wanted a degree and a homestead so first she had a little homesteading then a little education and then a little homesteading—which is exactly what she is doing at this moment.

Lonesome Brown Cabin.

All by herself she is homesteading out near Douglas living in a bit of a brown cabin lonesome in its isolation waiting until Uncle Sam says Good girl you may go now" To attend the university this year Emma had a leave of absence but took early examinations and returned to her homestead

Her homestead consists of 640 acres which cost her a filing fee of $34—or in other words as she says,

The government bet me 640 acres of sagebrush against $34 that I d starve in three years But I m going to fool Uncle Sam

Emma lived on the homestead during the year 1922-1923 until autumn when she returned to the university the previous summer and arrived early from school in the spring of 1922 so she could go to her homestead. She hopes to prove up on the land at the end of this summer but it won't officially be hers until President Coolidge signs her patent, which should be this fall

To secure her claim, Emma has lived seven months out of each year on her to be property and she has been able to get a five months leave of absence However the claim isn t subject to contest until six months after the leave has expired

Winter and Summer

In winter and summer, with no companionship but a kindly old horse and a watchful dog and her trusty gun, this daughter of a banker ex-senator and ranchman has lived in her little cabin snuggling for strength up against the hills that would be mountains in Nebraska. And in between times she has snatched a college education, hoping to graduate next year

Douglas is the nearest railroad station and the nearest town twenty seven miles away where Emma s mail is addressed From there a stage line comes out twice a week Monday and Friday bringing the mail but she is obliged to ride seven miles to the home ranch—where her parents Mr and Mrs George H Cross Sr live—for her epistles. Her nearest neighbor is five miles away but he is a brother who is also securing a claim at the same time Emma does

People have gone on claims for many reasons in the world—health financial losses family troubles ad venture curiosity—but probably no one ever had a truer reason for giving up the comforts of home and going into the wooly wes ern hills Of that, she says

She Gives Her Reason

The reason I took a claim is because I just grew up in the sage brush with the cattle wolves coyotes and all the other wild things The old saying One can take the boy out of the country but you can never take the country out of the boy —that s me all over A claim is a good investment too and it s good grazing land for my cattle

I m alone but I never get so terribly alone as my horse occasionally reminds me of his presence with a friendly neigh and my dog barks at the howling coyotes My gun is always loaded and I m pretty quick on the trigger too

The tiny little log hut sixteen by twenty in which she lives small and isolated as it is much more resembles an attractive hunting lodge than the usual bleak bare homesteader s cabin Her three brothers and a hired man built it one day out of native logs from the mountains nearby

There's only one room to the house but Emma imagines there are four and the four corners are fitted up for all the rooms of the house Every space is used for something even the walls which are "pictured" with covers from all the modern magazines from Vanity Fair down and with all the shieks and sheikesses of "movie" and dramatic fame

Near one wall is a cute little stove just like a range only smaller and which cooks just the proper amount for one all by herself Next to it is her work table and under this table is the wood box—more than once Emma has lustily chopped its contents— The provision and dish cupboard is above the table

The corner is devoted to a dining alcove and in the opposite corner is the homestead s parlor—not so large but not uncomfortable after a day s labor Here Emma has a window seat which camouflages a big box—mouse proof she says—where she keeps paints magazines books and all the heterogeneous collection of a housewife s gathering—even though she be the man of the house as well as the lady of the house

The best of the parlor is an old Morris chair—obtained from the home ranch—a small library table laden with more books and more magazines and a diminuitive victrola that almost drowns out the coyotes A jolly cretonne curtain hangs at the one and only window and a large American flag flings its colors across one end of the room

This little cabin might have been dropped on the Wyoming landscape by mistake—it really seems to belong in the Adirondacks Window boxes clinging to the one window sill and imagine that their beauties peep in at other windows and a rough little cobblestone walk leads from the house to the barn which Emma hauled to her domain herself

A Zane Grey never aspired to such a plot as that!

Emma's homestead isn't purely an investment—she s keeping it for her old age—as a place to retire when she wearies of the fascinations of the world outside

Not Purely an Investment

Nor is the Homestead cultivated Emma does not have to go out and ride a tractor all day—though she can punch cattle—because she doesn t own a tractor and there s nothing to tract if she wanted to She took the claim under the homestead act of Congress of 1917 which provides that certain land is only suitable for grazing And Emma s cattle graze there all day long

She says her land is covered with healthy sagebrush cactus and a few very few trees with a few mountain wild flowers thrown in for color She is also the proud posessor of a little creek—it might easily be called a gully and nothing more—which if the weather condescends to be a little damp tinkles merrily through the homestead

Shes 'just as independent in financing her claim as she was in going forth to acquire it The expenses of building and food supplies and food for the cattle she made in some fortunate adventures in oil—and she worked for the money to invest in the oil stock

Life—at least in pleasant weather—isn t so bad at Howling Gulch!

Fishing and Hunting

During the day Emma goes fishing or hunting or does a little cow punching If it is a little drear outside she starts in and bakes cake or some cookies and other goodies so that her brothers will have an attraction to call at her home There's a lot of time for reading and now and again Emma aspires to a short story although she s not optimistic as to their outcome and then it is always possible to ride to the home ranch for mail and supplies and a little visit with the home folks

There s much excitement around Howling Gulch about this time but time alone will tell whether or not there ll be any results from the excitement An 1800 foot well was drilled five miles from Howling Gulch but so far no Rockefellers have resulted from the oil gushing from the well One of Emma s callers was a geologist who said there was a fold" on her claim—but she s not counting the ducats yet—she thinks perhaps he wanted one of the fresh-baked cookies

Emma is a modern woman—when the idea strikes her she wears riding breeches and high boots When she feels temperamental and wants a change she wears nickers and wool hose One gets so tired of boots" says she

Lonesome—Well, Hardly

If we were there however we'd speak for boots daily—for in one day last summer Emma—without masculine assistance and without feminine flutters—killed thirteen rattlesnakes right around her cabin Who could be lonesome in Howling Gulch?

Sign here all who enter here is Emma s slogan and she s not waiting to have a guest book until she enters the holy state of matrimony She has a register and all the guests are requested to put their names addresses the date and any remarks in the book Practically every state in the union is represented by some name

Emma has worke hard for her homestead and has spent hours when she might wish she were with a group of friends out playing 'round—and she's in sight of her goal But she doesn't always want to be a homesteader—that s really only a nest egg—a haven to which she can turn if necessary

Her life ambition is to draw the pretty girls and handsome men in the magazine advertisements to make bewitching maidens advertising tooth paste and young Adonises who wear collars She wants to work with colors and pigments—and no small part of her days are devoted to practicing her art

TOWNSEND PORTRAIT.

THE FAITHFUL GUARDIAN OF HOWLING GULCH

SHE'S A REAL COWGIRL HERE.

HOWLING GULCH ON BUCKSHOT ROAD.

By LULU MAE COE.

How'd you like to be all alone out in Wyoming with nobody nearer than five miles and hear the hungry coyotes howling and see nothing more than a couple of glowering mountains and hear the wind tearing at your little cabin?

And how'd you like to be a girl and know all that?

Zane Grey would have a fine time with such a setting, but the howling coyotes and the far neighbors do not exist in wild western plots alone.

They are realities to Emma Cross, who attended the university this past year and two years before that.

Emma, hailing into our midst from Douglas, Wyo., wasn't content to have an education, and nothing else. Nor was she content to be "eddicated" and not have for her own a bit of her state. Emma wanted a degree and a homestead, so first she had a little homesteading, then a little education, and then a little homesteading—which is exactly what she is doing at this moment.

Lonesome Brown Cabin.

All by herself she is homesteading out near Douglas, living in a bit of a brown cabin, lonesome in its isolation, waiting until Uncle Sam says "Good girl, you may go now." To attend the university this year, Emma had a leave of absence, but took early examinations and returned to her homestead.

Her homestead consists of 640 acres which cost her a filing fee of $34—or in other words, as she says:

"The government bet me 640 acres of sagebrush against $34 that I'd starve in three years. But I'm going to fool Uncle Sam."

Emma lived on the homestead during the year 1922-1923 until autumn, when she returned to the university the previous summer, and arrived early from school in the spring of 1922, so she could go to her homestead. She hopes to prove up on the land at the end of this summer, but it won't officially be hers until President Coolidge signs her patent, which should be this fall.

To secure her claim, Emma has lived seven months out of each year on her to-be-property and she has been able to get a five months' leave of absence. However, the claim isn't subject to contest until six months after the leave has expired.

Winter and Summer.

In winter and summer, with no companionship but a kindly old horse and a watchful dog and her trusty gun, this daughter of a banker, ex-senator, and ranchman has lived in her little cabin snuggling for strength up against the hills that would be mountains in Nebraska. And in between times, she has snatched a college education, hoping to graduate next year.

Douglas is the nearest railroad station and the nearest town, twenty-seven miles away, where Emma's mail is addressed. From there, a stage line comes out twice a week, Monday and Friday bringing the mail, but she is obliged to ride seven miles to the home ranch—where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cross, Sr., live—for her epistles. Her narest neighbor is five miles away, but he is a brother, who is also securing a claim at the same time Emma does.

People have gone on claims for many reasons in the world—health, financial losses, family troubles, adventure, curiosity—but probably no one ever had a truer reason for giving up the comforts of home and going into the wooly western hills. Of that, she says:

She Gives Her Reason.

"The reason I took a claim is because I just grew up in the sagebrush with the cattle, wolves, coyotes, and all the other wild things. The old saying, 'One can take the boy out of the country but you can never take the country out of the boy'—that's me all over! A claim is a good investment, too, and it's good grazing land for my cattle.

"I'm alone, but I never get so terribly alone, as my horse occasionally reminds me of his presence with a friendly neigh and my dog barks at the howling coyotes. My gun is always loaded and I'm pretty quick on the trigger, too."

The tiny little log hut, sixteen by twenty, in which she lives, small and isolated as it is, much more resembles an attractive hunting lodge than the usual bleak, bare homesteader's cabin. Her three brothers and a hired man built it one day out of native logs from the mountains nearby.

There's only one room to the house, but Emma imagines there are four and the four corners are fitted up for all the rooms of the house. Every space is used for something, even the walls which are "pictured" with covers from all the modern magazines, from Vanity Fair down, and with all the shieks and sheikesses of "movie" and dramatic fame.

Near one wall is a cute little stove, just like a range, only smaller, and which cooks just the proper amount for one all by herself. Next to it is her work table and under this table is the wood box—more than once Emma has lustily chopped its contents—. The provision and dish cupboard is above the table.

The corner is devoted to a dining alcove and in the opposite corner is the homestead's parlor—not so large but not uncomfortable after a day's labor. Here Emma has a window seat which camouflages a big box—mouse proof, she says—where she keeps paints, magazines, books, and all the heterogeneous collection of a housewife's gathering—even though she be the man of the house as well as the lady of the house.

The best of the parlor is an old Morris chair—obtained from the home ranch—a small library table laden with more books and more magazines, and a diminuitive victrola that almost drowns out the coyotes. A jolly cretonne curtain hangs at the one and only window and a large American flag flings its colors across one end of the room.

This little cabin might have been dropped on the Wyoming landscape by mistake—it really seems to belong in the Adirondacks. Window boxes clinging to the one window sill and imagine that their beauties peep in at other windows and a rough little cobblestone walk leads from the house to the barn, which Emma hauled to her domain herself.

A Zane Grey never aspired to such a plot as that!

Emma's homestead isn't purely an investment—she's keeping it for her old age—as a place to retire when she wearies of the fascinations of the world outside.

Not Purely an Investment.

Nor is the Homestead cultivated. Emma does not have to go out and ride a tractor all day—though she can punch cattle—because she doesn't own a tractor and there's nothing to "tract" if she wanted to. She took the claim under the homestead act of Congress of 1917, which provides that certain land is only suitable for grazing. And Emma's cattle graze there all day long.

She says her land is covered with healthy sagebrush, cactus, and a few, very few trees, with a few mountain wild flowers thrown in for color. She is also the proud posessor of a little creek—it might easily be called a gully and nothing more—which if the weather condescends to be a little damp tinkles merrily through the homestead.

Shes 'just as independent in financing her claim as she was in going forth to acquire it. The expenses of building and food supplies and food for the cattle she made in some fortunate adventures in oil—and she worked for the money to invest in the oil stock.

Life—at least in pleasant weather—isn't so bad at Howling Gulch!

Fishing and Hunting.

During the day, Emma goes fishing or hunting or does a little cow punching. If it is a little drear outside, she starts in and bakes cake or some cookies and other goodies, so that her brothers will have an attraction to call at her home. There's a lot of time for reading and now and again Emma aspires to a short story, although she's not optimistic as to their outcome, and then it is always possible to ride to the home ranch for mail and supplies and a little visit with the home folks.

There's much excitement around Howling Gulch about this time, but time alone will tell whether or not there'll be any results from the excitement. An 1800 foot well was drilled five miles from Howling Gulch but so far no Rockefellers have resulted from the oil gushing from the well. One of Emma's callers was a geologist who said there was a "fold" on her claim—but she's not counting the ducats yet—she thinks perhaps he wanted one of the fresh-baked cookies.

Emma is a modern woman—when the idea strikes her she wears riding breeches and high boots. When she feels temperamental and wants a change, she wears 'nickers and wool hose. "One gets so tired of boots," says she.

Lonesome—Well, Hardly.

If we were there, however, we'd speak for boots daily—for in one day last summer, Emma—without masculine assistance and without feminine flutters—killed thirteen rattlesnakes right around her cabin. Who could be lonesome in Howling Gulch?

"Sign here all who enter here" is Emma's slogan and she's not waiting to have a guest book until she enters the holy state of matrimony She has a register and all the guests are requested to put their names, addresses, the date, and any remarks in the book. Practically every state in the union is represented by some name.

Emma has worke hard for her homestead and has spent hours when she might wish she were with a group of friends out playing 'round—and she's in sight of her goal. But she doesn't always want to be a homesteader—that's really only a nest egg—a haven to which she can turn if necessary

Her life ambition is to draw the pretty girls and handsome men in the magazine advertisements, to make bewitching maidens advertising tooth paste and young Adonises who wear collars. She wants to work with colors and pigments—and no small part of her days are devoted to practicing her art.

Thurston County Farm Bureau Celebrates Tenth Birthday With Jubilee At Walthill

They had a fine time up in Walthill, in Thurston county, Tuesday, June 17.

It should have been a good day, for one hundred days of work had gone into the plans for this one Tuesday and a large number of men and women had given the best of their minds that it might be a success

True, it rained all the night before and all morning, but no one seemed to mind much. They put on Lizzie's chains and got out the dusty rubbers and set forth for a full day. The chairman of the day just squeezed a little more into the afternoon program and made each hour a little fatter than had been planned—and a good time was had by all.

That Tuesday was the tenth birthday celebration of the Thurston County Farm bureau at the O. B. Phillips' grove near Walthill and 2,500 people found it convenient to come to the festivities. Officially it was known as the Thurston county Farm ureau Decennial celebration—but to all the townsfolk and to the people from the country nearby it was just an extra large birthday party with an extra large number of guests.

It was fitting that one of the most spectacular features of the day should be a pageant showing the development of agriculture from the time the Red man roamed around Walthill until the present day. It was divided into four parts, The Beginning of a Great Agricultural Nation Westward Ho!, National Recognition of Agriculture, and Modern Agriculture. The pageant was written by R. E. Holland of the College of Agriculture.

Omaha Indians Play Part.

Omaha Indians took the parts played by the native Americans in the first part, which was directed by Elder Creel and Mrs. G. A. Dudley. Chief Little Bull, the last chief of the Omaha tribe, assisted by his son, had the leading role in showing the Indian method of planting corn. The Indians also showed the bringing of the maize to the white farmer for planting and to save him from starvation, the Indians unknowing that they were giving the white man the greatest crops that grows today. Penn's treaty with the Indians was portrayed by Elder Creel and the Indians.

Benjamin Franklin, organizing the first agricultural society, the mother of present day farm organizations, was a part of this first scene. As representative of the next phase in the growth of agriculture, George and Martha Washington were shown with teir slaves. The atmosphere was further carried out by a clog dance and a cotton plant dance by children. The Louisiana purchase, wherein the United States acquired the rich corn belt of the country, was illustrated by showing the men in 1803 from France negotiating with Americans for the purpose.

The westward movement of man and his development of the prairies was portrayed in the second division of the pageant. After the hunters and explorers came the ox wagon and the prairie schooner, to be followed by the western Indians and the soldiers Last the cowboys, symbols of the real west.

Pioneer Methods of Harvest.

The grain farmers with their grain cradles and the wooden rakes for bunching the grain before binding it by hand recalled early agriculture to many at the birthday party. After the pioneering days Nebraska rose into her place with the states of the nation. Interpreting this, several girls gave a lovely Rose dance. Other dances epitomized the scourging forest fires and the grasshopper trials, and boys gave a drill with hoes and rakes to bring out the practical side of agriculture.

In the third section, Abraham Lincoln was shown signing the act creating the land grant colleges and experiment stations, the first real national recognition of agriculture. The constant growth of the industry had created a need for research work and for colleges in which to train the young men

Modern agriculture was pictured by a group of floats, headed by a squad of Boy Scouts carrying the flag Uncle Sam guided the plow for the U S. Department of Agriculture float and on another was a map of Nebraska, before which were piled its crops. Faculty members of the College of Agriculture rode in the pageant and King Corn and Queen Legume drove a shetland pony harnessed to a beautifully decorated chariot. The king was little Bobbei Hertin and the queen tiny Dorothy Joan Gramlich.

Beef and dairy industries made their appearance by sending the best of the animals in the county and clothing, as it is being taught in farm bureau project work, was shown on a float decorated with dress forms and patterns Modern canning, cold pack, tin can, and pressure canning, were demonstrated on one float by Mrs. W. W. Reed

Mammoth Birthday Cake.

And after the pageant was almost over and after everybody thought the rest of the program was about to begin, there on one float trundling along at the end of thep rocession was a mammoth birthday cake, with ten fluffy little girls for candles The Farm bureau had a birthday cake.

Speech making was next in the order of the day and H. L Keefe, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation and for many years on the county farm bureau board, presided In introducing the speakers, Mr. Keefe brought out the close relationship between the extension service and the Federation of Farm Bureaus.

W. H. Bokaw, director of the extension service of the college of agriculture, and representative of the U. S. department of agriculture, told of the three stages of farm bureau work The first he mentioned was the experimental period of four or five years in which the work was gaining attention and power. The second period he analyzed as the period of production, which included war time demands. During this period, he said, the work was done more by groups of producers than formerly.

For the third period he said that the farmers have now arrived at the time of economic development when the marketing of farm products and the conservation of his crops are most important. He spoke briefly of the work in Thurston county and that it had begun in the earliest period

James F. Coupe, the first county agent in Thurston and now secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau federation, reviewed the early history of the Thurston bureau and the accomplishments of the years. He pointed out that one of the fundamental accomplishments was the co-operation between the agricultural department in the department represented by the county agent and the Indian offices of the Winnebago and Omaha reservations.

This system of co-operative arrangement, Mr. Coupe stated, had become the model system used in many other counties in the United States where Indian reservations are located He mentioned that the problems in Thurston county when presented to the interior department at Washingon had brought together the representatives of the Indian offices and the agricultural department for the first time.

William Warner, a member of the board of regents, spoke mainly of the present economic condition of the farmers Ray H. Camp, county agent of Hamilton county and the second agent in Thurston county, and Everett Winter, the present county agent, upon whom much of the labor of the birthday party fell, spoke briefly. H. L Webster of Burt county announced the organization of a farm bureau in Burt county

Real excitement came after the speeches when a mechanical cow appeared upon the sce[illegible] means of an electric generator, milk, cream, butter, cheese ice cream and other by-products ready for market This electrical Holstein did even better and sent boys and girls to college men to work, and all of these products went into better homes

A model farm with growing crops was exhibited by Prof E L Taylor of the College of Agriculture M B Posson of the animal husbandry department had his beef exhibit on hand, the one he had shown at the International Livestock show in Chicago

The organized sports of the day were in charge of W W. Reed of Rosalie, and he was a super de luxe chairman in the eyes of the youngsters because he saw to it that every boy and girl on the grounds won one prize or another. Rosalie and Walthill staged a ball game boxing matches were a part of the program and Dick (Two Gun) Hart and some others did some broncho busting. In the evening, professionals staged the program

The committee in direct charge of the celebration was composed of W W. Reed, general chairman, E. T. Winter, publicity, K. C Gifford, courtesy chairman; Charles Boughn, finance officer J W Berg, superintendent of grounds, G A Dudley program.

They had a fine time up in Walthill, in Thurston county, Tuesday, June 17.

It should have been a good day, for one hundred days of work had gone into the plans for this one Tuesday and a large number of men and women had given the best of their minds that it might be a success.

True, it rained all the night before and all morning, but no one seemed to mind much. They put on Lizzie's chains and got out the dusty rubbers and set forth for a full day. The chairman of the day just squeezed a little more into the afternoon program and made each hour a little fatter than had been planned—and a good time was had by all.

That Tuesday was the tenth birthday celebration of the Thurston County Farm bureau at the O. B. Phillips' grove near Walthill and 2,500 people found it convenient to come to the festivities. Officially it was known as the Thurston county Farm ureau Decennial celebration—but to all the townsfolk and to the people from the country nearby it was just an extra large birthday party with an extra large number of guests.

It was fitting that one of the most spectacular features of the day should be a pageant showing the development of agriculture from the time the Red man roamed around Walthill until the present day. It was divided into four parts, The Beginning of a Great Agricultural Nation, Westward Ho!, National Recognition of Agriculture, and Modern Agriculture. The pageant was written by R. E. Holland of the College of Agriculture.

Omaha Indians Play Part.

Omaha Indians took the parts played by the native Americans in the first part, which was directed by Elder Creel and Mrs. G. A. Dudley. Chief Little Bull, the last chief of the Omaha tribe, assisted by his son, had the leading role in showing the Indian method of planting corn. The Indians also showed the bringing of the maize to the white farmer for planting and to save him from starvation, the Indians unknowing that they were giving the white man the greatest crops that grows today. Penn's treaty with the Indians was portrayed by Elder Creel and the Indians.

Benjamin Franklin, organizing the first agricultural society, the mother of present day farm organizations, was a part of this first scene. As representative of the next phase in the growth of agriculture, George and Martha Washington were shown with teir slaves. The atmosphere was further carried out by a clog dance and a cotton plant dance by children. The Louisiana purchase, wherein the United States acquired the rich corn belt of the country, was illustrated by showing the men in 1803 from France negotiating with Americans for the purpose.

The westward movement of man and his development of the prairies was portrayed in the second division of the pageant. After the hunters and explorers came the ox wagon and the prairie schooner, to be followed by the western Indians and the soldiers. Last the cowboys, symbols of the real west.

Pioneer Methods of Harvest.

The grain farmers with their grain cradles and the wooden rakes for bunching the grain before binding it by hand recalled early agriculture to many at the birthday party. After the pioneering days Nebraska rose into her place with the states of the nation. Interpreting this, several girls gave a lovely Rose dance. Other dances epitomized the scourging forest fires and the grasshopper trials, and boys gave a drill with hoes and rakes to bring out the practical side of agriculture.

In the third section, Abraham Lincoln was shown signing the act creating the land grant colleges and experiment stations, the first real national recognition of agriculture. The constant growth of the industry had created a need for research work and for colleges in which to train the young men.

Modern agriculture was pictured by a group of floats, headed by a squad of Boy Scouts carrying the flag. Uncle Sam guided the plow for the U. S. Department of Agriculture float and on another was a map of Nebraska, before which were piled its crops. Faculty members of the College of Agriculture rode in the pageant and King Corn and Queen Legume drove a shetland pony harnessed to a beautifully decorated chariot. The king was little Bobbei Hertin and the queen tiny Dorothy Joan Gramlich.

Beef and dairy industries made their appearance by sending the best of the animals in the county and clothing, as it is being taught in farm bureau project work, was shown on a float decorated with dress forms and patterns. Modern canning, cold pack, tin can, and pressure canning, were demonstrated on one float by Mrs. W. W. Reed.

Mammoth Birthday Cake.

And after the pageant was almost over and after everybody thought the rest of the program was about to begin, there on one float trundling along at the end of thep rocession was a mammoth birthday cake, with ten fluffy little girls for candles. The Farm bureau had a birthday cake.

Speech making was next in the order of the day and H. L. Keefe, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation and for many years on the county farm bureau board, presided. In introducing the speakers, Mr. Keefe brought out the close relationship between the extension service and the Federation of Farm Bureaus.

W. H. Bokaw, director of the extension service of the college of agriculture, and representative of the U. S. department of agriculture, told of the three stages of farm bureau work. The first he mentioned was the experimental period of four or five years in which the work was gaining attention and power. The second period he analyzed as the period of production, which included war time demands. During this period, he said, the work was done more by groups of producers than formerly.

For the third period he said that the farmers have now arrived at the time of economic development when the marketing of farm products and the conservation of his crops are most important. He spoke briefly of the work in Thurston county and that it had begun in the earliest period.

James F. Coupe, the first county agent in Thurston and now secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau federation, reviewed the early history of the Thurston bureau and the accomplishments of the years. He pointed out that one of the fundamental accomplishments was the co-operation between the agricultural department in the department represented by the county agent and the Indian offices of the Winnebago and Omaha reservations.

This system of co-operative arrangement, Mr. Coupe stated, had become the model system used in many other counties in the United States where Indian reservations are located He mentioned that the problems in Thurston county when presented to the interior department at Washingon had brought together the representatives of the Indian offices and the agricultural department for the first time.

William Warner, a member of the board of regents, spoke mainly of the present economic condition of the farmers. Ray H. Camp, county agent of Hamilton county and the second agent in Thurston county, and Everett Winter, the present county agent, upon whom much of the labor of the birthday party fell, spoke briefly. H. L. Webster of Burt county announced the organization of a farm bureau in Burt county.

Real excitement came after the speeches, when a mechanical cow appeared upon the scene, giving, by means of an electric generator, milk, cream, butter ,cheese, ice cream, and other by-products ready for market. This electrical Holstein did even better and sent boys and girls to college, men to work, and all of these products went into better homes.

A model farm, with growing crops, was exhibited by Prof. E. L. Taylor of the College of Agriculture. M. B. Posson of the animal husbandry department had his beef exhibit on hand, the one he had shown at the International Livestock show in Chicago.

The organized sports of the day were in charge of W. W. Reed of Rosalie, and he was a super de luxe chairman in the eyes of the youngsters because he saw to it that every boy and girl on the grounds won one prize or another. Rosalie and Walthill staged a ball game, boxing matches were a part of the program, and Dick (Two Gun) Hart and some others did some broncho busting. In the evening, professionals staged the program.

The committee in direct charge of the celebration was composed of W. W. Reed, general chairman; E. T. Winter, publicity; K. C. Gifford, courtesy chairman; Charles Boughn, finance officer; J. W. Berg, superintendent of grounds; G. A. Dudley, program.

A HISTORIC OCCASION

They are making history in New York City at the democratic national convention now in session there.

Something of the spirit that is hovering over that gathering—torn with a hundred different emotions and apparently hopelessly divided on the questions of issues and candidates—may be gained from the following description which came over the Associated Press wires Saturday morning:

"Tired and worn by continuous loss of sleep since last Tuesday, Chairman Cummings gave as dramatic a recital as was ever heard in national conventions. Explaining the deliberations of the committee and its inability to reach an agreement he told amid impressive silence how after an allnight session, the committeemen had gathered around their table in the breaking dawn of the day and recited in unison the Lord's prayer, after which William Jennings Bryan had raised his voice and spoken a prayer for divine guidance."

There have been few such minutes in American politics.

Seated around the conference table were a half a hundred men—democracy's leaders from every state in the union—men, who for a quarter of a century and even longer have borne the brunt of political battles for principles to which they dedicated their hearts and their souls. For three days and nights they had toiled unceasingly while nature cried for sleep to soothe taut nerves. One of the questions which had produced dissension and embittered feelings among men who think strongly and deeply on an issue, had been settled by compromise after stormy debate. The other loomed up menacingly. In the restricted sessions of the sub-committee, the smaller group found itself unable to agree after long discussion. The complete committee was called in. What actually passed behind the drawn doors of the committee room is known only to those who heard it. Certainly ugly, heated accusations and counter charges flew back and forth. Nerves which had already been sorely tried were subjected to greater strain.

And, then in the flickering light of the approaching dawn, when anger had exhausted itself in sharp recriminations, these men arose as one and reverently repeated the Lord's prayer, and the golden voice, which had in three great campaigns enthralled millions of people, was raised in appeal for strength and guidance.

There is a profound, sublime consecration of spirit with which these leaders approached their task.

It harkens back to the immortal days of the fathers, when those men who gave the world its first great democracy, who, flaming with patriotism in the dark days of the revolution, were bowed down by the seemingly insurmountable obstacle of drafting a constitution to which all of the delegates from the thirteen states of the confederation could subscribe. When hearts were heaviest—when the hand refused to do what the mind dictated—when delegates finally withdrew from the convention hall after weeks of exhausting debate—it was Benjamin Franklin who brought peace with prayer.

And in those days of the republic when the nation was sorely torn by the compelling eloquence of Webster and Clay and Stephens, the electric atmosphere of the congressional halls yielded to the finest of human impulses.

Not since the Civil war have two issues been thrown before a convention which unbridle the emotions so freely as those relating to the league of nations and the Ku Klux Klan—one international in character and the other purely domestic.

One looks to a suffering world and glimpses peoples already impoverished and debt-burdened—still eyeing each other suspiciously; still vying with each other in the creation of the most formidable weapons of destruction and in devising the most deadly and the most ghastly methods of exterminating the human race. In Europe there is misery and shattered hopes because the nation, whose leader had carried the peoples of the world to new heights, refused to follow his vision. In Asia, the brown man and the yellow man are stirring uneasily as they permit their fancies freedom from the traditions which bound them for centuries That was the thought which bore down upon those men who were called upon to make a decision for a great political party upon the league issue.

Even more perplexing was the struggle over the Klan. No one believes in invisible government. All citizens of America can unite upon the proposition that the duly authorized agencies of government, and they alone, shall be responsible for the enforcement of law. But interwoven with this problem was one of race and religion

In the crucible of the committee room, the souls of these men were tested. It was a historic occasion, when a decision of far-reaching consequence to America's future, was called for. Regardless of the action of the convention, history will record that these men approached their task with humility, the splendid consecration, and the sincerity of the crusader. They were mindful that perhaps the welfare of millions in America and in the world rested upon words, which might be hastily spoken. It was no time for the language of politicians. The mask was torn off. The words that were spoken came from the heart to do that which was for the good of humanity.

THE SALARIES OF CITY OFFICIALS.

City Commissioner Allen Cowgill renews his complaint against the ridiculously low salaries which Lincoln pays its public officials.

Mr. Cowgill points out that the commissioners, the responsible heads of the departments, receive less than their own subordinates who occupy positions of importance. At $2,000 a year, they are receiving less than workers in many lines of industry. The result is to restrict the applicants for the city commission to those who are not capable of earning more in other lines, to these who would divide their time between the city and their private business and to the retired business man who looks upon the position as a matter of honor. In any event the result is bad, he concludes.

Of course Mr. Cowgill must realize that his observations are not flattering to his colleagues on the city commission. They are not deserved in a number of instances, where men of known ability have rendered valuable and conspicuous service to the city. While it is no defense of the policy of paying admittedly inadequate and meagre salaries, Mr. Cowgill seems to forget there are men who gladly and freely give of their time and their abilities for other than financial considerations.

His alternate proposal of a city commission with three members, at higher salaries, is of interest That is brought forward in lieu of a city manager with an unpaid commission. It has become fairly evident that the people have become tired of concentration of power in government. Very often it has led to greated extravagances, and more fads, instead of efficiency. The trend is in the opposite direction The taxpayers and voters are weary of experts and specialists, whose particular capacity, it has seemed, has been to increase the burden of government.

FIGHTING TROPICAL DISEASES.

The medical invasion of the tropics is on.

With announcement of an international conference to be held at Kingston, Jamaica, July 22, and extending for a week, the scientific world is taking its first concerted step to fight the deadly diseases peculiar to the tropical countries of the world. Men of outstanding prominence in the profession are lending their efforts. Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, famous bacteriologist of the Rockefeller Foundation; Dr. William Park of the New York board of health; Dr. A. Broden, director of the institute of Tropical medicine in Brussels; Dr. F. M. Root, of John Hopkins university; Dr. George Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation; Sir William Simpson, one of the foremost physicians of Great Britain; Sir Oliver Thomas, English authority on tropical pneumonia, and Dr. Freidrich Fulleborn, foremost German expert on tropical diseases, have signified their intention of attending.

The medical war against tropical diseases is one which appeals to the imagination. Those who have spent their lives in temperate climates find the tropics an alluring and colorful subject for speculation. With the single exception of sleeping sickness, which is peculiar to Africa, the medical men report that tropical diseases are the same in all countries. Malaria, hookworm ,amebic dysentery, and yellow fever are the principal trouble makers It is a significant fact, however, that the tropics very generally have resisted development with few exceptions. With enormous productive possibilities, disease has quite generally kept the white man out, and the native seems robbed of the resistless driving energy so vital to progress.

That the task is not a hopeless one was demonstrated in the accomplishments around the Panama canal. There it was necessary to meet and solve the problem of sanitation and health before the completion of the work and it was undertaken so thoroughly and so completely there has been no serious trouble since its opening for operation. The medical men plan to combat the diseases themselves instead of studying problems of sanitation.

A HINDRANCE TO CATCHING CRIMINALS.

Some months ago, William J. Burns, then connected with the department of justice, saw fit to concentrate all of the fingerprint and Bertillion classifications in the nation in one gigantic bureau at Washington, D. C. In so doing he removed the bureau at Leavenworth, Kan., upon which police and law enforcement officers in the western states depended for the records of criminals, who came under their observation. In Washington, Burns declared, would be the greatest collection of criminal records in the world Every man who has a record, is listed here. It may be quite true that the bureau at Washington is the largest in the world, but that does not necessarily increase its efficiency and it does absolutely nothing to alleviate the situation in which the officers in the western states find themselves—that of being unable to secure the records of suspicious individuals picked up by them.

While previously the Lincoln officers were able to secure information from Leavenworth by mail in a very few days, and by wire in even shorter time, they are now able to get altogether nothing from the great bureau at Washington. In fact, since the bureau has been removed from Leavenworth the local police have been able to get only two replies from Washington, and have become so discouraged at the results obtained that they have ceased to attempt to procure information from that source, depending mostly upon their own records. When the bureau was in operation at Lavenworth it was possible to send fingerprints there and, if in a few days it was found the man was not wanted any place, he could be released. Police cannot hold a man very long without a definite charge against him.

It would appear that in an effort to have all of the information regarding criminals at the touch of those operating in the east and near Washington, the western states have been left practically isolated, as far as any real assistance is concerned. It may be well to concentrate activities along certain lines, but chemists have found that frequently a solution is more effective and will cover more territory that the concentrated compound. It would seem that if the department of justice has at heart competent and thorough law enforcement, they would not neglect to maintain a bureau whose importance is almost vital, some place within easy touch of the western states.

CHANGES IN WESTERN NEBRASKA.

Changes in climate in the western Nebraska counties in the last seven years have contributed in an equal measure with economic conditions to bring about a transformation of the great sandhill region which was formerly devoted almost entirely to cattle raising.

On the border of the sandhill country, Sidney reflects some of the changes which have taken place

Reports from Sidney indicate the wheat acreage in the surrounding country, which was one of the greatest wheat-raising communities in this state, has been very largely decreased. The farmers and the ranchers have discovered that they can grow corn on the comparatively cheap land with fairly satisfactory results. More land has been planted to corn around Sidney than ever before, replacing some of the large tracts formerly devoted to wheat-raising. Throughout that entire territory cattle raising has suffered a setback, partly because the capital necessary to purchase range stock has not been available and partly because the ranchers have found they can make more money by other methods. They are raising more hogs than ever before. Last year Sidney shipped a hundred carloads of fat hogs to market—the equivalent of two trains. Every farmer and rancher is keeping some dairy stock and raising chickens.

Western Nebraska has taken the lead in diversified agricultural effort. The change has been made possible because every season in the last seven years has seen sufficient moisture to bring corn through the arid months of July and August and it was necessary because the restricted credit for cattle operations and the unsatisfactory prices for wheat compelled the farmers and ranchers to look elsewhere.

The opportunities in the golden west are becoming more apparent each year. That great empire in the western section of this state will play an increasingly important part in the productive activities of Nebraska each year.

A BIRD PARADISE.

Announcement has been made of the gift of 26,000 acres of marsh lands in Vermillion parish, Louisiana, to the National Association of Audubon Societies

The gift is of importance.

It ends a long fight which had been waged by sportsmen throughout the entire country for a preserve where wild life might be encouraged. The territory includes two-thirds of the former Rainey-McIlhenny shooting preserve, and it is bounded on the east by the State Wild Life refuge and on the west by the hunting of marshes of Edward A. McIlhenny It embraces the heart of the famous winter gathering place for wild fowl on the western coast of Louisiana.

Mrs Grace Rogers, sister of the late Paul J. Rainey, made the gift to the organization in memory of her brother, a world-renowned hunter, photographer and explorer. The conditions of the gift are an assurance that wild life will benefit enormously. Sufficient funds have been provided to properly police the vast grounds so that hunting cannot take place. Arrangements have already been made for the planting of duck foods in large quantities.

Preservation of America's game has become a national question in recent years Results are already being obtained from the efforts to set aside preserves, and to restrict the deadly work of those who wantonly shoot and kill game.

Radio experts report that the static which has been irritating the fans the past few days is nothing more than the demonstrations for the candidates at New York.

THE PROMPTER'S —BOX—

Good Humor Takes the Prompter's Box, And Bids the Play Go On.

WHEN YOU'RE AWAY.

Days are dark and skies are gray,
Raindrops patter all the day,
Sunbeams gleam a greenish ray,
'Cause you're gone.

Breezes rustle through the trees,
Melancholy melodies.
But my heart no gladness sees,
When you're gone.

Autumn winds may wildly blow,
Whirling rivers 'round me flow,
Beauty's never seen below
If you're gone.

You may sing me songs of sunny skies,
You may sing me lilting lullabies,
But when my melancholy dies,
You'll be home!

THE GENTLEMAN at the Adjacent Desk stops to ask if we heard of the young lady in South Lincoln who, among other things, always has two escorts. We know nothing of it, but in these days of prohibition, it seems she always carries a spare.

O'NEILL IS celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of that town on July 4. There is no foundation to the rumor that many who attend the celebration will probably see that great lake monster before the night is over.

THE WEEK'S BEST STORY.

George L. Burr, Jr., of the Alliance Times-Herald tells this one now and then:

A mere youth, one John, had just returned from one of those western tours which young chaps always take when they reach a certain age. While on this trip he became short of funds—so very short, in fact, that it became necessary for him to pawn a suit of clothes. When he returned his mother, unpacking his trunk, happened across the coat with the little pink pawn ticket still attached thereto.

"John," asked his mother, "what is this little pink tag?"

And John, loath to tell his mother of his financial embarrassment, replied that he had attended a dance while out west and had checked his coat.

The climax to this story comes when John's mother returns to the room bearing the trousers with another pink tag and asks: "John, what kind of a dance was that?"

AND MAY we not point with pride to the fact that Omaha is not the only city in the state with a wheel tax? Valley, estimated pop. 800, has one too And that, of course, leads directly to the story of the Iowa separator salesman who sold one of his machines and took the cow in payment.

THE OPEN ROAD.

A meadow larks starts from a clump of snake grass and, swinging carelessly in the wind, carols an ode to the dawn of day....The grasses are sleek and shiny under their coatings of early morning dew; the water in the ditches along the side of the road gurgles happily as it slides over the stones....There is a clean, sweet smell in the air....of wild roses.... lilac....purple iris....and the pungent penetrating odor of newly plowed furrows....A red winged blackbird engages in a duel with two scarlet tangers ..a purple grackle views the proceedings with supreme unconcern....a farm wagon passes, loaded with milk ...It's good to be out....Its early summer.. .it's morning... and the road is a throbbing, living thing under my feet.... NOW WHY did Chas. Dawes have to explain that with his air cooled pipe or what's it he doesnt get any nicotine? After all what's the advantage of tobacco without it? Vurra, vurra much like near-beer, we imagine. Alas, and again alas, no man is perfect. But the pipe's a good advertising point.

SMALL BOYS we suspect, are making deep plans for the Fourth. We, on the o. h., are constructing a sound-proof vault.

WELL, WE'VE just received our first vacation post card. Guess what it said. You're right.

THE STORY comes to us of the young man on South Seventeenth street, who, when it was believed burglars were in the house, threw open the door of the sleeping porch with a gallant gesture, and said: "If I am shot . . . ." only to find his room mate getting ready for bed.

FAITH IN government may be a bit weakened, and corruption may have held the lead, but just remember next Friday for a moment that after all there isn't a flag in the world except Old Glory, and if we try real hard it might be we can sense the same ideals that the first great men and those who followed did

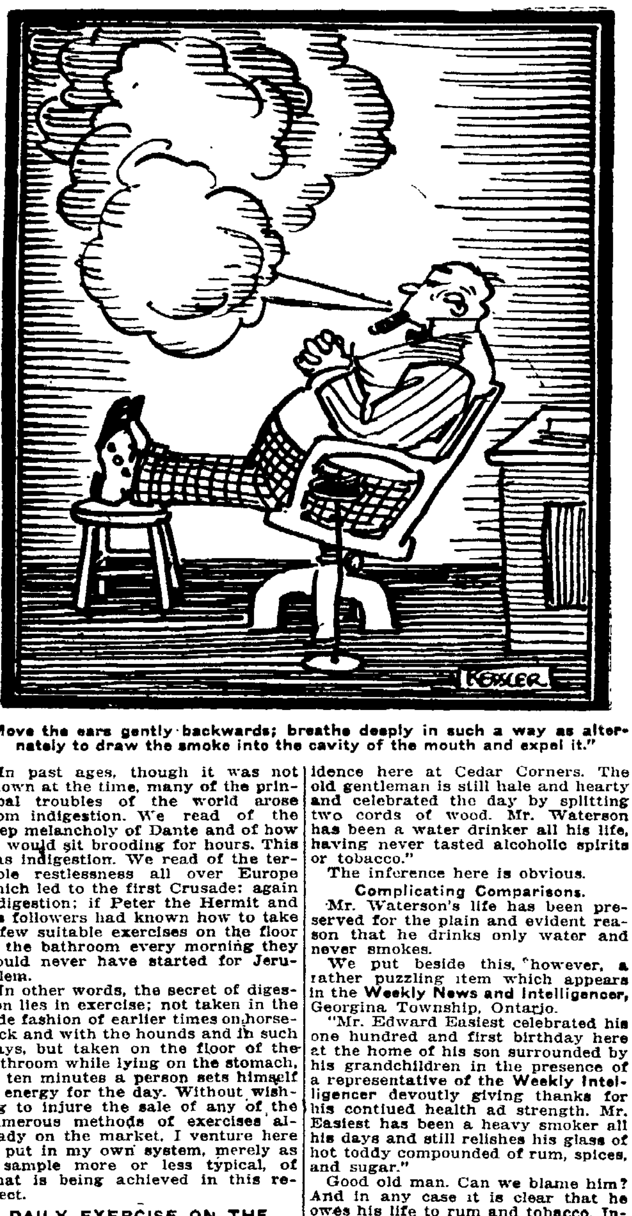
THE URGE OF EXERCISE

What History Would Have Missed if the Modern Upkeep of the Body Had Been in Vogue.



"Move the ears gently backwards; breathe deeply in such a way as alternately to draw the smoke into the cavity of the mouth and expel it."

In past ages, though it was not known at the time, many of the principal troubles of the world arose from indigestion. We read of the deep melancholy of Dante and of how he would sit brooding for hours. This was indigestion. We read of the terrible restlessness all over Europe which led to the first Crusade: again indigestion: if Peter the Hermit and his followers had known how to take a few suitable exercises on the floor of the bathroom every morning they would never have started for Jerusalem.

In other words, the secret of digestion lies in exercise; not taken in the rude fashion of earlier times on horseback and with the hounds and in such ways, but taken on the floor of the bathroom while lying on the stomach. In ten minutes a person sets himself in energy for the day. Without wishing to injure the sale of any of the numerous methods of exercises already on the market, I venture here to put in my own system, merely as a sample more or less typical, of what is being achieved in this respect.

DAILY EXERCISE ON THE FLOOR.

Course No. 1.

This course is especially designed for persons in middle life anxious to get rid of obesity, melancholy and taciturnity.

Movement No. 2 Do it again

Movement No. 3. Again.

Movement No. 4. Once more, this time shouting ha ha! ha!

Movement No. 5. Standing in an easy attitude, pass the right arm below and behind the right knee so as to bring it round above and beyond the left shoulder at the same time rapidly revolving the body to the right and elevating the left foot so as to pivot on the right heel.

Movement No. 6. Keep on spinning.

Movement No. 7. Reverse.

Movement No. 8. Go into low gear.

Movement No. 9. Stop.

Movement No. 10 Turn a couple of handsprings downstairs to breakfast.

Ten minutes of this kind of play taken every day will keep obesity at arm's length indefinitely.

Course No. 11.
(For Business Men.)

This course is so designed that it can be taken in the office itself at intervals between signing checks, closing deals, and taking in money. There is no need, in short, for the business man to get out of his swivel chair while doing these movements.

Movement No. 1. Move the ears gently back and forward.

Movement No. 2. Light a large cigar and breathe very deeply in such a way as alternately to draw the smoke into the cavity of the mouth and expel it.

Movement No. 3. While still continuing No. 2., place the feet upon a stool or chair within easy distance, fold the hands across the stomach, and close the eyes.

Movement No. 4. Keep on.

Movement No. 5. Let the cigar fall sideways into an ashtray, place the head in a drooping position, draw a handkerchief over the cranium and remain in the posture for half an hour.

Movement No. 6. Pretend to snore.

Movement No. 7. Come smartly to an attitude of alacrity, remove the handkerchief, pick the cigar up out of the ashtray, whirl around three times on the swivel chair, ring for the stenographer, and start a new deal, at the same time moving the ears back and forward with rapidity.

THE SECRETS OF LONGEVITY AND PERPETUAL YOUTH.

Our readers—those of them who have arrived at this point of our discussion, and we are really not concerned with the others—will naturally interpose and say, "You have told us how the body may be sustained, renovated, and upholstered by means of systematic exercise, and how it can be restored from vital or wasting disease such as baldness, mange, and sinking of the stomach. What we want to know is how long can life be thus sustained and prolonged." If they do ask this our readers will receive a shock of surprise—in fact we have been keeping this shock for them—wheen we say that there is no reason why they should not live as long as they care to. (This offer is restricted, of course, to readers of these pages; others must die as usual.)

In other words we must now know so much about longevity that we have practically arrived at the secret of living forever—or at any rate until death.

It may be of interest to show the way in which modern science has arrived at this conclusion. In the first place a great many actual cases of longevity have been examined and useful conclusion drawn from each.

Case No. 1. (as reported in the Daily Annalist, Cedar Corners, Iowa.) "William Waterson celebrated his hundred and first birthday at his residence here at Cedar Corners. The old gentleman is still hale and hearty and celebrated the day by splitting two cords of wood. Mr. Waterson has been a water drinker all his life, having never tasted alcoholic spirits or tobacco."

The inference here is obvious.

Complicating Comparisons.

Mr. Waterson's life has been preserved for the plain and evident reason that he drank only water and never smokes.

We put beside this, however, a rather puzzling item which appears in the Weekly News and Intelligencer, Georgina Township, Ontario.

"Mr. Edward Easiest celebrated his one hundred and first birthday here at the home of his son surrounded by his grandchildren in the presence of a representative of the Weekly Intelligencer devoutly giving thanks for his continued health and strength. Mr. Easiest has been a heavy smoker all his days and still relishes his glass of hot toddy compounded of rum, spices, and sugar."

Good old man. Can we blame him? And in any case it is clear that he owes his life to rum and tobacco. Indeed what looks simple at first begins to appear more complicated. Compare this:

(Llanfydd, Wales (From the Llanfydd Fyddist.

"Mrs. Llewellayn Owen, a resident o fthis town celebrated her one hundred and fifth birthday yesterday. Mrs. Owen, who has lived in Wales since her childhood, a hundred and ten years ago still retains all her faculties and maintains a keen interest in English politics, especially in the doings of former Premier Lloyd George whom she remembers eighty years ago as a pupil in her father's school.

"Mrs. Owen talks interestingly of the great fire of London (which she remembers as a girl) and of the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers, many of whom she knew. She doubts whether the Cabinet of the Labor Party in England contains men of the same caliber as the greatest men in history."

Potent Polyglots.

In this case without a doubt Mrs. Owen owes her life to her interest in English politics.

From examples such as these we see at once that there are certain things which conduce to perpetual youth, such as drinking nothing else throughout life but water, or nothing but rum as the case may be. Total abstinence from tobacco undoubtedly prolongs life and so does excessive smoking.

But modern science has recently recognized that in the main what we call old age is a condition brought on by an insufficiency of sour milk in the system. The discoveries of Dr. Menschnikoff have shown that sour milk is full of minute polyglots which, when let loose in the human body, effect a general restoration. It is now proven beyond doubt that anybody who takes a gallon of sour milk night and morning can live forever. The only question is—is it worth it?

The Hope of Immortality

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Mr. J. W. Fager of New Orleans, writes me: "Your article on "Mind and Body" involves thoughts that have been coming to me for years. I have been hungry to talk to some one about them. You say that the independence of the mind from physical and chemical forces is an argument for immortality. I, too, long for immortality. But how about early mentality? It does not appear until we are about four years of age. If it is separate and distinct from physical and chemical forces, why is it not present at birth? This absence of early mentality almost blights my hope of immortality."

Why may not the mind lie dormant in the infant's brain? It must wait for the development of the physical mechanism that it is to employ during its terrestrial career, and it may help to develop it. One thing that all nature teaches us is that time is an essential element in every manifestation of life.

It may be, too, as you yourself suggest in another part of your letter, that the mind grows with the growth and aggregation of the grain cells. It has its own period of infancy. It has to learn to handle its tools. It has to accustom itself to perceive its surroundings through the fragmentary impressions that it gets from the five or six poor bodily senses that are placed at its disposal.

It must learn to look out of the prison windows that we call eyes, which give but a pitiful prospect compared with the free range of pure untrammeled and unblinded intelligence. It must learn to interpret the physical world by means of sounds in the ears, odors in the nostrils, touches felt by hands and skin.

The baby, with a joyous laugh, reaches out his arms to grasp the smiling moon. Its undeveloped mind has not yet discovered the physical secret of space. It has to learn and practice the discipline of the prison in which it is shut up. For aught that we can tell, that discipline may be the beginning, and the first education, of the mind as a personality, or an intelligent individual.

The hope of immortality as I experience it, is an insistent desire for conscious mental life after the body perishes, but on a higher, more advantageous plane. Even a complete break with the scenes and experiences of the present life might not be unacceptable, for it would be only like awakening from a perfect sleep into an entirely new world.

In that world, again, one would wish to begin as an infant, yet not quite without some advantage from the experiences of this life. I like to think that whenever I strive to ascend some high, upward-sloping plane of thought to master some difficult intellectual conception, I may be making not altogether useless preparation for the next stage of existence. I should not be unwilling to continue there to attack problems left unsolved here below, but with greater knowledge and greater mastery. My ideal of heaven is a place alight with supreme intelligence—but not a research laboratory.

I do not undertake to distinguish between the mind and the soul. Some think that they are not the same—that the mind may serve the soul somewhat as the brain serves the mind. In that case the mind might perish with the body, while the soul survived. But then, it seems to me, the break between the present life and the future one would be absolute, and we could not feel that any of our intellectual strivings here would connect with any feature or quality of life there. I like too well the idea of growth and advance to feel altogether content with that prospect.

Don't let your hope of immortality be blighted. Science does not, and never can, destroy it.

Spreading Gloom.

(Garden County News.)

The manufacturer and city business man has a better opinion of the present and future of agriculture than the farmer. In fact the city man's views would be 100 per cent favorable if it were not for the "gloom" spread by the farmer himself. We have a few strong-willed broad minded farmers who are still in the optimistic class and we have great faith in the good that this "handful of cheerful men" can do providing some one will choke the loud-mouthed political agitators who are continually preaching of the ills of and injustices done the farmers.

By hanging so much "crepe" on his business the farmer has given the impression that farming is dead. This has hurt, if it has not entirely destroyed, the farmer's credit. It will take years to overcome the opinion bankers have formed of farming in the last two years. The continual knocking of their own business, by farmers, has lowered the value of the farms and equipment an amount that is impossible to calculate.

A stockholder in a manufacturing concern doesn't knock his concern when he has stock to sell; farming will respond to the same treatment. Many a young man and girl has been driven into bookkeeping positions in the city in the past two years that would be far happier and far more independent in the country. "Dark talk" did it.

Now let's all get together and talk up farming as a business, talk the bright and cheerful side and if you want to be sad "think" but don't "talk!" Look up and you will be lifted up

A HISTORIC OCCASION

They are making history in New York City at the democratic national convention now in session there.

Something of the spirit that is hovering over that gathering—torn with a hundred different emotions and apparently hopelessly divided on the questions of issues and candidates—may be gained from the following description which came over the Associated Press wires Saturday morning:

"Tired and worn by continuous loss of sleep since last Tuesday, Chairman Cummings gave as dramatic a recital as was ever heard in national conventions. Explaining the deliberations of the committee and its inability to reach an agreement he told amid impressive silence how after an allnight session, the committeemen had gathered around their table in the breaking dawn of the day and recited in unison the Lord's prayer, after which William Jennings Bryan had raised his voice and spoken a prayer for divine guidance."

There have been few such minutes in American politics.

Seated around the conference table were a half a hundred men—democracy's leaders from every state in the union—men, who for a quarter of a century and even longer have borne the brunt of political battles for principles to which they dedicated their hearts and their souls. For three days and nights they had toiled unceasingly while nature cried for sleep to soothe taut nerves. One of the questions which had produced dissension and embittered feelings among men who think strongly and deeply on an issue, had been settled by compromise after stormy debate. The other loomed up menacingly. In the restricted sessions of the sub-committee, the smaller group found itself unable to agree after long discussion. The complete committee was called in. What actually passed behind the drawn doors of the committee room is known only to those who heard it. Certainly ugly, heated accusations and counter charges flew back and forth. Nerves which had already been sorely tried were subjected to greater strain.

And, then in the flickering light of the approaching dawn, when anger had exhausted itself in sharp recriminations, these men arose as one and reverently repeated the Lord's prayer, and the golden voice, which had in three great campaigns enthralled millions of people, was raised in appeal for strength and guidance.

There is a profound, sublime consecration of spirit with which these leaders approached their task.

It harkens back to the immortal days of the fathers, when those men who gave the world its first great democracy, who, flaming with patriotism in the dark days of the revolution, were bowed down by the seemingly insurmountable obstacle of drafting a constitution to which all of the delegates from the thirteen states of the confederation could subscribe. When hearts were heaviest—when the hand refused to do what the mind dictated—when delegates finally withdrew from the convention hall after weeks of exhausting debate—it was Benjamin Franklin who brought peace with prayer.

And in those days of the republic when the nation was sorely torn by the compelling eloquence of Webster and Clay and Stephens, the electric atmosphere of the congressional halls yielded to the finest of human impulses.

Not since the Civil war have two issues been thrown before a convention which unbridle the emotions so freely as those relating to the league of nations and the Ku Klux Klan—one international in character and the other purely domestic.

One looks to a suffering world and glimpses peoples already impoverished and debt-burdened—still eyeing each other suspiciously; still vying with each other in the creation of the most formidable weapons of destruction and in devising the most deadly and the most ghastly methods of exterminating the human race. In Europe there is misery and shattered hopes because the nation, whose leader had carried the peoples of the world to new heights, refused to follow his vision. In Asia, the brown man and the yellow man are stirring uneasily as they permit their fancies freedom from the traditions which bound them for centuries That was the thought which bore down upon those men who were called upon to make a decision for a great political party upon the league issue.

Even more perplexing was the struggle over the Klan. No one believes in invisible government. All citizens of America can unite upon the proposition that the duly authorized agencies of government, and they alone, shall be responsible for the enforcement of law. But interwoven with this problem was one of race and religion.

In the crucible of the committee room, the souls of these men were tested. It was a historic occasion, when a decision of far-reaching consequence to America's future, was called for. Regardless of the action of the convention, history will record that these men approached their task with humility, the splendid consecration, and the sincerity of the crusader. They were mindful that perhaps the welfare of millions in America and in the world rested upon words, which might be hastily spoken. It was no time for the language of politicians. The mask was torn off. The words that were spoken came from the heart to do that which was for the good of humanity.

THE SALARIES OF CITY OFFICIALS.

City Commissioner Allen Cowgill renews his complaint against the ridiculously low salaries which Lincoln pays its public officials.

Mr. Cowgill points out that the commissioners, the responsible heads of the departments, receive less than their own subordinates who occupy positions of importance. At $2,000 a year, they are receiving less than workers in many lines of industry. The result is to restrict the applicants for the city commission to those who are not capable of earning more in other lines, to those who would divide their time between the city and their private business and to the retired business man who looks upon the position as a matter of honor. In any event the result is bad, he concludes.

Of course Mr. Cowgill must realize that his observations are not flattering to his colleagues on the city commission. They are not deserved in a number of instances, where men of known ability have rendered valuable and conspicuous service to the city. While it is no defense of the policy of paying admittedly inadequate and meagre salaries, Mr. Cowgill seems to forget there are men who gladly and freely give of their time and their abilities for other than financial considerations.

His alternate proposal of a city commission with three members, at higher salaries, is of interest. That is brought forward in lieu of a city manager with an unpaid commission. It has become fairly evident that the people have become tired of concentration of power in government. Very often it has led to greated extravagances, and more fads, instead of efficiency. The trend is in the opposite direction. The taxpayers and voters are weary of experts and specialists, whose particular capacity, it has seemed, has been to increase the burden of government.

FIGHTING TROPICAL DISEASES.

The medical invasion of the tropics is on.

With announcement of an international conference to be held at Kingston, Jamaica, July 22, and extending for a week, the scientific world is taking its first concerted step to fight the deadly diseases peculiar to the tropical countries of the world. Men of outstanding prominence in the profession are lending their efforts. Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, famous bacteriologist of the Rockefeller Foundation; Dr. William Park of the New York board of health; Dr. A. Broden, director of the institute of Tropical medicine in Brussels; Dr. F. M. Root, of John Hopkins university; Dr. George Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation; Sir William Simpson, one of the foremost physicians of Great Britain; Sir Oliver Thomas, English authority on tropical pneumonia, and Dr. Freidrich Fulleborn, foremost German expert on tropical diseases, have signified their intention of attending.

The medical war against tropical diseases is one which appeals to the imagination. Those who have spent their lives in temperate climates find the tropics an alluring and colorful subject for speculation. With the single exception of sleeping sickness, which is peculiar to Africa, the medical men report that tropical diseases are the same in all countries. Malaria, hookworm ,amebic dysentery, and yellow fever are the principal trouble makers It is a significant fact, however, that the tropics very generally have resisted development with few exceptions. With enormous productive possibilities, disease has quite generally kept the white man out, and the native seems robbed of the resistless driving energy so vital to progress.

That the task is not a hopeless one was demonstrated in the accomplishments around the Panama canal. There it was necessary to meet and solve the problem of sanitation and health before the completion of the work and it was undertaken so thoroughly and so completely there has been no serious trouble since its opening for operation. The medical men plan to combat the diseases themselves instead of studying problems of sanitation.

A HINDRANCE TO CATCHING CRIMINALS.

Some months ago, William J. Burns, then connected with the department of justice, saw fit to concentrate all of the fingerprint and Bertillion classifications in the nation in one gigantic bureau at Washington, D. C. In so doing he removed the bureau at Leavenworth, Kan., upon which police and law enforcement officers in the western states depended for the records of criminals, who came under their observation. In Washington, Burns declared, would be the greatest collection of criminal records in the world Every man. who has a record, is listed here. It may be quite true that the bureau at Washington is the largest in the world, but that does not necessarily increase its efficiency and it does absolutely nothing to alleviate the situation in which the officers in the western states find themselves—that of being unable to secure the records of suspicious individuals picked up by them.

While previously the Lincoln officers were able to secure information from Leavenworth by mail in a very few days, and by wire in even shorter time, they are now able to get altogether nothing from the great bureau at Washington. In fact, since the bureau has been removed from Leavenworth the local police have been able to get only two replies from Washington, and have become so discouraged at the results obtained that they have ceased to attempt to procure information from that source, depending mostly upon their own records. When the bureau was in operation at Lavenworth it was possible to send fingerprints there and, if in a few days it was found the man was not wanted any place, he could be released. Police cannot hold a man very long without a definite charge against him.

It would appear that in an effort to have all of the information regarding criminals at the touch of those operating in the east and near Washington, the western states have been left practically isolated, as far as any real assistance is concerned. It may be well to concentrate activities along certain lines, but chemists have found that frequently a solution is more effective and will cover more territory that the concentrated compound. It would seem that if the department of justice has at heart competent and thorough law enforcement, they would not neglect to maintain a bureau whose importance is almost vital, some place within easy touch of the western states.

CHANGES IN WESTERN NEBRASKA.

Changes in climate in the western Nebraska counties in the last seven years have contributed in an equal measure with economic conditions to bring about a transformation of the great sandhill region which was formerly devoted almost entirely to cattle raising.

On the border of the sandhill country, Sidney reflects some of the changes which have taken place

Reports from Sidney indicate the wheat acreage in the surrounding country, which was one of the greatest wheat-raising communities in this state, has been very largely decreased. The farmers and the ranchers have discovered that they can grow corn on the comparatively cheap land with fairly satisfactory results. More land has been planted to corn around Sidney than ever before, replacing some of the large tracts formerly devoted to wheat-raising. Throughout that entire territory cattle raising has suffered a setback, partly because the capital necessary to purchase range stock has not been available and partly because the ranchers have found they can make more money by other methods. They are raising more hogs than ever before. Last year Sidney shipped a hundred carloads of fat hogs to market—the equivalent of two trains. Every farmer and rancher is keeping some dairy stock, and raising chickens.

Western Nebraska has taken the lead in diversified agricultural effort. The change has been made possible because every season in the last seven years has seen sufficient moisture to bring corn through the arid months of July and August and it was necessary because the restricted credit for cattle operations, and the unsatisfactory prices for wheat compelled the farmers and ranchers to look elsewhere.

The opportunities in the golden west are becoming more apparent each year. That great empire in the western section of this state will play an increasingly important part in the productive activities of Nebraska each year.

A BIRD PARADISE.

Announcement has been made of the gift of 26,000 acres of marsh lands in Vermillion parish, Louisiana, to the National Association of Audubon Societies.

The gift is of importance.

It ends a long fight which had been waged by sportsmen throughout the entire country for a preserve where wild life might be encouraged. The territory includes two-thirds of the former Rainey-McIlhenny shooting preserve, and it is bounded on the east by the State Wild Life refuge and on the west by the hunting of marshes of Edward A. McIlhenny. It embraces the heart of the famous winter gathering place for wild fowl on the western coast of Louisiana.

Mrs. Grace Rogers, sister of the late Paul J. Rainey, made the gift to the organization in memory of her brother, a world-renowned hunter, photographer and explorer. The conditions of the gift are an assurance that wild life will benefit enormously. Sufficient funds have been provided to properly police the vast grounds so that hunting cannot take place. Arrangements have already been made for the planting of duck foods in large quantities.

Preservation of America's game has become a national question in recent years. Results are already being obtained from the efforts to set aside preserves, and to restrict the deadly work of those who wantonly shoot and kill game.

Radio experts report that the static which has been irritating the fans the past few days is nothing more than the demonstrations for the candidates at New York.

WHEN YOU'RE AWAY.

Days are dark and skies are gray,
Raindrops patter all the day,
Sunbeams gleam a greenish ray,
'Cause you're gone.

Breezes rustle through the trees,
Melancholy melodies.
But my heart no gladness sees,
When you're gone.

Autumn winds may wildly blow,
Whirling rivers 'round me flow,
Beauty's never seen below
If you're gone.

You may sing me songs of sunny skies,
You may sing me lilting lullabies,
But when my melancholy dies,
You'll be home!

THE WEEK'S BEST STORY.

A mere youth, one John, had just returned from one of those western tours which young chaps always take when they reach a certain age. While on this trip he became short of funds—so very short, in fact, that it became necessary for him to pawn a suit of clothes. When he returned his mother, unpacking his trunk, happened across the coat with the little pink pawn ticket still attached thereto.

"John," asked his mother, "what is this little pink tag?"

And John, loath to tell his mother of his financial embarrassment, replied that he had attended a dance while out west and had checked his coat.

The climax to this story comes when John's mother returns to the room bearing the trousers with another pink tag and asks: "John, what kind of a dance was that?"

AND MAY we not point with pride to the fact that Omaha is not the only city in the state with a wheel tax? Valley, estimated pop. 800, has one too. And that, of course, leads directly to the story of the Iowa separator salesman who sold one of his machines and took the cow in payment.

THE OPEN ROAD.

A meadow larks starts from a clump of snake grass and, swinging carelessly in the wind, carols an ode to the dawn of day....The grasses are sleek and shiny under their coatings of early morning dew; the water in the ditches along the side of the road gurgles happily as it slides over the stones....There is a clean, sweet smell in thei air....of wild roses.... lilac....purple iris....and the pungent penetrating odor of newly plowed furrows....A red winged blackbird engages in a duel with two scarlet tangers.. .a purple grackle views the proceedings with supreme unconcern....a farm wagon passes, loaded with milk....It's good to be out....Its early summer.. .it's morning....and the road is a throbbing, living thing under my feet.... THE STORY comes to us of the young man on South Seventeenth street, who, when it was believed burglars were in the house, threw open the door of the sleeping porch with a gallant gesture, and said: "If I am shot . . . ." only to find his room mate getting ready for bed.

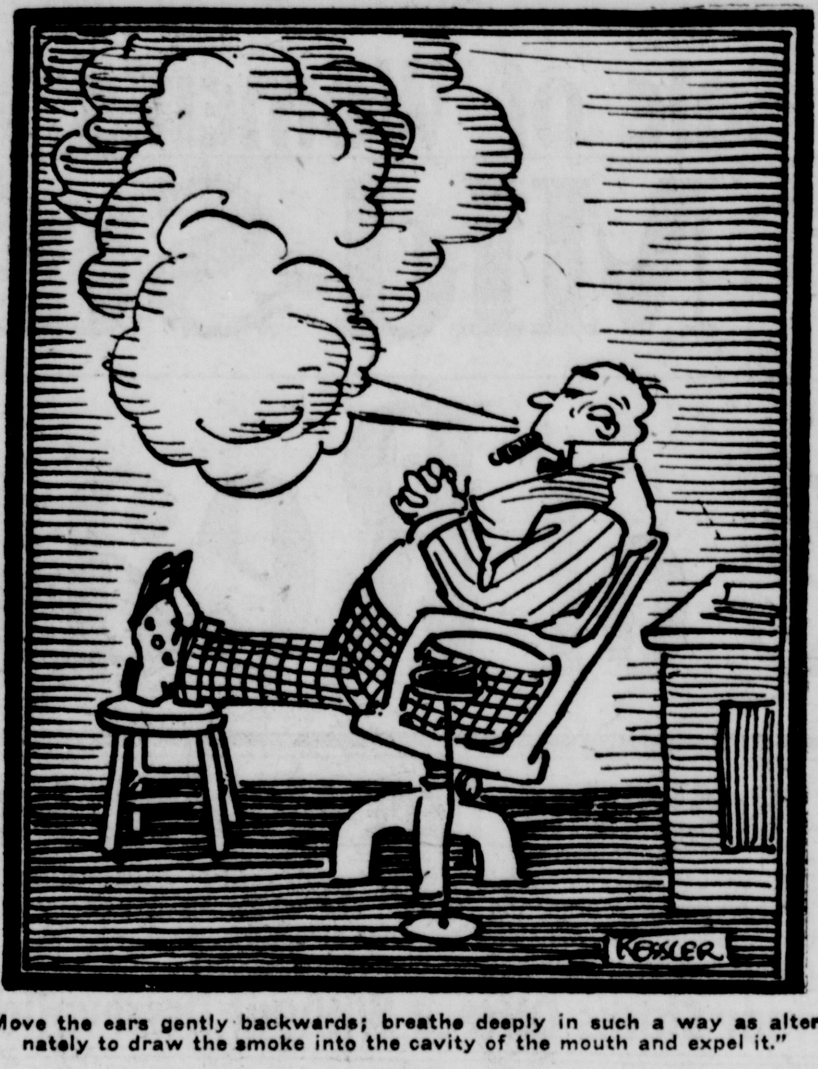
THE URGE OF EXERCISE

What History Would Have Missed if the Modern Upkeep of the Body Had Been in Vogue.



"Move the ears gently backwards; breathe deeply in such a way as alternately to draw the smoke into the cavity of the mouth and expel it."

In past ages, though it was not known at the time, many of the principal troubles of the world arose from indigestion. We read of the deep melancholy of Dante and of how he would sit brooding for hours. This was indigestion. We read of the terrible restlessness all over Europe which led to the first Crusade: again indigestion; if Peter the Hermit and his followers had known how to take a few suitable exercises on the floor of the bathroom every morning they would never have started for Jerusalem.

In other words, the secret of digestion lies in exercise; not taken in the rude fashion of earlier times on horseback and with the hounds and in such ways, but taken on the floor of the bathroom while lying on the stomach, In ten minutes a person sets himself in energy for the day. Without wishing to injure the sale of any of the numerous methods of exercises already on the market, I venture here to put in my own system, merely as a sample more or less typical, of what is being achieved in this respect.

DAILY EXERCISE ON THE FLOOR.

Course No. 1.

This course is especially designed for persons in middle life anxious to get rid of obesity, melancholy and taciturnity.

Movement No. 2 Do it again.

Movement No. 3. Again.

Movement No. 4. Once more, this time shouting ha ha! ha!

Movement No. 5. Standing in an easy attitude, pass the right arm below and behind the right knee so as to bring it round above and beyond the left shoulder at the same time rapidly revolving the body to the right and elevating the left foot so as to pivot on the right heel.

Movement No. 6. Keep on spinning.

Movement No. 7. Reverse.

Movement No. 8. Go into low gear.

Movement No. 9. Stop.

Movement No. 10 Turn a couple of handsprings downstairs to breakfast.

Ten minutes of this kind of play taken every day will keep obesity at arm's length indefinitely.

Course No. 11.

(For Business Men.)

This course is so designed that it can be taken in the office itself at intervals between signing checks, closing deals, and taking in money. There is no need, in short, for the business man to get out of his swivel chair while doing these movements.

Movement No. 1. Move the ears gently back and forward.

Movement No. 2. Light a large cigar and breathe very deeply in such a way as alternately to draw the smoke into the cavity of the mouth and expel it.

Movement No. 3. While still continuing No. 2., place the feet upon a stool or chair within easy distance, fold the hands across the stomach, and close the eyes.

Movement No. 4. Keep on.

Movement No. 5. Let the cigar fall sideways into an ashtray, place the head in a drooping position, draw a handkerchief over the cranium and remain in the posture for half an hour.

Movement No. 6. Pretend to snore.

Movement No. 7. Come smartly to an attitude of alacrity, remove the handkerchief, pick the cigar up out of the ashtray, whirl around three times on the swivel chair, ring for the stenographer, and start a new deal, at the same time moving the ears back and forward with rapidity.

THE SECRETS OF LONGEVITY AND PERPETUAL YOUTH.

Our readers—those of them who have arrived at this point of our discussion, and we are really not concerned with the others—will naturally interpose and say, "You have told us how the body may be sustained, renovated, and upholstered by means of systematic exercise, and how it can be restored from vital or wasting disease such as baldness, mange, and sinking of the stomach. What we want to know is how long can life be thus sustained and prolonged." If they do ask this our readers will receive a shock of surprise—in fact we have been keeping this shock for them—wheen we say that there is no reason why they should not live as long as they care to. (This offer is restricted, of course, to readers of these pages; others must die as usual.)

In other words we must now know so much about longevity that we have practically arrived at the secret of living forever—or at any rate until death.

It may be of interest to show the way in which modern science has arrived at this conclusion. In the first place a great many actual cases of longevity have been examined and useful conclusion drawn from each.

Case No. 1. (as reported in the Daily Annalist, Cedar Corners, Iowa.) "William Waterson celebrated his hundred and first birthday at his residence here at Cedar Corners. The old gentleman is still hale and hearty and celebrated the day by splitting two cords of wood. Mr. Waterson has been a water drinker all his life, having never tasted alcoholic spirits or tobacco."

The inference here is obvious.

Complicating Comparisons.

Mr. Waterson's life has been preserved for the plain and evident reason that he drinks only water and never smokes.

We put beside this, however, a rather puzzling item which appears in the Weekly News and Intelligencer, Georgina Township, Ontario.

"Mr. Edward Easiest celebrated his one hundred and first birthday here at the home of his son surrounded by his grandchildren in the presence of a representative of the Weekly Intelligencer devoutly giving thanks for his contiued health ad strength. Mr. Easiest has been a heavy smoker all his days and still relishes his glass of hot toddy compounded of rum, spices, and sugar."

Good old man. Can we blame him? And in any case it is clear that he owes his life to rum and tobacco. Indeed what looks simple at first begins to appear more complicated. Compare this:

(Llanfydd, Wales (From the Llanfydd Fyddist.

"Mrs. Llewellayn Owen, a resident o fthis town celebrated her one hundred and fifth birthday yesterday. Mrs. Owen, who has lived in Wales since her childhood, a hundred and ten years ago still retains all her faculties and maintains a keen interest in English politics, especially in the doings of former Premier Lloyd George whom she remembers eighty years ago as a pupil in her father's school.

"Mrs. Owen talks interestingly of the great fire of London (which she remembers as a girl) and of the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers, many of whom she knew. She doubts whether the Cabinet of the Labor Party in England contains men of the same caliber as the greatest men in history."

Potent Polyglots.

In this case without a doubt Mrs. Owen owes her life to her interest in English politics.

From examples such as these we see at once that there are certain things which conduce to perpetual youth, such as drinking nothing else throughout life but water, or nothing but rum as the case may be. Total abstinence from tobacco undoubtedly prolongs life and so does excessive smoking.

But modern science has recently recognized that in the main what we call old age is a condition brought on by an insufficiency of sour milk in the system. The discoveries of Dr. Menschnikoff have shown that sour milk is full of minute polyglots which, when let loose in the human body, effect a general restoration. It is now proven beyond doubt that anybody who takes a gallon of sour milk night and morning can live forever. The only question is—Is it worth it?

The Hope of Immortality

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Mr. J. W. Fager of New Orleans, writes me: "Your article on "Mind and Body' involves thoughts that have been coming to me for years. I have been hungry to talk to some one about them. You say that the independence of the mind from physical and chemical forces is an argument for immortality. I, too, long for immortality. But how about early mentality? It does not appear until we are about four years of age. If it is separate and distinct from physical and chemical forces, why is it not present at birth? This absence of early mentality almost blights my hope of immortality."

Why may not the mind lie dormant in the infant's brain? It must wait for the development of the physical mechanism that it is to employ during its terrestrial career; and it may help to develop it. One thing that all nature teaches us is that time is an essential element in every manifestation of life.

It may be, too, as you yourself suggest in another part of your letter, that the mind grows with the growth and aggregation of the grain cells. It has its own period of infancy. It has to learn to handle its tools. It has to accustom itself to perceive its surroundings through the fragmentary impressions that it gets from the five or six poor bodily senses that are placed at its disposal.

It must learn to look out of the prison windows that we call eyes, which give but a pitiful prospect compared with the free range of pure untrammeled and unblinded intelligence. It must learn to intrepret the physical world by means of sounds in the ears, odors in the nostrils, touches felt by hands and skin.

The baby, with a joyous laugh, reaches out his arms to grasp the smiling moon. Its undeveloped mind has not yet discovered the physical secret of space. It has to learn and practice the discipline of the prison in which it is shut up. For aught that we can tell, that discipline may be the beginning, and the first education, of the mind as a personality, or an intelligent individual.

The hope of immortality as I experience it, is an insistent desire for conscious mental life after the body perishes, but on a higher, more advantageous plane. Even a complete break with the scenes and experiences of the present life might not be unacceptable, for it would be only like awakening from a perfect sleep into an entirely new world.

In that world, again, one would wish to begin as an infant, yet not quite without some advantage from the experiences of this life. I like to think that whenever I strive to ascend some high, upward-sloping plane of thought to master some difficult intellectual conception, I may be making not altogether useless preparation for the next stage of existence. I should not be unwilling to continue there to attack problems left unsolved here below, but with greater knowledge and greater mastery. My ideal of heaven is a place alight with supreme intelligence—but not a research laboratory.

I do not undertake to distinguish between the mind and the soul. Some think that they are not the same—that the mind may serve the soul somewhat as the brain serves the mind. In that case the mind might perish with the body, while the soul survived. But then, it seems to me, the break between the present life and the future one would be absolute, and we could not feel that any of our intellectual strivings here would connect with any feature or quality of life there. I like too well the idea of growth and advance to feel altogether content with that prospect.

Don't let your hope of immortality be blighted. Science does not, and never can, destroy it.

(Garden County News.)

The manufacturer and city business man has a better opinion of the present and future of agriculture than the farmer. In fact the city man's views would be 100 per cent favorable if it were not for the "gloom" spread by the farmer himself. We have a few strong-willed broad minded farmers who are still in the optimistic class and we have great faith in the good that this "handful of cheerful men" can do providing some one will choke the loud-mouthed political agitators who are continually preaching of the ills of and injustices done the farmers.

By hanging so much "crepe" on his business the farmer has given the impression that farming is dead. This has hurt, if it has not entirely destroyed, the farmer's credit. It will take years to overcome the opinion bankers have formed of farming in the last two years. The continual knocking of their own business, by farmers, has lowered the value of the farms and equipment an amount that is impossible to calculate.

A stockholder in a manufacturing concern doesn't knock his concern when he has stock to sell; farming will respond to the same treatment. Many a young man and girl has been driven into bookkeeping positions in the city in the past two years that would be far happier and far more independent in the country. "Dark talk" did it.

Now let's all get together and talk up farming as a business, talk the bright and cheerful side and if you want to be sad "think" but don't "talk!" Look up and you will be lifted up.

When the Highway Beckons

WHEN all outdoors smiles its welcome, and the breeze is like a blessing and the smooth road rolls on into the past, and opens always into the broader future, it is not so easy to think serious thoughts! There's so much dreaming in life—so much of the story-book instinct in mortals—calamities come like crushing blows! To keep the highway smooth and the days bright, everybody should put his house in order. That is the business of a trust company—and long after individuals are gone, it functions with dependable continuity. It is here to stay—to be true to its trust, and to bring to each home and each business the advantages of all human experience in matters of estates! To make the days of recreation happier, make the days of care safer—accept our invitation to talk over the vital aspects of your will and the protection of your loved ones and your business.

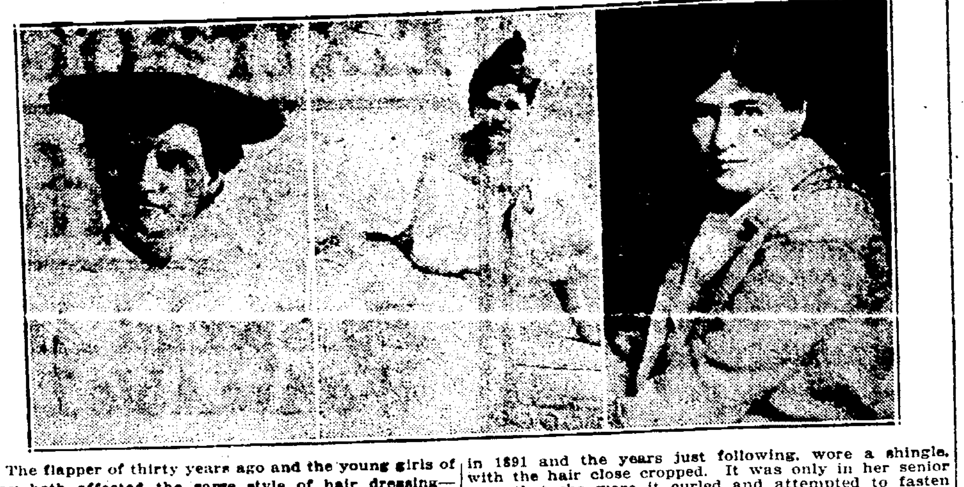
Willa Cather, Novelist, Was Modern Flapper at Nebraska U 30 Years Ago



The flapper of thirty years ago and the young girls of today both affected the same style of hair dressing—with modifications. Willa Cather, noted authoress, when she was a student in the University of Nebraska in 1891 and the years just following, wore a shingle, with the hair close cropped. It was only in her senior year that she wore it curled and attempted to fasten it a little at the top of her head (center picture)). To the right is the Willa Cather of today.

BY MARJORIE WYMAN.

"Judy O'Grady
And the Colonel's lady
Are sisters under the skin."

Even so was the co-ed of thirty years ago kin to the flapper of today. So was the student of three decades agone, closely related to the modern girl, with the patent-leather, slicked-down, short, straight close shingle. Thus indeed is the mannishly-dressed girl of the hour a sister indeed to the boyish schoolgirl of 1891—for that was the year in which there came to Lincoln from Red Cloud the first bobbed-haired University of Nebraska girl—Willa Cather.

"Billy Cather," who was graduated from the University in 1895, was even then a conspicuous figure among the girls of her class and year. Since then, she has become more than a talented schoolgirl; she is an authoress of no mean repute. Her novel, "One of Ours" for which the material was drawn almost entirely—and quite recognizably—from Lincoln and the University of Nebraska, has brought recognition to the name of Willa Sibert Cather.

But those were the days when she came from her home in Red Cloud to enroll for the first time in an institution of higher learning. And instead of being the conservative authoress of today, thinking along serious lines, and reflecting in her modern age and the ideas of the people here today, she was a very young schoolgirl. She had always wanted to be a boy, and the next best thing was to dress as much as possible in the fashion adopted by the others.

Today's Shingle—30 Years Ago.

Hair clipped short—the shingle of today—parted sometimes on one side, and worn sometimes in a pompadour "Like a prizefighter," a box coat with mannish lapels, high collars fastened up under the chin, and a man's shirt in the days even before the advent of the "shirtwaist" — that was Willa Cathers.

It was not a fad then. Golf for women had not yet become universal, and the excuse of the inconvenience of skirts and long hair on motor camping trips had not yet been invented. Small cloche-shaped hats were not the fashion then—photographs show the larger "merry widow" type. But Willa Cather wore instead a straw sailor after the type of a man's hat, or in winter, one on the same style, but of different material.

To Miss Cather, it was not the style, then, nor the fact that "everybody's doing it." For they weren't. No one else dreamed of doing anything of the sort. But she had always gone in for boy's sports—horseback, and the like—and she wanted to dress the part. It was a personal desire that prompted the introduction of such a style of dress.

Wore Masculine Dress.

"Willa followed her own inclinations, anyway," Miss Mariel Gere, a schoolmate of Miss Cather, says, "and she didn't care much what other folks said or thought. She was always a little eccentric, but as she grew and went on through school, her notions seemed to change, and she became more like other girls."

Miss Mable Lindley, also a schoolmate, tells of the garb which the authoress-to-be affected. She was very masculine in her manner of dressing," Miss Lindley says, "from the time she first came here to school. It was just personal eccentricity, though, for she dressed as she did everything else, more with regard to what she wanted to do than with respect to the thing or what other girls did."

Miss Nellie J. Compton, who was graduated the year after Miss Cather, tells of her as she appeared on the campus, in the mannishly-cut clothes, and the stiff hat, with her close-cropped hair just showing under the narrow brim.

Originality Suppressed.

Miss Louise Pound speaks of the haircut which was Miss Cather's, and says she was the only girl in school who had clipped her hair at that time. "Most girls would have been afraid of appearing conspicuous, being the only one to affect that style, but Willa had no fear of that. Of course those were the days of originality, when students were not so ultra-organised, before the red tape of a large institution had cut off independence.

"During her senior year, she used to curl her hair, but until then she wore it straight. It was too short to curl, I think. She is sorry for it now, for she has become very conservative, since she had grown a little older."

Miss Lindley, too, mentioned the difference in Miss Cather's ideas. "I think she rather regrets it," she says in speaking of the episode in the writer's life, "for she is more in the public eye now, and is less daring."

Dr. J. H. Tyndale is another of the friends of Miss Cather who knew her in her younger days. When she came down from Red Cloud to school, she was extremely boyish, and told him too that she had always wanted to be a boy. But when she went to a party at a private home dressed in boys' clothing, that was the last straw, and he told her that she would have to be less conspicuous.

It was Dr. Tyndale who encouraged the young school girl in the writing she wanted to do. People "pooh-pooh-ed" the work she did, he says, and time and again she would come to him to tell how she wanted to go home. Her fetish is correct English, after the manner of Henry James, and to lower the quality of her use of the mother tongue would be committing sacrilege, to her eyes. Imitation is her bogie, and as she said to her old friend, she "would not for anything copy the work of another, even unintentionally."

It was a twenty-two year struggle for the young Nebraska girl from the time of her discouraging school days, when things she wrote seemed "raw," she was told, to the later days when, after the writing of "My Antonia" and "One Of Ours" she was awarded the Pulitzer prize, and the subsequent victory of "The Lost Lady."

Showed Talent Then.

Even then, of course, Miss Cather was more or less of a personage. For that was the age of literary, and the supremacy of the arts school. Willa Cather's stories, verses and essays, are spread over the pages of the "Hesperian Student," a monthly pamphlet-form publication, and of "The Sombrero," the annual of early days, the predecessor of "The Cornhusker."

Greek was the principal study, and Miss Cather shone in the study of the ancient language. Miss Gere recalls her liking for the subject, and particularly her enjoyment of the courses she took under Prof. James T. Lees, until recently professor of Greek in the university.

"Anacreon" is the name of a poem signed with her initials appearing in an old "Sombrero":

The Muses found young Love one day,
When mamma was not there,
They bound and carried him away
To serve the Graces fair.
When Aphrodite found him gone,
She thought him rather young,
And wrathfully she hastened on
To free her captive son.
But when she cut the bonds of fate,
Ah! sad the tale to tell,
The laddie's mamma came too late,
He liked his job too well.

Helps Dorothy Canfield.

For she was writing even then, in a sort of desultory fashion, written by Miss Cather and Miss Dorothy Canfield, appears. Miss Canfield was in her 'teens, and a "prep school" student, and Miss Cather herself was just entering her twenties.

"Billy Cather" had a fondness for writing satire, and even, in ridiculing certain ones in university courses, wrote sarcastic parodies on famous works. Her "Count, Gismond!" and her "Count, Count, Count," as written to the meter of Hood's "Song of the Shirt," will be remembered by former students who read the publications of the day.

Editor of Student Paper.

During the semester of the managing editorship of "W. Cather" as her name is used on the first sheet of each issue, a new page appeared. It was labeled "Not To Be Read," and was made up of jokes, humorous jingles, and an occasional hit on some faculty member of student. Near the end of the year appears a poem, which may be a reflection of the masculinity of the staff—for girls were except for Miss Cather, only literary editors—or may be a reflection of Miss Cather's humor. Perhaps indeed it is an accidental pun:

"When you write a merry jest,
Cut it short.
It will be too long at best,
Cut it short.
Life is brief and full of care
Editors don't like to swear
Treat your poem like your hair,
Cut it short."

Joe Says He Can Cut Out "Doping" If He Takes The Cure--He's Done It Before

By M. E. S.

He sat there in the front row of red folding seats in the smudgy little police court room, nervously biting his fingers, or clutching his wrist with one hand and pressing both forearms close against his body. One arm he constantly protected and held close to himself. He continually ran his hand through his hair, straightened his necktie, or made some other nervous little movement. Occasionally he twitched; "Raw nerves! Raw nerves!" his whole body seemed almost to shout. Ragged, jagged shattered nerves cried achingly for morphine! For Joe was a dope fiend and this is his story.

Joe was picked up last week by a railroad dectective, who found him in the railroad yards. Just what it is about a drug addict that sets him apart from other men and marks him, no one can tell you, but officers, and especially narcotic officers, can spot him at once. And so Joe was spotted. Stopping to "frisk" him the dectective found papers on him indicating that Joe was a deaf mute, and had been receiving subscriptions from housewives to help him get enough money to attend a deaf and dumb school. But Joe, fortunately or unfortunatly, had already spoken to the officer, and a trip to the city jail was the result.

Questioned there, he told officers that he was from Omaha and on his way to the Pacific coast. He had to have money for morphine and as he could not stay in any one place long enough to get a job, this seemed to him the easiest plan. He had collected $7 or $8 the few hours he had been in Lincoln.

"It takes about $5 a day to keep me in dope, and I can't earn that much,' Joe said.

"I got the idea from a friend in Council Bluffs, and it works swell.' The papers included a sworn statement by Joe, and a set of signatures to act as bait.

"I want to take the cure, and then go on to the coast. When I get to California I won't need dope. Besides they have a state law there that makes it a penitentiary offense to take it. That means San Quentin for eighteen months.

"I got started about three years ago. Then I was working as a bell hop in one of Kansas City's largest hotels. I had a terrible cold one night, but I didn't want to quit work because a 'hot' convention was on and it meant eight to ten dollars in 'legitimate' money, that is, tips.

"A couple of the 'hops' were taking morphine and one of them told me to 'take a shot' and it would fix me up all right so that I could work. So I did. We went upstairs to one of the rooms and this boy fixed me up a shot and gave it to me. I worked that night and felt fine.

"Then as time went on I took a shot occasionally when I felt bad, and one morning I woke up with the habit! I craved it then, and had to have it.

"Of course, a drug fiend always increases his dose. I averaged from five to eight grains a day but I have taken as high as fifteen grains in a single day, and frequently ten.

"I was taking a cure by myself when I got picked up here. I had a bottle of medicine I was taking and was going to keep taking until I got to the coast. By that time I would be over the craving and only be weak. If only I hadn't spoken to that 'dick.'

"Once before, my wife before she left me, persuaded me to take the cure, and I went to a 'san' in Missouri, and stayed there for twenty days. When I got out I went for several months without it.

"Then I had some trouble with my wife and got to hitting the dope again. I guess altogether I've been on it about three years.

"Just about three weeks ago I was in the hospital with blood poisoning in my left arm. It got infected from a dirty needle. I think there was a piece of tobacco in the spoon. Anyway, I very nearly lost my arm. That's only one of the dangers a dope-head has to fight.

"Morphine is the only drug that I have used. I wouldn't use 'coke.' Coke-heads always get careless of their personal appearance, and go without shaving, with holes in their clothes, and just go to hell in a hurry! Morphine is cleaner.

Joe was wearing good clothes, and was neat and clean in every way when the officers arrested him. His face was of an intelligent type and on the whole he was a presentable and quite likeable youth. He i sonly twenty-three years old, and has been hitting the dope since he was twenty.

"But now I want to take the cure," he continued, "and then go on to the coast.

"My wife left me because I was doping. She never used any herself and it was for her that I took the cure the first time.

"I know I can quit it if I get a chance to take the cure.

After a night in jail, with no drugs of any kind, Joe was a nervous wreck. In his cell he could find no rest from the crying nerves.

"I'm getting sick, now, without any dope," he said. "My head is hot and I twitch a bit. It takes about four days to get over that. No one who has never been through it will know what hell we suffer."

One arm was covered with punctures made by the hypodermic needle, which Joe said was the only way he had ever taken it.

"Of course, you can take it through the stomach, but it takes about three times as much," he added.

"Didn't you know you wouldn't be able to buy any morphine in Lincoln?" the officers asked.

"Yes, I'd heard that it was hard to get here, and I tried, but couldn't find any. I had to go this way to the coast, though, and had to stop here. It's easy enough to get it in Omaha, Kansas City or Minneapolis, though."

I asked Joe about his family, and his education.

"My father was a chemist in Des Moines. Then he left my mother and she married a contractor there. They died when I was in about the seventh grade, I guess. After that I had to get out and rustle for myself.

"Most of the time I have been hopping bells in hotels, and several times I've had the 'head' job. Since I have been hitting the dope work hasn't been very steady. I worked in several Omaha hotels, though.

"All I want to do now is to get cured of this habit. Then I'm going west and make a new start. Maybe my wife will come back to me then. I'm glad we haven't any children."

So Joe went up before the judge.

"Joe, you're charged with being a vagrant, with loitering about and having no visible means of support. How do you want to plead? asked the prosecuting attorney.

And Joe, knowing that a jail sentence meant that he would be given a cure later, pleaded guilty.

Thirty days in the county jail, with the recommendation that he be given the opportunity to take the cure at the state hospital, was the sentence of the court.

"You can't do much but pity those poor devils," one experienced officer said. "They always think they are going to win the fight but they seldom do.

"Joe, I believe, is the finest looking chap I've ever run across who was a dope-head."

And so, you see good-looking Joe, who asked that his last name not be used in this story is to get his chance.

And maybe he will win——sometimes they do.

HOUSEHOLD USES FOR LEMONS.

Lemons are very cheap and have many uses in the household. The rind, if it is not grated off into cake mixture, pie dish or jam, should be peeled off rather thin and hung to dry. It then should be preserved in closed vessels for further use. It makes an excellent flavornig grated off, for rice pudding, stewed apples or any stewed fruit. The flesh of the lemon cleanses the hands from ink or fruit stains, and dulled metal surfaces can be cleaned with it.

The lemon is also useful in illness. Hot lemon water with sugar helps to conquer a cold. Lemmonade helps to reduce fever. The juice of a baked lemon, mixed with the same volume of honey, soothes the chest and relieves a cough. Those who suffer from boils should lay a peeled slice of lemon, from which the pits have been removed, on the injured spot and bind it on for the night. Inflammation and matter will be removed by this simple means. As a shampoo lemon juice is better than soap. The hair should be made wet with warm water and then rubbed with lemon slices. The hair should be rinsed in warm water to which a little borax has been added. Rust stains are removed without damaging textile substances by squeezing drops of lemon juice on the spots, letting them dry and repeating the process until the spots disappear. This is much safer for the fabric than employing chemicals.

Timbales of Cauliflower.

One medium sized head of cauliflower, 1 tablespoon butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 slice onion, 1½ cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1 egg, well beaten, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1¼ tablespoons granulated gelatin.

Put the cauliflower, head down, in cold salted water for at least half an hour before cooking. Cook, head up, in boiling salted water until tender. Chop fine. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add the slice of onion to the sauce while cooking and remove when the sauce has thickened. Add the salt, pepper, paprika and well beaten egg. Mix thoroughly before adding the grated cheese and strained lemon juice is added or the sauce will curdle. Stir in the gelatin, which has been soaked five minutes in twice its amount of water. Mix well together and pour into wet timbale molds. Chill thoroughly before unmolding. These are equally delicious with broiled chops or cold meats.

You will do well to add this unusual recipe to your list of ways in which you extend the variety of uses of the tomato.

Willa Cather, Novelist, Was Modern Flapper at Nebraska U 30 Years Ago

BY MARJORIE WYMAN.

"Judy O'Grady
And the Colonel's lady

Even so was the co-ed of thirty years ago kin to the flapper of today. So was the student of three decades agone, closely related to the modern girl, with the patent-leather, slicked-down, short, straight close shingle. Thus indeed is the mannishly-dressed girl of the hour a sister indeed to the boyish schoolgirl of 1891—for that was the year in which there came to Lincoln from Red Cloud the first bobbed-haired University of Nebraska girl—Willa Cather.

"Billy Cather," who was graduated from the University in 1895, was even then a conspicuous figure among the girls of her class and year. Since then, she has become more than a talented schoolgirl; she is an authoress of no mean repute. Her novel, "One of Ours" for which the material was drawn almost entirely—and quite recognizably—from Lincoln and the University of Nebraska, has brought recognition to the name of Willa Sibert Cather.

But those were the days when she came from her home in Red Cloud to enroll for the first time in an institution of higher learning. And instead of being the conservative authoress of today, thinking along serious lines, and reflecting in her modern age and the ideas of the people here today, she was a very young schoolgirl. She had always wanted to be a boy, and the next best thing was to dress as much as possible in the fashion adopted by the others.

Today's Shingle—30 Years Ago.

Hair clipped short—the shingle of today—parted sometimes on one side, and worn sometimes in a pompadour "Like a prizefighter," a box coat with mannish lapels, high collars fastened up under the chin, and a man's shirt in the days even before the advent of the "shirtwaist" — that was Willa Cathers.

It was not a fad then. Golf for women had not yet become universal, and the excuse of the inconvenience of skirts and long hair on motor camping trips had not yet been invented. Small cloche-shaped hats were not the fashion then—photographs show the larger "merry widow" type. But Willa Cather wore instead a straw sailor after the type of a man's hat, or in winter, one on the same style, but of different material.

To Miss Cather, it was not the style, then, nor the fact that "everybody's doing it." For they weren't. No one else dreamed of doing anything of the sort. But she had always gone in for boy's sports—horseback, and the like—and she wanted to dress the part. It was a personal desire that prompted the introduction of such a style of dress.

Wore Masculine Dress.

"Willa followed her own inclinations, anyway," Miss Mariel Gere, a schoolmate of Miss Cather, says, "and she didn't care much what other folks said or thought. She was always a little eccentric, but as she grew and went on through school, her notions seemed to change, and she became more like other girls."

Miss Mable Lindley, also a schoolmate, tells of the garb which the authoress-to-be affected. She was very masculine in her manner of dressing," Miss Lindley says, "from the time she first came here to school. It was just personal eccentricity, though, for she dressed as she did everything else, more with regard to what she wanted to do than with respect to the thing or what other girls did."

Miss Nellie J. Compton, who was graduated the year after Miss Cather, tells of her as she appeared on the campus, in the mannishly-cut clothes, and the stiff hat, with her close-cropped hair just showing under the narrow brim.

Originality Suppressed.

Miss Louise Pound speaks of the haircut which was Miss Cather's, and says she was the only girl in school who had clipped her hair at that time. "Most girls would have been afraid of appearing conspicuous, being the only one to affect that style, but Willa had no fear of that. Of course those were the days of originality, when students were not so ultra-organized, before the red tape of a large institution had cut off independence.

"During her senior year, she used to curl her hair, but until then she wore it straight. It was too short to curl, I think. She is sorry for it now, for she has become very conservative, since she had grown a little older."

Miss Lindley, too, mentioned the difference in Miss Cather's ideas. "I think she rather regrets it," she says in speaking of the episode in the writer's life, "for she is more in the public eye now, and is less daring."

Dr. J. H. Tyndale is another of the friends of Miss Cather who knew her in her younger days. When she came down from Red Cloud to school, she was extremely boyish, and told him too that she had always wanted to be a boy. But when she went to a party at a private home dressed in boys' clothing, that was the last straw, and he told her that she would have to be less conspicuous.

It was Dr. Tyndale who encouraged the young school girl in the writing she wanted to do. People "pooh-pooh-ed" the work she did, he says, and time and again she would come to him to tell how she wanted to go home. Her fetish is correct English, after the manner of Henry James, and to lower the quality of her use of the mother tongue would be committing sacrilege, to her eyes. Imitation is her bogie, and as she said to her old friend, she "would not for anything copy the work of another, even unintentionally."

It was a twenty-two year struggle for the young Nebraska girl from the time of her discouraging school days, when things she wrote seemed "raw," she was told, to the later days when, after the writing of "My Antonia" and "One Of Ours" she was awarded the Pulitzer prize, and the subsequent victory of "The Lost Lady."

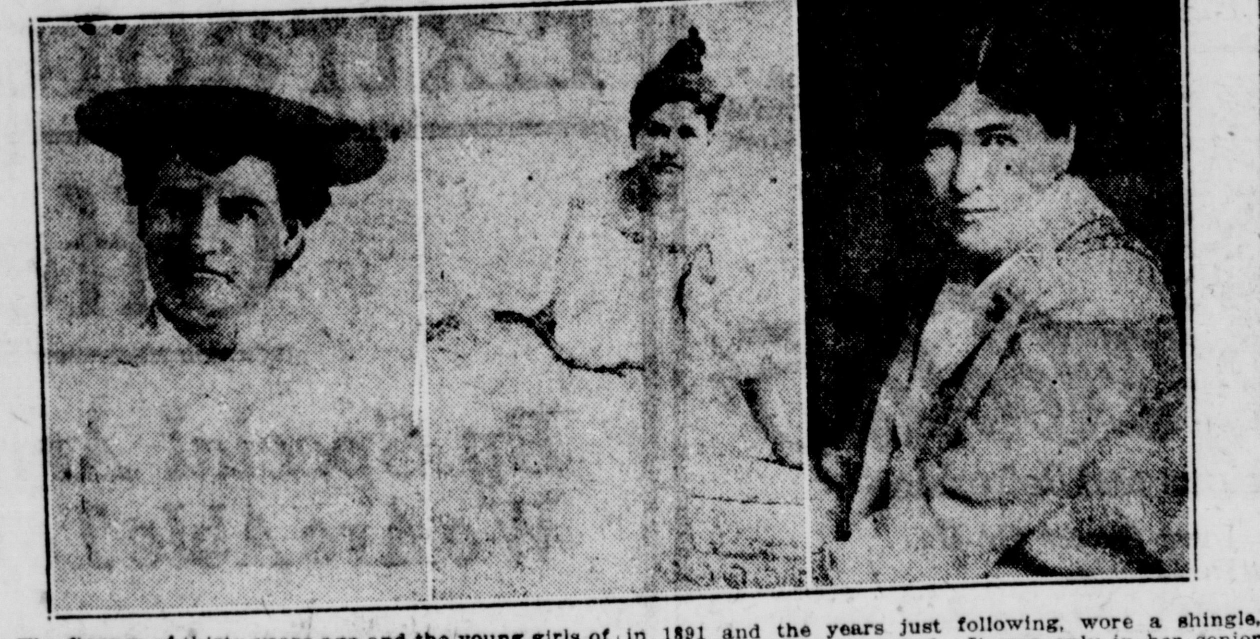
Showed Talent Then.

Even then, of course, Miss Cather was more or less of a personage. For that was the age of literary, and the supremacy of the arts school. Willa Cather's stories, verses and essays, are spread over the pages of the "Hesperian Student," a monthly pamphlet-form publication, and of "The Sombrero," the annual of early days, the predecessor of "The Cornhusker."

Greek was the principal study, and Miss Cather shone in the study of the ancient language. Miss Gere recalls her liking for the subject, and particularly her enjoyment of the courses she took under Prof. James T. Lees, until recently professor of Greek in the university.

"Anacreon" is the name of a poem signed with her initials appearing in an old "Sombrero":

The Muses found young Love one day,
When mamma was not there,
They bound and carried him away
To serve the Graces fair.
When Aphrodite found him gone,
She thought him rather young,
And wrathfully she hastened on
To free her captive son.



The flapper of thirty years ago and the young girls of today both affected the same style of hair dressing—with modifications. Willa Cather, noted authoress, when she was a student in the University of Nebraska in 1891 and the years just following, wore a shingle, with the hair close cropped. It was only in her senior year that she wore it curled and attempted to fasten it a little at the top of her head (center picture)). To the right is the Willa Cather of today.

But when she cut the bonds of fate,
Ah! sad the tale to tell,
The laddie's mamma came too late,
He liked his job too well.

Helps Dorothy Canfield.

For she was writing even then, in a sort of desultory fashion, written by Miss Cather and Miss Dorothy Canfield, appears. Miss Canfield was in her 'teens, and a "prep school" student, and Miss Cather herself was just entering her twenties.

"Billy Cather" had a fondness for writing satire, and even, in ridiculing certain ones in university courses, wrote sarcastic parodies on famous works. Her "Count, Gismond!" and her "Count, Count, Count," as written to the meter of Hood's "Song of the Shirt," will be remembered by former students who read the publications of the day.

Editor of Student Paper.

During the semester of the managing editorship of "W. Cather" as her name is used on the first sheet of each issue, a new page appeared. It was labeled "Not To Be Read," and was made up of jokes, humorous jingles, and an occasional hit on some faculty member of student. Near the end of the year appears a poem, which may be a reflection of the masculinity of the staff—for girls were except for Miss Cather, only literary editors—or may be a reflection of Miss Cather's humor. Perhaps indeed it is an accidental pun:

"When you write a merry jest,
Cut it short.
It will be too long at best,
Cut it short.
Life is brief and full of care
Editors don't like to swear
Treat your poem like your hair,
Cut it short."

Joe Says He Can Cut Out "Doping" If He Takes The Cure--He's Done It Before

By M. E. S.

He sat there in the front row of red folding seats in the smudgy little police court room, nervously biting his fingers, or clutching his wrist with one hand and pressing both forearms close against his body. One arm he constantly protected and held close to himself. He continually ran his hand through his hair, straightened his necktie, or made some other nervous little movement. Occasionally he twitched; "Raw nerves! Raw nerves!" his whole body seemed almost to shout. Ragged, jagged shattered nerves cried achingly for morphine! For Joe was a dope fiend and this is his story.

Joe was picked up last week by a railroad dectective, who found him in the railroad yards. Just what it is about a drug addict that sets him apart from other men and marks him, no one can tell you, but officers, and especially narcotic officers, can spot him at once. And so Joe was spotted. Stopping to "frisk" him the dectective found papers on him indicating that Joe was a deaf mute, and had been receiving subscriptions from housewives to help him get enough money to attend a deaf and dumb school. But Joe, fortunately or unfortunatly, had already spoken to the officer, and a trip to the city jail was the result.

Questioned there, he told officers that he was from Omaha and on his way to the Pacific coast. He had to have money for morphine and as he could not stay in any one place long enough to get a job, this seemed to him the easiest plan. He had collected $7 or $8 the few hours he had been in Lincoln.

"It takes about $5 a day to keep me in dope, and I can't earn that much,' Joe said.

"I got the idea from a friend in Council Bluffs, and it works swell.' The papers included a sworn statement by Joe, and a set of signatures to act as bait.

"I want to take the cure, and then go on to the coast. When I get to California I won't need dope. Besides they have a state law there that makes it a penitentiary offense to take it. That means San Quentin for eighteen months.

"I got started about three years ago. Then I was working as a bell hop in one of Kansas City's largest hotels. I had a terrible cold one night, but I didn't want to quit work because a 'hot' convention was on and it meant eight to ten dollars in 'legitimate' money, that is, tips.

"A couple of the 'hops' were taking morphine and one of them told me to 'take a shot' and it would fix me up all right so that I could work. So I did. We went upstairs to one of the rooms and this boy fixed me up a shot and gave it to me. I worked that night and felt fine.

"Then as time went on I took a shot occasionally when I felt bad, and one morning I woke up with the habit! I craved it then, and had to have it.

"Of course, a drug fiend always increases his dose. I averaged from five to eight grains a day but I have taken as high as fifteen grains in a single day, and frequently ten.

"I was taking a cure by myself when I got picked up here. I had a bottle of medicine I was taking and was going to keep taking until I got to the coast. By that time I would be over the craving and only be weak. If only I hadn't spoken to that 'dick.'

"Once before, my wife before she left me, persuaded me to take the cure, and I went to a 'san' in Missouri, and stayed there for twenty days. When I got out I went for several months without it.

"Then I had some trouble with my wife and got to hitting the dope again. I guess altogether I've been on it about three years.

"Just about three weeks ago I was in the hospital with blood poisoning in my left arm. It got infected from a dirty needle. I think there was a piece of tobacco in the spoon. Anyway, I very nearly lost my arm. That's only one of the dangers a dope-head has to fight.

"Morphine is the only drug that I have used. I wouldn't use 'coke.' Coke-heads always get careless of their personal appearance, and go without shaving, with holes in their clothes, and just go to hell in a hurry! Morphine is cleaner.

Joe was wearing good clothes, and was neat and clean in every way when the officers arrested him. His face was of an intelligent type and on the whole he was a presentable and quite likeable youth. He i sonly twenty-three years old, and has been hitting the dope since he was twenty.

"But now I want to take the cure," he continued, "and then go on to the coast.

"My wife left me because I was doping. She never used any herself and it was for her that I took the cure the first time.

"I know I can quit it if I get a chance to take the cure.

After a night in jail, with no drugs of any kind, Joe was a nervous wreck. In his cell he could find no rest from the crying nerves.

"I'm getting sick, now, without any dope," he said. "My head is hot and I twitch a bit. It takes about four days to get over that. No one who has never been through it will know what hell we suffer."

One arm was covered with punctures made by the hypodermic needle, which Joe said was the only way he had ever taken it.

"Of course, you can take it through the stomach, but it takes about three times as much," he added.

"Didn't you know you wouldn't be able to buy any morphine in Lincoln?" the officers asked.

"Yes, I'd heard that it was hard to get here, and I tried, but couldn't find any. I had to go this way to the coast, though, and had to stop here. It's easy enough to get it in Omaha, Kansas City or Minneapolis, though."

I asked Joe about his family, and his education.

"My father was a chemist in Des Moines. Then he left my mother and she married a contractor there. They died when I was in about the seventh grade, I guess. After that I had to get out and rustle for myself.

"Most of the time I have been hopping bells in hotels, and several times I've had the 'head' job. Since I have been hitting the dope work hasn't been very steady. I worked in several Omaha hotels, though.

"All I want to do now is to get cured of this habit. Then I'm going west and make a new start. Maybe my wife will come back to me then. I'm glad we haven't any children."

So Joe went up before the judge.

"Joe you're charged with being a vagrant, with loitering about and having no visible means of support. How do you want to plead? asked the prosecuting attorney.

And Joe, knowing that a jail sentence meant that he would be given a cure later, pleaded guilty.

Thirty days in the county jail, with the recommendation that he be given the opportunity to take the cure at the state hospital, was the sentence of the court.

"You can't do much but pity those poor devils," one experienced officer said. "They always think they are going to win the fight but they seldom do.

"Joe, I believe, is the finest looking chap I've ever run across who was a dope-head."

And so, you see good-looking Joe, who asked that his last name not be used in this story is to get his chance.

And maybe he will win——sometimes they do.

HOUSEHOLD USES FOR LEMONS.

Lemons are very cheap and have many uses in the household. The rind, if it is not grated off into cake mixture, pie dish or jam, should be peeled off rather thin and hung to dry. It then should be preserved in closed vessels for further use. It makes an excellent flavornig grated off, for rice pudding, stewed apples or any stewed fruit. The flesh of the lemon cleanses the hands from ink or fruit stains, and dulled metal surfaces can be cleaned with it.

The lemon is also useful in illness. Hot lemon water with sugar helps to conquer a cold. Lemmonade helps to reduce fever. Rust stains are removed without damaging textile substances by squeezing drops of lemon juice on the spots, letting them dry and repeating the process until the spots disappear. This is much safer for the fabric than employing chemicals.

Timbales of Cauliflower.

One medium sized head of cauliflower, 1 tablespoon butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 slice onion, 1½ cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1 egg, well beaten, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1½ tablespoons granulated gelatin.

Put the cauliflower, head down, in cold salted water for at least half an hour before cooking. Cook, head up, in boiling salted water until tender. Chop fine. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add the slice of onion to the sauce while cooking and remove when the sauce has thickened. Add the salt, pepper, paprika and well beaten egg. Mix thoroughly before adding the grated cheese and strained lemon juice is added or the sauce will curdle. Stir in the gelatin, which has been soaked five minutes in twice its amount of water. Mix well together and pour into wet timbale molds. Chill thoroughly before unmolding. These are equally delicious with broiled chops or cold meats.

Plan Attractive Affairs For Summer Visitors In Lincoln

June is almost over and weddings are on the wane. But even so the social calendar holds much of interest and the first week of July bids fair to be unusually gay with many attractive affairs planned in honor of guests in Lincoln.

Bridge luncheons, swimming parties, golf tournaments, dinners and dancing are society's forms of summer entertainment and the Country club is the scene of many gay and lovely summer affairs. Last evening nearly 200 attended the Saturday night dinner dance.

Mr. and Mrs. H S Freeman entertained at dinner in honor of R. T. Stewart of Pittsburgh, who is visiting his sister, Mrs C. H. Rudge. Covers were laid for thirty-seven. Mr. and Mrs. R. M Joyce had a small party of twelve for dinner and Mr and Mrs. F C Fiske had a small family dinner. Mr and Mrs. Merle C. Rathburn had Mr and Mrs Chester Parks of Chicago, formerly of Lincoln, dining with them.

Dutch treat parties were popular last evening. A group of six included Messrs. and Mesdames Willard Folsom, Fred Archibald and Vance Traphagen. In another party were Messrs. and Mesdames H. A. Grim, Phil Watkins, Don Stewart, Carlisle Logan-Jones and Curtis Kimball. Dining together were Messrs. and Mesdames W. B Romans, Sam Waugh, Barton Green and Dr and Mrs. Carl Bumstead. A group of eight included Messrs. and Mesdames C. E Reynolds, J. S. Tupper, W. T. Barstow, and J. H. Strayer.

In celebration of Friday, July 4, a dinner dance will be held at the Country club and in addition there will be entertainment and amusements for which the plans are not as yet completed. As in former years the dinners will be family gatherings and informal affairs.

Among the affairs planned for the coming week is a morning bridge and swimming party followed by luncheon Tuesday for which Miss Priscilla Towle will be hostess. The guest of honor will be Miss Katherine Burt of Oswego, N. Y., who is a guest at the W. H. Raymond home. The same day Mrs A. W. Richardson will entertain at luncheon and bridge for her son's bride, Mrs William Richardson, formerly Miss Josephine Doten of Albion. Mrs W. A. Woodward of Los Angeles, formerly of Lincoln will be the guest of honor at a luncheon and bridge, also on Tuesday, which will be given by Mesdames G. L. Woodward and E. E. Woodward.

Miss Edna Harpham will entertain at luncheon and bridge on Wednesday for Mrs. Charles Heck of Raleigh, N. C., formerly Miss Maude Williams of Lincoln, who arrived a week ago for a visit of several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M L Williams.

Mrs. F M Boyer and daughters, Sylvia and Katherine, of Watertown, N. Y., will arrive Thursday morning and will be the guests of Mrs. Phil Easterday and Miss Phyllis Easterday for a short visit. Mrs. Boyer and Miss Katherine Boyer will leave the latter part of the week to continue on their way to Colorado while Miss Sylvia Boyer, who was Miss Easterday's roommate at Emma Willard, will remain for a visit of about ten days after which she will join her mother and sister in Colorado. HOW TO GIVE HAIR A NATURAL GLOW

There is no loveller quality in hair than the soft natural glow that comes with proper care. Dull, lustreless hair is mostly caused by wrong shampoo. We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil leaving a wonderfully clean wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox. which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—Advertisement.

HOW TO GIVE HAIR A NATURAL GLOW

There is no lovelier quality in hair than the soft natural glow that comes with proper care. Dull, lustreless hair is mostly caused by wrong shampoo. We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very smple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—Advertisement.

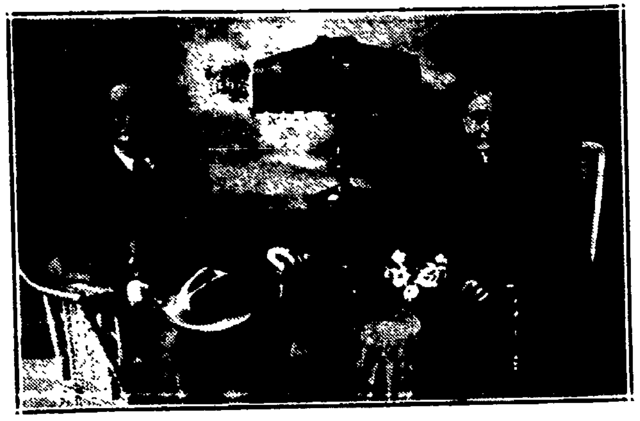
MARRIED 55 YEARS



Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Powell celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary, Friday June 13. They are among the pioneers of Nebraska, since they established their first home near Nebraska City in 1870. Later they moved to the vicinity of Sterling, and in 1901 located on a farm near Crab Orchard, where they lived until they moved to that town in 1917.

First Post Office In County Was Located At Saltillo, Stage Coach Brought the Daily Mail

BY LULU MAE COE.

It's really quite a wonderful thing to grow with a state.

It is a privilege to come in territorial days, to watch the territory progress to statehood, to see it expand and prosper and become great and to grow and progress and prosper with the state.

There are some who have had this privilege, of watching the infant Nebraska increase in power and domination, of watching its metamorphosis from crudity and primitiveness to culture and modernity, of being with it in its critical moments as it threw of fits stumbling blunderings and emerged certain and secure in its rightful place among the states.

To see, that is to see world progress visualized in cinema-like rapidity before one's eyes—for in one state are the achievements of the world symbolized—its change from barbarism to civilization, from unskilfulness to potency, from poverty to wealth, from promise to accomplishment.

The numbers of those who have watched the state gain from a timid little piece of territory, with most of its inhabitants hovering along the eastern border, who have seen its half dozen little hamlets grow into hundreds of towns and cities, and who have seen sod houses grow into mansions and frame stores into towering buildings, are growing less. Time does not spare those who have labored and worked that a state might live nor those who have seen its development

Mrs. Ella Dunham Hodgkins of Roca is one who has known the state and territory almost since its first days, and has grown from childhood to a woman nearing the three score and ten of life. She, even as a every little girl, was experiencing pioneer hardships and learning the pioneer life. Those days were a long, long time ago harder days than today, when people didn't know about the flappers and complexes and bobbed hair, but they had their thrills, perhaps even more than today.

Mrs. Hodgkins and her young sister were brought here in 1858 by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W W. Dunham, when the children were very small, settling on a claim about one mile north of Roca, on the west side of Salt creek. The family had first come out from Ohio to Oskaloosa, Ia., where the members remained fo r a short time, but upon the persuasion of an adventurous relative, they came nearer to the frontier by settling in Nebraska.

At the time, the Dunham family came to Roca, every one wanted to settle on a stream and the chosen place seemed to offer greater inducements than any other, which is probably the reason that site was chosen from all others. There was a steam grist mill for grinding corn and feed, operated by two Wisconsin men, Joseph Weeks and J. L. Davison, in the neighborhood and also a portable sawmill which sawed lumber for buildings.

"My father's house," Mrs. Hodgkins says, "was built of cotton wood lumber from this mill and was roofed with walnut shingles, planed at night, after his day's work was done. He brought them in the house, using what is called a draw shave for the work.

"Our house had only the roof boards to keep the rain out. It was always dry weather in those days, weather in those days, either, as I remember when we used umbrellas over the bed to try and keep them dry."

Towns flourished and died in those days, even as they do now, once in a while, and Mrs. odgkins remembers one in particular.

"At one time, there was a town laid out in the vicinity, called Olantha, and some had dreams that the capitol of the seate might be located there Perhaps it might, if we had had the same ones to work here as did work for Lancaster.

"For three years our nearest post office was Nebraska City and there we went for all supplies. At one time when the snow was very deep, father was eleven days making the trip with sled and oxen, and it was with great anxiety we watched and waited to see him coming over the eastern hills, for we could see a long distance, as there was nothing to hinder the view in those days.

"Saltillo was the first post office in this county, being located there in the early sixties, but it was discontinued several years ago. Then we had our daily mail, a stage running from Nebraska City to Fort Kearney. I think the first post master was John Cadman, who later went to Lancaster, the original name of Lincoln, and played an important part in the capitol removal.

The first time Mrs. Hodgkins saw Indians she saw them in numbers. Fifteen hundred Sioux, Cheyenne and Arapahoe warriors came through the neighborhood on their way to fight the Pawnees on the Platte. They did not bother the white people, only stealing from them in their absence. The war attempt was unsuccessful, for the Pawnees moved their women and children across the Platte, but they looked formidable enough, even in peace, to a little girl.

In those days, herds of buffalo were commonly seen west of the Blue river, but seldom on this side, only as they came to the salt basins for salt. Deer and antelope were frequent sights and were hunted and prairie chickens were in abundance.

The settlers went to the salt basins for their salt, taking it home and boiling and clarifying it for family use. It is hard to imagine Salt creek attracting seiners, but such was the case. Seining was the popular sport and some of the fish, buffalo and cat fish particularly would do credit to a larger river than Salt creek.

Stories of Indian depredations in the western counties became rife about 1864 and Indian difficulties were not unknown in the eastern part of the state, and as schools were not very good at that time, the Dunham family returned to Iowa. There they remained until 1867, when the capitol was located at Lincoln and Nebraska was made a state. Since that time, Mrs. Hodgkins has resided in Nebraska.

After returning to Nebraska, Mrs. Hodgkins had her first schooling in the white school house on Tenth and Q streets, on the present location of Market square. One teacher cared for the children in this school, although the entire grammar school was housed in the one building. At this time, the foundation of the first university building had just been laid.

"The building was probably crude to those of this day," Mrs. Hodgkins says, "but it seemed wonderful to the pupils that had attended in the white school house and was adequate for the needs of the time."

First Post Office In County Was Located At Saltillo, Stage Coach Brought the Daily Mail

BY LULU MAE COE.

It's really quite a wonderful thing to grow with a state.

It is a privilege to come in territorial days, to watch the territory progress to statehood, to see it expand and prosper and become great and to grow and progress and prosper with the state.

There are some who have had this privilege, of watching the infant Nebraska increase in power and domination, of watching its metamorphosis from crudity and primitiveness to culture and modernity, of being with it in its critical moments as it threw of fits stumbling blunderings and emerged certain and secure in its rightful place among the states.

To see, that is to see world progress visualized in cinema-like rapidity before one's eyes—for in one state are the achievements of the world symbolized—its change from barbarism to civilization, from unskilfulness to potency, from poverty to wealth, from promise to accomplishment.

The numbers of those who have watched the state gain from a timid little piece of territory, with most of its inhabitants hovering along the eastern border, who have seen its half dozen little hamlets grow into hundreds of towns and cities, and who have seen sod houses grow into mansions and frame stores into towering buildings, are growing less. Time does not spare those who have labored and worked that a state might live nor those who have seen its development.

Mrs. Ella Dunham Hodgkins of Roca is one who has known the state and territory almost since its first days, and has grown from childhood to a woman nearing the three score and ten of life. She, even as a every little girl, was experiencing pioneer hardships and learning the pioneer life. Those days were a long, long time ago harder days than today, when people didn't know about the flappers and complexes and bobbed hair, but they had their thrills, perhaps even more than today.

Mrs. Hodgkins and her young sister were brought here in 1858 by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dunham, when the children were very small, settling on a claim about one mile north of Roca, on the west side of Salt creek. The family had first come out from Ohio to Oskaloosa, Ia., where the members remained fo r a short time, but upon the persuasion of an adventurous relative, they came nearer to the frontier by settling in Nebraska.

At the time, the Dunham family came to Roca, every one wanted to settle on a stream and the chosen place seemed to offer greater inducements than any other, which is probably the reason that site was chosen from all others. There was a steam grist mill for grinding corn and feed, operated by two Wisconsin men, Joseph Weeks and J. L. Davison, in the neighborhood and also a portable sawmill which sawed lumber for buildings.

"My father's house," Mrs. Hodgkins says, "was built of cotton wood lumber from this mill and was roofed with walnut shingles, planed at night, after his day's work was done. He brought them in the house, using what is called a draw shave for the work.

"Our house had only the roof boards to keep the rain out. It was always dry weather in those days, weather in those days, either, as I remember when we used umbrellas over the bed to try and keep them dry."

Towns flourished and died in those days, even as they do now, once in a while, and Mrs. odgkins remembers one in particular.

"At one time, there was a town laid out in the vicinity, called Olantha, and some had dreams that the capitol of the seate might be located there. Perhaps it might, if we had had the same ones to work here as did work for Lancaster.

"For three years our nearest post office was Nebraska City and there we went for all supplies. At one time when the snow was very deep, father was eleven days making the trip with sled and oxen, and it was with great anxiety we watched and waited to see him coming over the eastern hills, for we could see a long distance, as there was nothing to hinder the view in those days.

"Saltillo was the first post office in this county, being located there in the early sixties, but it was discontinued several years ago. Then we had our daily mail, a stage running from Nebraska City to Fort Kearney. I think the first post master was John Cadman, who later went to Lancaster, the original name of Lincoln, and played an important part in the capitol removal.

The first time Mrs. Hodgkins saw Indians she saw them in numbers. Fifteen hundred Sioux, Cheyenne and Arapahoe warriors came through the neighborhood on their way to fight the Pawnees on the Platte. They did not bother the white people, only stealing from them in their absence. The war attempt was unsuccessful, for the Pawnees moved their women and children across the Platte, but they looked formidable enough, even in peace, to a little girl.

In those days, herds of buffalo were commonly seen west of the Blue river, but seldom on this side, only as they came to the salt basins for salt. Deer and antelope were frequent sights and were hunted and prairie chickens were in abundance.

The settlers went to the salt basins for their salt, taking it home and boiling and clarifying it for family use. It is hard to imagine Salt creek attracting seiners, but such was the case. Seining was the popular sport and some of the fish, buffalo and cat fish particularly would do credit to a larger river than Salt creek.

Stories of Indian depredations in the western counties became rife about 1864 and Indian difficulties were not unknown in the eastern part of the state, and as schools were not very good at that time, the Dunham family returned to Iowa. There they remained until 1867, when the capitol was located at Lincoln and Nebraska was made a state. Since that time, Mrs. Hodgkins has resided in Nebraska.

After returning to Nebraska, Mrs. Hodgkins had her first schooling in the white school house on Tenth and Q streets, on the present location of Market square. One teacher cared for the children in this school, although the entire grammar school was housed in the one building. At this time, the foundation of the first university building had just been laid.

"The building was probably crude to those of this day," Mrs. Hodgkins says, "but it seemed wonderful to the pupils that had attended in the white school house and was adequate for the needs of the time."

Lost-Christian Service Flag With 1082 Red Silk Crosses, One For Every Life-Worker

Lost—a service flag.

It isn't the kind that has blue stars on it to record the loyalty of those who risked their lives for a country. Instead, it is marked with red crosses, recording the loyalty of those who have entered foreign service from the Nebraska Sunday School association.

The flag is made of white brilliantine with a wide, red satin border. The small crosses, arranged in the shape of a cross, are of red silk ribbon, and each cross represents one who has given his life to Christian service.

It was at the time of the state Sunday school convention which was held in Nebraska City, May 26, 27 and 28, that the flag was lost. It was taken from the association office in Lincoln, and was supposed to have been loaded on a car with some other things. What happened to it no one knows. It may have been taken off the running board before the car started, it may have fallen off; it may have been dropped off somewhere on the road to Nebraska City, but the fact remains that the members of the association are feeling badly about their loss and are anxious to recover the flag.

The flag was made in 1918 by Mrs Etta Warner of Lincoln. The design was the thought of Miss Brown and Miss Kimberly. At first there were 780 crosses, representing names, placed on it, and Rev. G. S. Sutton of Kansas City conducted a very impressive presentation service with bugle, songs, flag salutes, patriotic appeal and prayer. The salute for this particular service flag was:

"I honor our Nebraska Christian service flag and those whom it represents, I pledge loyalty to the cause for which it stands—one world-family, one brotherhood, with God, the Father of us all."

Between the years of 1918 and 1921, 302 more crosses were added, and there are still more to go on it if the flag should be returned.

Perhaps the flag will mean nothing to those who are not members of the Sunday School association, and perhaps it has been found by someone who would like to return it if he knew what it was and where it belongs

Music As An Anesthetic Not To Take Place of Ether, At Least in Lincoln Hospitals

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

Is it or isn't it?

Will it or wont it?

Some scientists and physicians in the country say it is and it will, and the majority say it isn't and it wont.

And the argument concerns the use of music as an anesthetic.

Not so long ago a certain Chicago hospital used violin music, instead of ther, during an operation. The patient was very well satisfied, and, according to reports, the attending surgeons thought very well of the idea.

Imagine future operating rooms equipped with baby grand pianos, platforms for orchestras—or, even better, having a radio receiving set. The patient could listen to everything for miles around and still be as comfortable as possible on the operating table.

It would seem that the officiating surgeon would almost be forced to make a study of his patient's temperament before the anesthetic was administered. One patient might demand jazz music, another the sad, soulful kind, and still another might prefer the crashy, brilliant type. Then, too, one one might require various types of music, beginnnig the operation with something jazzy and finishing with "Hearts and Flowers" or vice versa.

But regardless of all of the opinions any of the noted scientists may have on the subject, music will not be given in place of ether in Lincoln hospitals—yet.

The prominent Lincoln physicians and specialists, when questioned as to the probable use of music for this purpose, put the whole thing down as a huge joke.

"I dare say we will have better anesthetics at some future time than we have now," said Dr. J. J. Humpes, "but music will not be one of them.

"It would be utterly impossible to substitute any kind of music for an anesthetic and expect the same results."

Dr. Harry Flansburg also is of the belief that music could not be used satisfactorily.

Does Not Deaden Pain.

"Music could not deaden the pain. If the operation were a very minor one, and if the pain were very slight, then one might forget his troubles through the aid of music if he were especially fond of it. But for real operations it wouldn't do at all."

Dr. J. Stanley Welch claims that music could not be used in place of an anesthetic, but there is such a thing as hypnotism and music is sometimes a great factor in accomplishing things along that line.

"It would be absolutely impossible to use music in the place of an anesthetic," Dr. Welch said. "But if the patient could be hypnotized into believing he was suffering no pain, and if this could be done by music, so much the better. The first thing to do, though, in this case, would be to hypnotize the patient"

One prominent physician and surgeon in Lincoln refuses to say that it would be impossible. He is Dr. David C. Hilton.

"There is nothing impossible if one knows how to do it," Dr. Hilton said. "Personally I wouldn't try to use music in place of ether, but perhaps if one knew just what he was doing it could produce the proper result. Everything is possible in the universe, it is just knowing how that counts."

Dr. Oliver Everett said that the same old problem had come up many times before, but that the idea was always regarded as more or less of a joke by the medical profession.

"The idea is to use a local anesthetic and music," said Dr. Everett. "The music has nothing to do with the anesthetic, however, so the main idea must be to keep the patient and surgeon as happy as possible while the operation is going on. I think there is no danger of the theory being put in practice as far as Lincoln hospitals are concerned."

Of course, we suppose that if any one were to care to try the music in preference to the anesthetic, just by way of experiment, none of the surgeons would object, but it is to be thoroughly understood that none of the medical profession are recommending the idea.

So, for the itme being, music will have to be satisfied to soothe the hours of the convalescent, and stay out of the operating room, at least in Lincoln.

Members of the York drill team were the guests of honor, and were met at the train by the committee on arrangements taken to the office of the grand secretary, where open house was held during the afternoon. At 5:30, they were taken to the Grand hotel, where a banquet had been prepared. Pink carnations, the official flower, were used in decoration. The grand officers and the presidents of the local lodges were seated at the head of the table. The grand president, Florence E Owen; the grand secretary, Rose Herrick; the president of No. 104, Merle Hedlund; the president of No. 9, Hazel McGraw, and the president of the York lodge, Mrs Witters, were the subject of songs. Mr. and Mrs George Chapman, charter members of No. 9, but who now live in St. Paul, Minn., were honor guests. The banquet was followed by a car ride over the city, and all returned to Walsh hall at 8 o'clock. The room was beautifully decorated with garden flowers. Here a joint booster meeting was held, with the members of Mistletoe lodge No. 104 in charge, assisted by officers of Lincoln lodge No. 9. Grand officers and visitors were introduced and welcomed. The York team gave the initiatory work, the charge on the official flower being given by the grand secretary, Rose Herrick, who was assisted by Myra McGraw and Alice Decker. Following this, the York team gave a fancy drill. A production under the Good of the Order was given by members, including an address by Florence E. HODGMAN SERVICE
Let me live by the side of the road and be a friend to man.
INDEPENDENCE DAY

NEXT Friday is the birthday of our Republic, founded on the principles of liberty and justice.

This day should be fittingly celebrated — with an impressive reading of the Declaration of Independence—much as the news was celebrated in 1776.

Lost-Christian Service Flag With 1082 Red Silk Crosses, One For Every Life-Worker

Lost—a service flag.

It isn't the kind that has blue stars on it to record the loyalty of those who risked their lives for a country. Instead, it is marked with red crosses, recording the loyalty of those who have entered foreign service from the Nebraska Sunday School association.

The flag is made of white brilliantine with a wide, red satin border. The small crosses, arranged in the shape of a cross, are of red silk ribbon, and each cross represents one who has given his life to Christian service.

It was at the time of the state Sunday school convention which was held in Nebraska City, May 26, 27 and 28, that the flag was lost. It was taken from the association office in Lincoln, and was supposed to have been loaded on a car with some other things. What happened to it no one knows. It may have been taken off the running board before the car started, it may have fallen off; it may have been dropped off somewhere on the road to Nebraska City, but the fact remains that the members of the association are feeling badly about their loss and are anxious to recover the flag.

The flag was made in 1918 by Mrs. Etta Warner of Lincoln. The design was the thought of Miss Brown and Miss Kimberly. At first there were 780 crosses, representing names, placed on it, and Rev. G. S. Sutton of Kansas City conducted a very impressive presentation service with bugle, songs, flag salutes, patriotic appeal and prayer. The salute for this particular service flag was:

"I honor our Nebraska Christian service flag and those whom it represents; I pledge loyalty to the cause for which it stands—one world-family, one brotherhood, with God, the Father of us all."

Between the years of 1918 and 1921, 302 more crosses were added, and there are still more to go on it if the flag should be returned.

Perhaps the flag will mean nothing to those who are not members of the Sunday School association, and perhaps it has been found by someone who would like to return it if he knew what it was and where it belongs.

Music As An Anesthetic Not To Take Place of Ether, At Least in Lincoln Hospitals

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

Is it or isn't it?

Will it or wont it?

Some scientists and physicians in the country say it is and it will, and the majority say it isn't and it wont.

And the argument concerns the use of music as an anesthetic.

Not so long ago a certain Chicago hospital used violin music, instead of ether, during an operation. The patient was very well satisfied, and, according to reports, the attending surgeons thought very well of the idea.

Imagine future operating rooms equipped with baby grand pianos, platforms for orchestras—or, even better, having a radio receiving set. The patient could listen to everything for miles around and still be as comfortable as possible on the operating table.

It would seem that the officiating surgeon would almost be forced to make a study of his patient's temperament before the anesthetic was administered. One patient might demand jazz music, another the sad, soulful kind, and still another might prefer the crashy, brilliant type. Then, too, one one might require various types of music, beginnnig the operation with something jazzy and finishing with "Hearts and Flowers" or vice versa.

But regardless of all of the opinions any of the noted scientists may have on the subject, music will not be given in place of ether in Lincoln hospitals—yet.

The prominent Lincoln physicians and specialists, when questioned as to the probable use of music for this purpose, put the whole thing down as a huge joke.

"I dare say we will have better anesthetics at some future time than we have now," said Dr. J. J. Humpes, "but music will not be one of them.

"It would be utterly impossible to substitute any kind of music for an anesthetic and expect the same results."

Dr. Harry Flansburg also is of the belief that music could not be used satisfactorily.

Does Not Deaden Pain.

"Music could not deaden the pain. If the operation were a very minor one, and if the pain were very slight, then one might forget his troubles through the aid of music if he were especially fond of it. But for real operations it wouldn't do at all."

Dr. J. Stanley Welch claims that music could not be used in place of an anesthetic, but there is such a thing as hypnotism, and music is sometimes a great factor in accomplishing things along that line.

"It would be absolutely impossible to use music in the place of an anesthetic," Dr. Welch said. "But if the patient could be hypnotized into believing he was suffering no pain, and if this could be done by music, so much the better. The first thing to do, though, in this case, would be to hypnotize the patient."

One prominent physician and surgeon in Lincoln refuses to say that it would be impossible. He is Dr. David C. Hilton.

"There is nothing impossible if one knows how to do it," Dr. Hilton said. "Personally I wouldn't try to use music in place of ether, but perhaps if one knew just what he was doing it could produce the proper result. Everything is possible in the universe, it is just knowing how that counts."

Dr. Oliver Everett said that the same old problem had come up many times before, but that the idea was always regarded as more or less of a joke by the medical profession.

"The idea is to use a local anesthetic and music," said Dr. Everett. "The music has nothing to do with the anesthetic, however, so the main idea must be to keep the patient and surgeon as happy as possible while the operation is going on. I think there is no danger of the theory being put in practice as far as Lincoln hospitals are concerned."

Of course, we suppose that if any one were to care to try the music in preference to the anesthetic, just by way of experiment, none of the surgeons would object, but it is to be thoroughly understood that none of the medical profession are recommending the idea.

So, for the itme being, music will have to be satisfied to soothe the hours of the convalescent, and stay out of the operating room, at least in Lincoln.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

NEXT Friday is the birthday of our Republic, founded on the principles of liberty and justice.

This day should be fittingly celebrated — with an impressive reading of the Declaration of Independence—much as the news was celebrated in 1776.

Our love of independence and our gratitude to those members of the Continental Congress "who hung together lest they should hang separately," grows deeper with the passing of each year.

The Musical World

Interesting plans for the next session of the Nebraska Music Teachers' association, to be held in Lincoln this coming year, are now being launched. Much enthusiasm has been expressed by local and state musicians over the attractions to be presented during the next association program.

The main innovation under discussion for this coming meeting of the N. M. T. A. centers around the master class conferences in voice, piano, and violin. These conferences will be conducted by artist-teachers of national reputation. This plan of master class conferences has been tried by several of the leading state music teachers' associations, including Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, etc, and has proven a real value to professional and student musicians. A definite announcement of the artist-pedagogues chosen for the Lincoln session of the N. M. T. A., will be made later. A number of prominent names are being considered.

The probable dates for the next meeting of the N. M. T. A. include February 9-10-11, 1925. Two of these dates schedule two prominent Lincoln concerts. Mrya Hess, the English pianist, will appear in Lincoln on the afternoon of Monday, Feb. 9, under the sponsorship of the Matinee Musicale. On Wednesday, Feb. 11, the Detroit Symphony orchestra will be heard in Lincoln, brought here under the great Artists' Course now managed by Willard Kimball.

The executive and program committees for the Lincoln meeting of the N. M. T. A are as yet incomplete. New names will be added soon. The following Lincoln musicians have accepted the responsibilities for the necessary organization and program fulfilment: executive committee, Augusta Molzer, chairman; Adrian Newins and Carl Steckelberg; program committee, Louise Zumwinkle Watson, chairman, Madame Gilderoy Scott, Lillian Helms Polley, Howard Kirkpatrick, Herbert Schmidt, and H. O Ferguson The above musicians are unanimous in their endorsement of the master class conference plan.

The closing concert of the Matinee Musicale season was given by May Peterson who completely captivated her audience, and the following account of the wedding of the charming soprano is of interest to her Lincoln friends:

On Monday evening, June 9, May Peterson, the well known soprano, was married to Colonel Ernest C Thompson, son of Mr and Mrs L C Thompson of Amarillo, Tex, at the Reformed church of Bronxville, N. Y, by Dr. Charles Jefferson of the Broadway Tabernacle, assisted by Dr Edwards of Bronxville While the guests assembled in the old and picturesque church, Francis Moore, who has acted in the capacity of accompanist for the singer, furnished a well selected and appropriate musical program As the strains of the familiar wedding march sounded throughout the church, the bridal procession proceeded up the aisle headed by Clara Belle Peterson, the bride's sister maid of honor, followed by Marjorie Macintosh of Cedar Knolls, Bronxville, and Theresa Smith of Brooklyn, bridesmaids, dressed in charming frocks of pastel shades. The flower girl, Lois Annette Peterson, niece of the bride, came before the bride on the arm of her brother, D. W. Peterson.

Miss Peterson made an attractive bride in her gown of heavy white satin over which well a long veil of exquisite Duchess lace, caught to her hair with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. At the altar, decorated with white peonies and greens, she was met by the bridegroom and his best man, Col. Alvin Owsley of Dallas, Tex The ceremony itself was short and simple, but apparently not short enough for the happy bridegroom, who kissed the bride before the minister had said the final word much to the amusement of the guests. The ushers were: Dr B M. Puckett of Dallas, Tex.; Col. H Nelson Jackson, Burlington, Vt.; Robert M. Field, Riverdale, N. Y.; Pierson B. Garrett, Dallas, Tex., and Stuart Ross of New York. Following the wedding an informal reception was held in the church vestry, but on next Saturday a larger reception will be given at the home of the bride's brother in Bronxville.

Colonel Thompson attended Austin university, also the Virginia Military Institute. He belongs to the University club, Rotary, International, American Bar association, Khiva Shrine, Phi Delta Phi and Phi Kappa Psi.

Colonel and Mrs. Thompson will spend their honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies and Europe, returning about October 1, when Miss Peterson will resume her concert work. Her managers, Haensel and Jones, have already booked a busy season for her.—Musical Courier.

After nearly a half century of activity in musical criticism, Henry T. Finck has resigned as music editor of the New York Evening Post in favor of a life of tone-proof ease. Said Mr. Finck in his valedictory, "Frankly, I feel as if I would not wish to hear any music for at least forty-three years Too much is worse than a fast. I shall be much happier than I have been these last years listning to singers and players most of whom would be in Sing Sing if we accepted Liszt's dictum that mediocrity in music is a crime."

Mr. Finck plans to live in quiet abroad and to write books, of which he already has seventeen to his credit. The first will be his autobiography. Not all of Mr Finck's books have been about music for he is an expert in dietetics, as well as in gardening, which he has been practicing eagerly at his summer home in Bethel, Me, following the countless hours of boredom patiently endured" in the conscientious performance of his critical duties.

An incident in Mr. Finck's farewell to music criticism was a tribute paid to him in an open letter from William J. Guard of the Metropolitan Opera company, concerning the performances of which Mr. Finck had been exacting but enthusiastic commentator. Mr. Guard remarked of Mr. Finck's highly concentrated music listening. "A man who can listen to as much music as he had to during eight months and yet wind up the season as cheery and optimistic and amiable as he, is indeed a 'rara avis in Terris,'" Not without his prejudices was Mr Finck, declares Mr Guard, but they were ninety per cent favorable prejudices Among the artists, Geraldine Farrar especially has found in him a champion. Of the composers his idols are Liszt, Grieg, MacDowell and Massenet, all of whom he has eulogized in his writings. His chief antipathy has been to Brahms—a prejudice to which Mr. Guard himself gives at least partial adherence. However, Mr. Finck agreed with Brahms in one thing—that we do not hear enough of the Johann Strauss waltz music in our concert halls.

Mayor Hylan of New York announces that the site for the city's proposed Music and Art Center will not be in Central park, but probably somewhere on the south side of Fifty-ninth street, facing the park This move came about because of all judged opposition to the original plan It is understood also from the mayor's announcement that several wealthy private citizens have pledged themselves to contribute liberally toward the erection of the buildings if the city will purchase the ground.

Contrary to his own expectations, Beniamino Gigli's adventures in America for this season did not end with his departure from New York on the S. S. Colombo. The boat stopped at Philadelphia the following day to take on some passengers for Naples, and a delegation of the tenor's acquaintances came to visit him and to invite him to visit the "Beniamino Gigli Restaurant," which one of them has recently opened there. The good natured tenor consented to visit them for an hour. As they were driving there, in passing an open lot where some young men were playing baseball, a batted ball struck the glass of the automobile, which broke into bits, cutting Mr Gigli on the neck, luckily causing only a flesh wound, as a near-at-hand doctor quickly established. Meantime the police had arrested the young man who threw the ball, a negro, and asked Gigli if he would make a complaint The tenor, however, very happy that the accident was not more serious, and feeling that it was purely an accident, not only declined to prosecute the young negro, but handed him a twenty dollar bill and sent him on his way profusely thankful and happy. A few hours later the popular metropolitan tenor was on the high seas, presumably safe from any further-damage from American sports

Potential gangsters are to be made useful citizens as one of the by-products of the newly organized Associated Glee Clubs of America. One of its objectives is that the young boys in the public schools shall be taught to read music, thus supplying raw material for more and more glee clubs This raw material is to be formed into junior glee clubs each fostered by an adult male chorus. One of the underlying motives of the new movement springs from the belief of its sponsors that the young men and boys of the country need the refining and ennobling influences which go with the fellowship and work of glee clubs. They expect that the association of the young singers with their elder brothers will reclaim many a lad who, at that crucial period in his life, might otherwise have yielded to an unwholesome environment.

Just how serious is the situation was pointed out at the organization meeting of the association by its president, Clayton W. Old, who said:

"I have a friend who is a judge of the criminal court in one of our nearby cities. He is deeply interested in our undertaking. He said to me recently, 'I want you to come down to my court next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.' I did so and, meeting him in his private room, he led me up into the bench room filled to the back row with men and boys with an occasional woman. 'Look over that crowd,' said the judge, 'and tell me what you think their average age is.' After some some minutes I submitted my guess of twenty years. 'You are about right,' he said, 'although I would be apt to put it a little lower. This is sentence day. during the past term these men and boys have been tried and found guilty in the various sections of this court of almost all the crimes in the code—robbery, assault, bootlegging, dope selling and all the rest save murder only. These boys are the products of pool rooms, the saloons, the gang headquarters, the hop joints and the dance halls of this city. They are here because in the vicinity of their homes these rotten resorts happen to exist and pull them in with the lure of ecitement, adventure and self-indulgence. If they had been raised under the influences of a decent neighborhood most of them would not be here.

"'Now,' he said, 'I brought you here to say that if you men have a scheme on hand which will spot, here and there, centres of good influence sufficiently attractive to lure these boys away from the bad ones—go to it quick, for the boys of this town are in a bad way.

That this judge was not putting the matter too strongly is indicated by the remarks of Justice Cropsey of the New York court in sentencing four gunmen to die for murder:

"Of these four men three are boys twenty-one years of age and the fourth a few years older. Most of the criminals appearing in this court are boys and young men To be exact, eighty per cent of them are less than twenty-five years of age. They are largely the result of parental neglect and lack of discipline and proper guidance in the critical years when boyhood is turning into manhood.

"Tens of thousands of boys are nightly on our streets, looking for amusement, seeking adventure, yearning for companionship. Do we men owe no duty to these boys? Can we longer remain blind to the perils that beset them? Should we not provide places where such boys may meet and play and be entertained and instructed under the influence of men of the right kind? This is a man's job and it needs red-blooded men who, will put something of themselves into the undertaking."

Nearly 600 members of twelve glee clubs sang together at Carnegie Hall, New York city, in the sensational concert which christened the Associated Glee Clubs' campaign. Delegates from forty-two clubs met in the inaugural convention to bring about a greater "extension of fine chorus singing among the men and boys of America." The organization is ultimately to be national in scope, with headquarters at 62 West 45th street, New York city. The district or "department" to be first developed is that between Maine, Pittsburgh and Washington.

The Musical World

Interesting plans for the next session of the Nebraska Music Teachers' association, to be held in Lincoln this coming year, are now being launched. Much enthusiasm has been expressed by local and state musicians over the attractions to be presented during the next association program.

The main innovation under discussion for this coming meeting of the N. M. T. A. centers around the master class conferences in voice, piano, and violin. These conferences will be conducted by artist-teachers of national reputation. This plan of master class conferences has been tried by several of the leading state music teachers' associations, including Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, etc., and has proven a real value to professional and student musicians. A definite announcement of the artist-pedagogues chosen for the Lincoln session of the N. M. T. A., will be made later. A number of prominent names are being considered.

The probable dates for the next meeting of the N. M. T. A. include February 9-10-11, 1925. Two of these dates schedule two prominent Lincoln concerts. Mrya Hess, the English pianist, will appear in Lincoln on the afternoon of Monday, Feb. 9, under the sponsorship of the Matinee Musicale. On Wednesday, Feb. 11, the Detroit Symphony orchestra will be heard in Lincoln, brought here under the great Artists' Course now managed by Willard Kimball.

The executive and program committees for the Lincoln meeting of the N. M. T. A. are as yet incomplete. New names will be added soon. The following Lincoln musicians have accepted the responsibilities for the necessary organization and program fulfilment: executive committee, Augusta Molzer, chairman; Adrian Newins and Carl Steckelberg; program committee, Louise Zumwinkle Watson, chairman, Madame Gilderoy Scott, Lillian Helms Polley, Howard Kirkpatrick, Herbert Schmidt, and H. O. Ferguson. The above musicians are unanimous in their endorsement of the master class conference plan.

Lura Schuler Smith is president of the organization and Edith Lucile Robbins is secretary-treasurer.

The Gustavian Male quartet of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn., on its second annual tour will give a concert Monday evening at the First Lutheran church, Thirteenth and K streets, at 8 o'clock. The junior music club met at the home of Miss Audrey Utterback, 3126 Kleckner court, Tuesday afternoon. Most of the meeting was spent in musical entertainment. The guests in addition to the members were the Misses Frances Crittenden, Mabel Wagner, and Ruth Holloway. The program consisted of a piano solo, readings, a song, and a dance. Refreshments were served late in the afternoon.

The closing concert of the Matinee Musicale season was given by May Peterson, who completely captivated her audience, and the following account of the wedding of the charming soprano is of interest to her Lincoln friends:

On Monday evening, June 9, May Peterson, the well known soprano, was married to Colonel Ernest C. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Thompson of Amarillo, Tex., at the Reformed church of Bronxville, N. Y., by Dr. Charles Jefferson of the Broadway Tabernacle, assisted by Dr. Edwards of Bronxville. While the guests assembled in the old and picturesque church, Francis Moore, who has acted in the capacity of accompanist for the singer, furnished a well selected and appropriate musical program. As the strains of the familiar wedding march sounded throughout the church, the bridal procession proceeded up the aisle, headed by Clara Belle Peterson, the bride's sister, maid of honor, followed by Marjorie MacIntosh of Cedar Knolls, Bronxville, and Theresa Smith of Brooklyn, bridesmaids, dressed in charming frocks of pastel shades. The flower girl, Lois Annette Peterson, niece of the bride, came before the bride on the arm of her brother, D. W. Peterson.

Miss Peterson made an attractive bride in her gown of heavy white satin over which well a long veil of exquisite Duchess lace, caught to her hair with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. At the altar, decorated with white peonies and greens, she was met by the bridesgroom and his best man, Col. Alvin Owsley of Dallas, Tex. The ceremony itself was short and simple, but apparently not short enough for the happy bridegroom, who kissed the bride before the minister had said the final word much to the amusement of the guests. The ushers were: Dr. B. M. Puckett of Dallas, Tex.; Col. H. Nelson Jackson, Burlington, Vt.; Robert M. Field, Riverdale, N. Y.; Pierson B. Garrett, Dallas, Tex., and Stuart Ross of New York. Following the wedding an informal reception was held in the church vestry, but on next Saturday a larger reception will be given at the home of the bride's brother in Bronxville.

Colonel Thompson attended Austin university, also the Virginia Military Institute. He belongs to the University club, Rotary, International, American Bar association, Khiva Shrine, Phi Delta Phi and Phi Kappa Psi.

Colonel and Mrs. Thompson will spend their honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies and Europe, returning about October 1, when Miss Peterson will resume her concert work. Her managers, Haensel and Jones, have already booked a busy season for her.—Musical Courier.

After nearly a half century of activity in musical criticism, Henry T. Finck has resigned as music editor of the New York Evening Post in favor of a life of tone-proof ease. Said Mr. Finck in his valedictory, "Frankly, I feel as if I would not wish to hear any music for at least forty-three years. Too much is worse than a fast. I shall be much happier than I have been these last years listning to singers and players most of whom would be in Sing Sing if we accepted Liszt's dictum that mediocrity in music is a crime."

Mr. Finck plans to live in quiet abroad and to write books, of which he already has seventeen to his credit. The first will be his autobiography. Not all of Mr. Finck's books have been about music for he is an expert in dietetics, as well as in gardening, which he has been practicing eagerly at his summer home in Bethel, Me., following the countless hours of boredom patiently endured" in the conscientious performance of his critical duties.

An incident in Mr. Finck's farewell to music criticism was a tribute paid to him in an open letter from William J. Guard of the Metropolitan Opera company, concerning the performances of which Mr. Finck had been exacting but enthusiastic commentator. Mr. Guard remarked of Mr. Finck's highly concentrated music listening: "A man who can listen to as much music as he had to during eight months and yet wind up the season as cheery and optimistic and amiable as he, is indeed a 'rara avis in Terris," Not without his prejudices was Mr. Finck, declares Mr. Guard, but they were ninety per cent favorable prejudices. Among the artists, Geraldine Farrar especially has found in him a champion. Of the composers his idols are Liszt, Grieg, MacDowell and Massenet, all of whom he has eulogized in his writings. His chief antipathy has been to Brahms—a prejudice to which Mr. Guard himself gives at least partial adherence. However, Mr. Finck agreed with Brahms in one thing—that we do not hear enough of the Johann Strauss waltz music in our concert halls.

Mayor Hylan of New York announces that the site for the city's proposed Music and Art Center will not be in Central park, but probably somewhere on the south side of Fifty-ninth street, facing the park. This move came about because of ill judged opposition to the original plan. It is understood also from the mayor's announcement that several wealthy private citizens have pledged themselves to contribute liberally toward the erection of the buildings if the city will purchase the ground.

Contrary to his own expectations, Beniamino Gigli's adventures in America for this season did not end with his departure from New York on the S. S. Colombo. The boat stopped at Philadelphia the following day to take on some passengers for Naples, and a delegation of the tenor's acquaintances came to visit him and to invite him to visit the "Beniamino Gigli Restaurant," which one of them has recently opened there. The good natured tenor consented to visit them for an hour. As they were ariving there, in passing an open lot where some young men were playing baseball, a batted ball struck the glass of the automobile, which broke into bits, cutting Mr. Gigli on the neck, luckily causing only a flesh wound, as a near-at-hand doctor quickly established. Meantime the police had arrested the young man who threw the ball, a negro, and asked Gigli if he would make a complaint. The tenor, however, very happy that the accident was not more serious, and feeling that it was purely an accident, not only declined to prosecute the young negro, but handed him a twenty dollar bill and sent him on his way profusely thankful and happy. A few hours later the popular metropolitan tenor was on the high seas, presumably safe from any further damage from American sports

Potential gangsters are to be made useful citizens as one of the by-products of the newly organized Associated Glee Clubs of America. One of its objectives is that the young boys in the public schools shall be taught to read music, thus supplying raw material for more and more glee clubs. This raw material is to be formed into junior glee clubs each fostered by an adult male chorus. One of the underlying motives of the new movement springs from the belief of its sponsors that the young men and boys of the country need the refining and ennobling influences which go with the fellowship and work of glee clubs. They expect that the association of the young singers with their elder brothers will reclaim many a lad who, at that crucial period in his life, might otherwise have yielded to an unwholesome environment.

Just how serious is the situation was pointed out at the organization meeting of the association by its president, Clayton W. Old, who said:

"I have a friend who is a judge of the criminal court in one of our nearby cities. He is deeply interested in our undertaking. He said to me recently, 'I want you to come down to my court next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.' I did so and, meeting him in his private room, he led me up into the bench room filled to the back row with men and boys with an occasional woman. 'Look over that crowd,' said the judge, 'and tell me what you think their average age is.' After some some minutes I submitted my guess of twenty years. 'You are about right,' he said, 'although I would be apt to put it a little lower. This is sentence day, during the past term these men and boys have been tried and found guilty in the various sections of this court of almost all the crimes in the code—robbery, assault, bootlegging, dope selling and all the rest save murder only. These boys are the products of pool rooms, the saloons, the gang headquarters, the hop joints and the dance halls of this city. They are here because in the vicinity of their homes these rotten resorts happen to exist and pull them in with the lure of ecitement, adventure and self-indulgence. If they had been raised under the influences of a decent neighborhood most of them would not be here.

"'Now,' he said, 'I brought you here to say that if you men have a scheme on hand which will spot, here and there, centres of good influence sufficiently attractive to lure these boys away from the bad ones—go to it quick, for the boys of this town are in a bad way.

That this judge was not putting the matter too strongly is indicated by the remarks of Justice Cropsey of the New York court in sentencing four gunmen to die for murder:

"Of these four men three are boys twenty-one years of age and the fourth a few years older. Most of the criminals appearing in this court are boys and young men. To be exact, eighty per cent of them are less than twenty-five years of age. They are largely the result of parental neglect and lack of discipline and proper guidance in the critical years when boyhood is turning into manhood.

"Tens of thousands of boys are nightly on our streets, looking for amusement, seeking adventure, yearning for companionship. Do we men owe no duty to these boys? Can we longer remain blind to the perils that beset them? Should we not provide places where such boys may meet and play and be entertained and instructed under the influence of men of the right kind? This is a man's job and it needs red-blooded men who will put something of themselves into the undertaking."

Nearly 600 members of twelve glee clubs sang together at Carnegie Hall, New York city, in the sensational concert which christened the Associated Glee Clubs' campaign. Delegates from forty-two clubs met in the inaugural convention to bring about a greater "extension of fine chorus singing among the men and boys of America." The organization is ultimately to be national in scope, with headquarters at 62 West 45th street, New York city. The district or "department" to be first developed is that between Maine, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Travel and Resorts

Describes Trip Through Denver Mountain Parks

Among the most beautiful scenery to be found in the entire state of Colorado is that of the Denver mountain parks The parks are owned by the city of Denver and comprise more than 3 00 acres thirty miles from the city limits The drive to and from the parks is one of the many wonderful experiences of a trip through the parks

That readers of the Lincoln Star may visualize such a journey A B Dillman general manager of Troutdole in the Pines has written a word picture of the trip It follows in full

BY A B DILLMAN

At this season of the year every one is planning an outing and believing that it will be helpful to those interested in a vacation in the mountains and also possibly aid them in deciding where to go I will tell something about the beauties of Colorado

It would take days or perhaps weeks to tell you all about the beautiful scenery and the wonderful thrills you experience in the Colorado Rockies so I will not attempt to cover everything but if you will just bear with me a few moments I will endeavor to picture for you one of the most beautiful and interesting trips that I know of in Colorado

Parks Owned By City

The Denver mountain parks are owned by the city of Denver and consist of some 3 728 acres with elevations of from 7 000 to 10 000 feet and are located just thirty miles from the corporate limits of the city of Denver The roads all through these parks in fact everywhere in the Colorado Rockies are the finest to be found everywhere The city of Denver has spent millions of dollars on the development and improvements of its mountain parks and its boulevards and maintains a tourist bureau at 505 Seventeenth street for the purpose of directing tourists and furnishing information on Colorado s mountain playgrounds Several hundred thousand people traverse the famous circle trip each year The most popular forms of recreation are golf tennis horseback riding hiking fishing swimming motoring and picnicking

Now just imagine yourself one of many parties taking this wonderful trip The first glimpse of the wonders that await us are the mountains in the distance with their snow capped peaks which we see from the Pullman windows

We arrive at the Union station in Denver a magnificent structure and are met by the big red busses These cars carry twelve people in addition to the driver The Denver Cab company operates about 250 of these cars through the mountains We are taken to the Shirley Savoy hotel where we arrange for the scenic trip about the city of Denver after which we again board the red busses Our itinerary is down Seventeenth street by the Brown Palace Albany Kenmark Metropole Auditorium Oxford Argonaut and Adams hotels a few of the best equipped hotels in the country then by the civic center and the United States mint state capitol building and down wonderful Spear boulevard across the mile long viaduct then into the beautiful residential districts with their fine lawns for which Denver is famous

Through City Parks

We have lunch at the Brown Palace hotel and then are taken through the city parks and country clubs We spend the night at the Albany hotel enjoying Sam Dutton s famous hospitality and I might mention here that Sam is the originator of the slogan See America First The next morning we again board the red busses for our trip through the Denver mountain parks and again cross the mile long viaduct on our way to Golden

Golden is a small town situated at the foot of famous Lookout mountain and incidentally was the former capitol of Colorado The Lookout mountain road is a series of seven and a half miles of hairpin curves and thrilling views It is one of the finest feats of engineering in the world and one can hardly imagine the experience of this trip unless they have actually taken it The road is amply wide at all points for two cars to pass and there is very little danger of accidents on account of the dangerous places being protected by walls cables and other safety devices

At Summit of Mountain

On the way up Lookout mountain we pass over the famous Lariat trail and Wildcat point Arriving at the summit of Lookout mountain we are shown through Lahaska Tepee a museum constructed in memory of Col W F Cody and erected just a few steps from Buffalo Bill s tomb The museum is an interesting place as it is full of relics of all kinds which were the property of Buffalo Bill Huge life size paintings of himself and horse and of Indian chiefs with whom he fought and was later friendly decorate the walls of the museum along with his famous saddle guns heads of buffalo deer and other animals This was the famous stamping grounds for Buffalo Bill in the early days and as most every one knows he was buried here at his own request

We will tarry for some time admiring the wonderful view of the valley and Denver in the distance then continue on our way through the parks seeing wonderful camp cities shelter houses and rustic lodges passing Genesee mountain park the largest of any of the ten mountain parks where we see buffalo elk deer mountain goat and other interesting animals The valleys and mountain sides are regular gardens of beautiful mountain flowers and we are told that there are more than a thousand different varities of flowers growing in the mountains among which will be found the Colorado state flower the silver and blue columbine also violets honeysuckles asters daisis mountain laurel Indian paint brush and hundreds of others

Stop at Bergen Park

We will stop awhile at Bergen park which might be called the junction of all the interesting scenic roads through that section of the mountains then are on our way to Troutdale in the Pines and start the drive through this large estate The scenic drive through the estate resembles very much the Lookout mountain road and after winding in and out up and down the mountain sides a magnificent picture stands before us There nestled in a beautiful valley is a large hotel constructed of mountain stone In front is a trout lake beautiful Bear Creek winding in and out through the grounds A number of rustic cottages dot the grounds and we cannot help but notice the extreme ruggedness of the rock formation and the immence pine trees The elevation at this point is [illegible] 200 and the average temperature during the summer months is 65 degrees

After partaking of a splendid trout dinner we spend a delightful evening by the huge fire places in the large lounge room and enjoy immensely a night s rest after the rather strenuous and thrilling trip we have taken during the day

Over Georgetowkn Loop

Arising the next morning we continue the journey The itinerary is to be the famous Georgetown Loop Silver Plume Idaho Springs and Berthoud Pass on the continental divide all of which are unsurpassed for scenic beauty We return late that afternoon through Troutdale in-the-Pines and continue on down Bear Creek canyon A short distance below Troutdale we are shown the municipal golf course and the 60 acre lake site to be completed in a few months just at the edge of Evergreen Evergreen is an interesting and attractive little mountain village and is all that its name implies as the evergreens in the canyon and this vicinity are really very beautiful

Down Bear Canyon

The road down Bear Creek canyon and through Morrison and a part of the Red Rocks is one of the most interesting canyon drives in the peak-to-peak district We then pass through Morrison the south entrance to the Denver mountain parks and are taken over paved roads back to Denver

After stopping at the Metropole hotel for dinner we again board the train for our return Now of course there are many more things that I could say about Colorado and the Denver mountain parks but as this space is limited I trust the readers have gathered from this imaginary trip something of the beauty of Colorado Rockies which are really undescribable

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Steam the vegetables instead of cooking them in water This preserves the color flavor and minerals thereby making them rank higher in food value

To keep butter firm in warm weather without ice put the butter in a bowl set this in a dish of cold water cover bowl with a clean cloth large enough to permit the edges to hang in the water

If you get any small foreign body in the eye you can remove it by blowing the nose

Every speck of that motor oil that you got all over the shirt sleeves can be removed Just soak the spots in kerosene for a little while then wash with moderately warm water and soap in usual manner

If the rug curls up at the corner some good la[illegible] wire firmly sewn [illegible] and the rug that curls up will keep it in place

[illegible] oatmeal will clean lace that is not too badly soiled

To Economize Ribbon

Girls who wear ribbon bands across the top of their hair and bring them down under the hair in the back can economize on ribbon by using a narrow piece of elastic on the under part instead of ribbon It can be attached to the ribbon on either side and will be found very satisfactory in holding the band in place

Packing Away Lamp Shades

If you are replacing your silk lamp shades with more durable summer ones the best way to care for the silk shades is to cover them with a clean cloth or a pillow slip and hang them in the store room A string can be drawn through the wire and the lamp suspended so that underneath its wrappings the fringe and silk hang smooth and free

Former Lincoln Man Brings His Own House With Him On a Visit Here; a Modern Home On Wheels

If the covered wagon could have seen the motor palace which is being driven across country and all around the world by Mr and Mrs M W Trester of Denver it would blush with shame Just nothing but a wagon covered up that what the covered wagon was but the motor palace lives up to its name and has everything that a nice refined apartment housing only the best families could offer

In the first place the motor palace is a thing of art mehcanical art and is the idea of its owner who spent a whole year thinking out the details of the car and putting it together

Mr and Mrs Trester arrived in Lincoln Friday and are staying over friends After that who knows they will go whereever their fancy guides them It is no hardship to travel as they do with electric lights hot air for heat hot and cold water shower bath and everything that one could want in the way of traveling comfort

Mr Trester is a native of Nebraska and some forty years ago lived with his parents Captain and Mrs Albert F Trester who homesteaded on a place about fourteen miles south of Lincoln When Mr Trester was about twelve years old he moved with his parents to Kansas and later to Denver Colorado He calls Denver his home now

This is the first time Mr Trester has visited Lincoln since he left it forty years ago He had plenty of praise for the city It is a beautiful place and so clean It is hard to find a city which does have such an air of cleanliness as we have noticed here he said

There is no particular reason why these two travelers should be traveling Unlike the most of roamer they are not out for their health or any worldly gain they are just out for a good time and they are having it

The car weighs four and one half tons The interior of the car is battleship grey and is made of heavy sheet metal The exterior is painted a light blue and together the motor palace is quite an attractive affair

The inside of the car is large and roomy During the day and between meals it gives the effect of a large living room with mirrors along the sides and the eight large windows shaded and curtained in silk Everything is packed conveniently in small space and everything is in its place

There are cabinets in the car that contain provisions and tableware packed in such a way that there is not the slightest bit of a rattle There are tanks for water and gasoline neatly stowed away where they are out of sight Compartments under the floor cover the entire equipment

A built in bed is at the rear of the car and under the bed is the chest of drawers a refrigerator system and a kitchen cabinet

Live in Car Three Years

For three years Mr and Mrs Trester have enjoyed the comforts of this motor palace and during the three years they have seen every nook and corner of the United States Canada Alaska Panama and other places

And the strange thing or the most remarkable thing about the three years' travel is that never have the travelers run into a storm

I always go by the almanic Mr Trester said I never travel without one This way I can tell whether I am going to hit a storm or not that is I can tell in most any place but Nebraska

Nebraska according to Mr Trester is about the most temperamental state in the union when it comes to weather One day it is warm and the next day the Tresters had to turn on the hot air

So far I have always managed to just get into a town before a storm and I always stay there until it is over whether it be snow or rain or wind

On a little flat top desk covered with plate glass just by the drivers seat is a road map which tells everything that Mr Trester wants to know

He will have to change the map though some of these days for with Mrs Trester and the motor palace he is going to Italy He isn t so sure about the road maps in Italy and doesn t know whether they speak English or not but he is willing to take a chance

The idea of the whole trip from the Tresters point of view is to see the world and have some fun as they see it They think they have seen the best part of the world now having made a pretty thorough exploration of the States and are willing to devote a little time to the rest of the universe

While in the custody of the Louvre museum the gems were insured for 8 000 000 francs It required an act of parliament to authorize their sale The proceeds will be divided into three equal parts and turned over to the state museums The Thiers foundation and the Dosne asylum the foundation and the asylum both endowed by Thiers bequests, have lately been in straightened circumstances owing to the decreased value of the franc

Vary Use of Materials

No longer is there any hard and fast rule as to the use of materials Fashion seizes upon anything that suits her fancy and with unbelievable adroitness adapts the fabric to her needs On one hand she uses velvets and satins for bathing suits while on the other chintzes and linens formerly reserved for the sole purpose of being made into hangings and slip covers now fashion the most engaging costumes

The little short coat of chintz either quilted or embroidered in black silk is one of the most successful models of the summer while one of the most famous designers in Paris has created an evening frock of cretonne which has the design outlined in silver thread and crystal beads

Cretonne bathing suits hold their own and are given a novel touch by the addition of wide belts of suede or leather in a color that matches the dominant shade of the pattern

Recently a specialty shop gave a most conspicuous position to a motor coat made of hand blocked linene with a deep cream ground and motifs in brilliant shades of red and blue The collar is faced with plain cream colored linen and the edges are blanket stitched in red and blue wool

A small comfortable hat or leghorn is trimmed with motifs cut out and appliqued with wool

As evidence to establish age and proof of citizenship and descent in order to vote

As evidence to establish the right of admission to the professions and to many public offices

As evidence of legal age to marry

As evidence to prove the claims of widows and orphans under the widows and orphans pension law

All these facts are supposed to be reported by the physician or other person assisting at the birth The record is always available in the vital statistics division of the state health department which also collects and compiles information regarding deaths marriage and divorce

In 1923 there were 8[illegible]9 certificates of birth death marriage and divorce issued freeof charge by this office to persons applying for the information During the first five months this year 341 such certificates were furnished Many of these were helpful to the people who got them in securing pensions passports and inheritances

Birth certicates were sent in 1923 to the mothers of 26 126 babies These come in very nicely when traveling as evidence of the child s right to be carried free or on a half fare ticket They are valuable also in securing children s admission to school and in obtaining employment [illegible] In later life the child can always rely upon the record to establish his or her identity and age [illegible] that may arise

Describes Trip Through Denver Mountain Parks

Among the most beautiful scenery to be found in the entire state of Colorado is that of the Denver mountain parks. The parks are owned by the city of Denver and comprise more than 3,700 acres, thirty miles from the city limits. The drive to and from the parks is one of the many wonderful experiences of a trip through the parks.

That readers of the Lincoln Star may visualize such a journey A. B. Dillman, general manager of Troutdole in the Pines has written a word picture of the trip. It follows in full.

BY A. B. DILLMAN.

At this season of the year every one is planning an outing and believing that it will be helpful to those interested in a vacation in the mountains and also possibly aid them in deciding where to go, I will tell something about the beauties of Colorado.

It would take days or perhaps weeks to tell you all about the beautiful scenery and the wonderful thrills you experience in the Colorado Rockies, so I will not attempt to cover everything, but if you will just bear with me a few moments I will endeavor to picture for you one of the most beautiful and interesting trips that I know of in Colorado.

Parks Owned By City.

The Denver mountain parks are owned by the city of Denver, and consist of some 3,728 acres, with elevations of from 7,000 to 10,000 feet and are located just thirty miles from the corporate limits of the city of Denver. The roads all through these parks, in fact everywhere in the Colorado Rockies, are the finest to be found everywhere. The city of Denver has spent millions of dollars on the development and improvements of its mountain parks and its boulevards, and maintains a tourist bureau at 505 Seventeenth street for the purpose of directing tourists and furnishing information on Colorado's mountain playgrounds. Several hundred thousand people traverse the famous circle trip each year. The most popular forms of recreation are golf, tennis, horseback riding, hiking, fishing, swimming, motoring and picnicking.

Now just imagine yourself one of many parties taking this wonderful trip. The first glimpse of the wonders that await us are, the mountains in the distance with their snow capped peaks which we see from the Pullman windows.

We arrive at the Union station in Denver, a magnificent structure and are met by the big red busses. These cars carry twelve people in addition to the driver. The Denver Cab company operates about 250 of these cars through the mountains. We are taken to the Shirley-Savoy hotel where we arrange for the scenic trip about the city of Denver, after which we again board the red busses. Our itinerary is down Seventeenth street by the Brown Palace, Albany, Kenmark, Metropole, Auditorium, Oxford, Argonaut and Adams hotels, a few of the best equipped hotels in the country; then by the civic center and the United States mint, state capitol building and down wonderful Spear boulevard, across the mile long viaduct then into the beautiful residential districts, with their fine lawns for which Denver is famous.

Through City Parks.

We have lunch at the Brown Palace hotel and then are taken through the city parks and country clubs. We spend the night at the Albany hotel, enjoying Sam Dutton's famous hospitality and I might mention here that Sam is the originator of the slogan, "See America First." The next morning we again board the red busses for our trip through the Denver mountain parks and again cross the mile long viaduct on our way to Golden.

Golden is a small town situated at the foot of famous Lookout mountain, and incidentally was the former capitol of Colorado. The Lookout mountain road is a series of seven and a half miles of hairpin curves and thrilling views. It is one of the finest feats of engineering in the world, and one can hardly imagine the experience of this trip unless they have actually taken it. The road is amply wide at all points for two cars to pass and there is very little danger of accidents on account of thed angerous places being protected by walls, cables and other safety devices.

At Summit of Mountain.

On the way up Lookout mountain we pass ove rthe famous Lariat trail and Wildcat point. Arriving at the summit of Lookout mountain we are shown through Uahaska Tepee, a museum constructed in memory of Col. W. P. Cody and erected just a few steps from Buffalo Bill's tomb. The museum is an interesting place as it is full of relics of all kinds which were the property of Buffalo Bill. Huge life size paintings of himself and horse, and of Indian chiefs with whom he fought and was later friendly, decorate the walls of the museum, along with his famous saddle, guns, heads of buffalo, deer and other animals. This was the famous stamping grounds for Buffalo Bill in the early days, and as most every one knows, he was buried here at his own request.

We will tarry for some time admiring the wonderful view of the valley and Denver in the distance, then continue on our way through the parks seeing wonderful camp cities, shelter houses and rustic lodges, passing Genesee mountain park, the largest of any of the ten mountain parks where we see buffalo, elk, deer, mountain goat and other interesting animals. The valleys and mountain sides are regular gardens of beautiful mountain flowers and we are told that there are more than a thousand different varities of flowers growing in the mountains, among which will be found the Colorado state flower, the silver and blue columbine, also violets, honeysuckles, asters, daisis, mountain laurel, Indian paint brush and hundreds of others.

Stop at Bergen Park.

We will stop awhile at Bergen park, which might be called the junction of all the interesting scenic roads through that section of the mountains, then are on our way to Troutdale-in-the-Pines and start the drive through this large estate. The scenic drive through the estate resembles very much the Lookout mountain road and after winding in and out, up and down the mountain sides, a magnificent picture stands before us. There, nestled in a beautiful valley is a large hotel constructed of mountain stone. In front is a trout lake, beautiful Bear Creek winding in and out through the grounds. A number of rustic cottages dot the grounds and we cannot help but notice the extreme ruggedness of the rock formation and the immence pine trees. The elevation at this point is 7,200 and the average temperature during the summer months is 65 degrees.

After partaking of a splendid trout dinner we spend a delightful evening by the huge fire places in the large lounge room and enjoy immensely a night's rest after the rather strenuous and thrilling trip we have taken during the day.

Over Georgetowkn Loop.

Arising the next morning we continue the journey. The itinerary is to be the famous Georgetown Loop, Silver Plume, Idaho Springs and Berthoud Pass on the continental divide, all of which are unsurpassed for sceneic beauty. We return late that afternoon through Troutdale-in-the-Pines, and continue on down Bear Creek canyon. A short distance below Troutdale we are shown the municipal golf course and the 60-acre lake site to be completed in a few months, just at the edge of Evergreen. Evergreen is an interesting and attractive little mountain village and is all that its name implies, as the evergreens in the canyon and this vicinity are really very beautiful.

Down Bear Canyon.

The road down Bear Creek canyon and through Morrison and a part of the Red Rocks is one of the most interesting canyon drives in the peak-to-peak district. We then pass through Morrison the south entrance to the Denver mountain parks and are taken over paved roads back to Denver.

After stopping at the Metropole hotel for dinner we again board the train for our return. Now, of course there are many more things that I could say about Colorado and the Denver mountain parks, but as this space is limited, I trust the readers have gathered from this imaginary trip something of the beauty of Colorado Rockies, which are really undescribable.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Steam the vegetables instead of cooking them in water. This preserves the color, flavor and minerals, thereby making them rank higher in food value.

To keep butter firm in warm weather without ice put the butter ni a bowl ,set this in a dish of cold water, cover bowl with a clean cloth large enough to permit the edges to hang in the water.

If you get any small foreign body in the eye you can remove it by blowing the nose.

Every speck of that motor oil that you got all over the shirt sleeves can be removed. Just soak the spots in kerosene for a little while, then wash with moderately warm water and soap in usual manner.

If the rug curls up at the corner some good hat wire firmly sewn around the edge that curls up will keep it in place.

Fine oatmeal will clean lace that is not too badly soiled.

To Economize Ribbon.

Girls who wear ribbon bands across the top of their hair and bring them down under the hair in the back can economize on ribbon by using a narrow piece of elastic on the under part instead of ribbon. It can be attached to the ribbon on either side and will be found very satisfactory in holding the band in place.

Packing Away Lamp Shades.

If you are replacing your silk lamp shades with more durable summer ones, the best way to care for the silk shades is to cover them with a clean cloth or a pillow slip and hang them in the store room. A string can be drawn through the wire and the lamp suspended so that underneath its wrappings the fringe and silk hang smooth and free.

Former Lincoln Man Brings His Own House With Him On a Visit Here; a Modern Home On Wheels

If the covered wagon could have seen the motor palace which is being driven across country and all around the world by Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Trester of Denver it would blush with shame. Just nothing but a wagon covered up, that what the covered wagon was, but the motor palace lives up to its name, and has everything that a nice, refined apartment, housing only the best families, could offer.

In the first place, the motor palace is a thing of art, mehcanical art, and is the idea of its owner, who spent a whole year thinking out the details of the car, and putting it together.

Mr. anr Mrs. Trester arrived in Lincoln Friday and are staying over friends. After that who knows, they will go whereever their fancy guides them. It is no hardship to travel as they do, with electric lights, hot air for heat, not and cold water, shower bath and everything that one could want in the way of traveling comfort.

Mr. Trester is a native of Nebraska and some forty years ago lived with his parents, Captain and Mrs. Albert E. Trester who homesteaded on a place about fourteen miles south of Lincoln. When Mr. Trester was about twelve years old he moved with his parents to Kansas and later to Denver, Colorado. He calls Denver his home now.

This is the first time Mr. Trester has visited Lincoln since he left it forty years ago. He had plenty of praise for the city. "It is a beautiful place and so clean. It is hard to find a city which does have such an air of cleanliness as we have noticed here," he said

There is no particular reason why these two travelers should be traveling. Unlike the most of roamers they are not out for their health or any worldly gain, they are just out for a good time, and they are having it.

The car weighs four and one-half tons. The interior of the car is battleship grey and is made of heavy sheet metal. The exterior is painted a light blue, and altogether the motor palace is quite an attractive affair.

The inside of the car is large and roomy. During the day and between meals, it gives the effect of a large living room with mirrors along the sides, and the eight large windows shaded and curtained in silk. Everything is packed conveniently in small space and everything is in its place.

There are cabinets in the car that contain provisions and tableware packed in such a way that there is not the slightest bit of a rattle. There are tanks for water and gasoline neatly stowed away where they are out of sight. Compartments under the floor cover the entire equipment.

A built-in bed is at the rear of the car, and under the bed is the chest of drawers, a refrigerator system and a kitchen cabinet.

Live in Car Three Years.

For three years Mr. and Mrs. Trester have enjoyed the comforts of this motor palace, and during the three years they have seen every nook and corner of the United States, Canada, Alaska, Panama and other places.

And the strange thing, or the most remarkable thing about the three years' travel is that never have the travelers run into a storm."

"I always go by the almanic," Mr. Trester said. "I never travel without one. This way I can tell whether I am going to hit a storm or not, that is, I can tell in most any place but Nebraska."

Nebraska, according to Mr. Trester is about the most temperamental state in the union when it comes to weather. One day it is warm, and the next day the Tresters had to turn on the hot air.

"So far I have always managed to just get into a town before a storm, and I always stay there until it is over, whether it be snow or rain or wind."

On a little flat top desk covered with plate glass just by the drivers' seat, is a road map which tells everything that Mr. Trester wants to know.

He will have to change the map, though, some of these days, for with Mrs. Trester and the motor palace he is going to Italy. He isn't so sure about the road maps in Italy and doesn't know whether they speak English or not, but he is willing to take a chance.

The idea of the whole trip from the Tresters' point of view is to see the world and have some fun as they see it. They think they have seen the best part of the world now, having made a pretty thorough exploration of the States, and are willing to devote a little time to the rest of the universe.

Sale of Famous Pearls.

PARIS.—The pearls of Mme. Thiers, bequeathed to the Louvre Museum nearly 50 years ago today were sold at auction for the sum of 11,280,000 francs. Mme. Thiers, whose husband, Louis Adolphe Thiers, was a great statesman and former premier of France originally purchased the pearls one by one at the same jewelry shop whose books still show that they cost her 250,000 francs.

While in the custody of the Louvre museum the gems were insured for 8,000,000 francs. It required an act of parliament to authorize their sale. The proceeds will be divided into three equal parts and turned over to the state museums. The Thiers, foundation and the Dosne asylum, the foundation and the asylum, both endowed by Thiers bequests, have lately been in straightened circumstances owing to the decreased value of the franc.

Mme. Thiers was Mlle Dosne previous to her marriage to M. Thiers

Miss Grace Stuff who has been attending the Alpha Chi Omega convention in Swampscott, Mass., during the past week will return to Lincoln, Monday, June 30.

Vary Use of Materials.

No longer is there any hard and fast rule as to the use of materials. Fashion seizes upon anything that suits her fancy and with unbelievable adroitness adapts the fabric to her needs. On one hand she uses velvets and satins for bathing suits, while on the other chintzes and linens, formerly reserved for the sole purpose of being made into hangings and slip covers, now fashion the most engaging costumes.

The little short coat of chintz either quilted or embroidered in black silk is one of the most successful models of the summer, while one of the most famous designers in Paris has created an evening frock of cretonne which has the design outlined in silver thread and crystal beads.

Cretonne bathing suits hold their own and are given a novel touch by the addition of wide belts of suede or leather in a color that matches the dominant shade of the pattern.

Recently a specialty shop gave a most conspicuous position to a motor coat made of hand-blocked linene with a deep cream ground and motifs in brilliant shades of red and blue. The collar is faced with plain cream colored linen and the edges are blanket stitched in red and blue wool.

A small, comfortable hat or leghorn is trimmed with motifs cut out and appliqued with wool.

TO GIVE BOYS AND GIRLS FREE TRIPS

Rock Island Lines to Make Awards For Excellence in Farm Work.

Prize Winners to Be Selected By College Authorities and Club Officials.

With the view of increasing interest in the betterment of agriculture in the middlewest, a plan has been worked out by L. M. Allen, vice president and passenger traffic manager, Rock Island lines, and G. L. Noble, secretary, national committee on boys' and girls' club work, Chicago, whereby the Rock Island will donate the cost of transportation to Chicago from the middle west, of sixty-seven representatives of Farm Boys' and Girls' clubs, who will attend the third national Farm Boys' and Girls' congress to be held in Chicago next December.

The selection of the boys and girls to whom will be awarded the prizes of trips to Chicago, will be made under the supervision of the state agricultural colleges and th ecounty agricultural agents in the states traversed by the railroad. The boy and girl winners will be chosen by the agricultural colleges on the basis of the best showing made by the members of the Farm Boys' and Girls' club in agricultural work and in home economics. This work includes the raising of various farm crops, live stock, poultry, vegetables, home canning, home cooking etc. The Rock Island last year offered similar prices. The boys and girls who made the trip last year, however, will not be eligible this year.

Following is the apportionment of the prizes for this year to Boys' and Girls' clubs in the counties through which the Rock Island lines operate:

Iowa, 20; Kansas, 12; Oklahoma, 8; Texas, 6; Nebraska, 4; Illinois, 4; Missouri, 3; Minnesota, 3; Colorado, 3; South Dakota, 2; New Mexico, 2.

The highest scoring counties in the above territory are to be selected on the basis of the enrollment of farm boys and girls in clubs in good standing at the end of the season and those doing the highest quality of work applicable to the greatest agricultural needs ofthe country. "The decision as to the winners shall be made by the director of extension, the state club leader, and a third official of the agricultural college."

The plan provides that the prizes are to be awarded equally between boy and girl club members. The trips to the National Club congress in Chicago are to be taken over the Rock Island lines. Each winner of these trips will be expected to write a story about the trip and send it to the state club leader who will forward it to the office of the national committee on farm boys' and girls' club work, 58 East Washington St., Chicago, Ill., not later than January 15, 1925, and a copy thereof to be furnished the Rock Island railroad.

There are more than 9,000 Boys' and Girls' clubs now organized in Rock Island railroad territry, with a total membership of approximately 250,000.

URGE REPORTING BIRTHS TO STATE

Vital Statistics Office Gives Reasons Why Records Should Be Made.

May Be Used As Important Evidence In Instances Arising During Life.

Thirteen reasons why the birth of every child in Nebraska should be reported to the state vital statictics office at Lincoln, for permanent registration, are set forth on the reverse side of blank birth certificates furnished by that agency. Theyare as follows:

As evidence to prove the legitimacy of heirs.

As proof of age to determine the validity of a contract entered into by an alleged minor.

As evidence to establish age and proof of citizenship and descent in order to vote:

As evidence to establish the right of admission to the professions and to many public offices.

As evidence of legal age to marry.

As evidence to prove the claims of widows and orphans under the widows' and orphans' pension law.

As evidence in the administration of estates, the settlement o finsurance and pensions.

As evidence to prove the irresponsibility of children under legal age for crime and misdemeanor, and various other matters in the criminal code.

As evidence in the enforcement of law relating to education and to child labor.

As proof of citizenship in order to obtain a passport.

As evidence in the claim for exemption or the right to jury and military service.

The certificate, when filled out and sent in, shows the child's sex, parentage, race or color, place of birth, name of attending physician, number of children previously born in same family, and data pertaining to the parents.

All these facts are supposed to be reported by the physician or other person assisting at the birth. The record is always available in the vital statistics division of the state health department, which also collects and compiles information regarding deaths, marriage and divorce.

In 1923, there were 829 certificates of birth, death, marriage and divorce issued freeof charge by this office to persons applying for the information. During the first five months this year, 341 such certificates were furnished. Many of these were helpful to the people who got them, in securing pensions, passports, and inheritances.

Birth certicates were sent in 1923 to the mothers of 26,126 babies. These come in very nicely when traveling, as evidence of the child's right to be carried free or on a half fare ticket. They are valuable also in securing children's admission to school, and in obtaining employment permits when they reach the legal age. In later life, the child can always rely upon the record to establish his or her identity and age in any situation that may arise.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—May I have a minute of your time to ask some questions. Please tell me the height, weight, color of hair and eyes, to whom married, if so, and the addresses of Joseph Schildkraut, Conrad Nagel, Rod La Rocque and Colleen Moore.

Who played opopsite Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs?" Can you give me the cast for "Everywoman?" Could you tell me some of the pictures in which Conrad Nagel has played?

And what are the right pronunciations for Conrad Nagel's name, Colleen Moore, Rod La Rocque and Joseph Schildkraut?

I wrote to Bebe Daniels and received her picture some time ago. It was very pretty. And about a month ago I wrote to a number of stars and just this morning I received Marion Davies' picture I dinn't send any quarter, but I enclosed a two cent stamp in with the letter and received an eight inch by ten inch picture. I am surely delighted with it, too. Well, if you have any of these I have mentioned in my letter, please send me one.—MARY-LIPS.

Mr. Schildkraut is twenty-eight and married. Address him in care of Norma Talmadge Productions, Hollywood, Calif He has dark hair and eyes, weighs 165 pounds and is five feet eleven inches tall. Mr. Schildkraut is said to be the handsomest man in Europe. He became popular on the American stage when he made his debut in the leading role of "Liliom," Pronounce his name as though 1 twere spelled "Sk," and with the "I" short.

Mr. Nagel is married to Ruth Helms. He was born in 1896 with blond hair and blue eyes. He's six feet tall and weighs 165. Address him at 1846 Cherokee Ave, Los Angeles. His name is pronounced with the "A" long and the "G" hard.

Rod La Rocque is still single. He's also six feet tall and has dark hair and eyes He weighs ten pounds more than Conrad and is about the same age. Address him in care of the Los Angeles Athletic club. Pronounce his last name as though it were spelled "Roke"

Colleen is married to Emmett McCormick. She has dark hair and eyes and is five feet three inches tall. She weighs 110 and is twenty-three There is only one way to pronounce her name,—the usual way for that spelling. Address her in care of First Naitonal Pictures, Hollywood, Calif.

Mahlon Hamilton played the role of "Jarvis Pendleton" opposite Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs"

The cast for "Everywoman" is: "Everywoman," Violet Heming; "Youth," Clara Horton; "Beauty," Wanda Hawley; "Modesty," Margaret Loomis; "Conscience," Mildred Reardon; "Truth," Edythe Chapman; "Vice," Bebe Daniels, "Wealth," Theodore Roberts; "Love," Monte Blue; "Passion," Irving Cummings, "Nobody," James Neill; "Flattery," Raymond Hatton; "Lord Witless," Lucien Littlefield; "Stuff," Jay Dwiggins. "Bluff," Noah Beery, "Puff," Tully Marshall; "Age," Robert Brower; "Time," Charles Ogle; "Dissipation," Fred Huntley; "Auctioneer," Clarence Geldart.

Conrad Nagel has made numerous pictures during his career. He made his screen debut in "Little Woman," and has since played in "The Lost Romance," "Sacred and Profane Love," "What Every Woman Knows" "Mid-summer Madness," and so on Among his more recent films are "Blood and Gold," "Three Weeks," "The Rendezvous," and "Name the Man."

I have no pictures of the stars you named, so you will have to write directly to them for their photographs. You were fortunate in getting nice pictures from Bebe and Marion.

To the Moving Picture Editor of The Star. I have just returned rom seeing "The Enchanted Cottage" at the Rialto, and while indignation is still seething within me, I want to voice a protest against the reckless and inartistic cutting of some of our finest pictures. "The Enchanted Cottage" is just as enchanting as it's name and Lincoln audiences are surely being cheated when the manager feels it necessary to take his scissors in hand and ruthlessly cut out a long strip of the most compelling part of the picture. We see the husband and wife starting down the stairway, apprehensively, not quite sure how they will appear to the waiting family below, then instead, of seeing them as they appear to the family, we are lef tgasping for breath, as we realize that the climax, the moment toward which the entire picture has been moving, has been entirely wiped out and the hero and heroine are clasped in a final embrace.

I have occasionally seen a picture in some other city and later—usually vvery much later—having seen the same thing here, have never failed to observe the wholesale cutting out of some of the best parts. A little less jazz on the stage and a little more continuity in the pictures would please some of us movie fans exceedingly—ONE OF THE FANS.

I didn't happen to see "The Enchanting Cottage" at the Rialto, but I did see it in its entirety at another screening, and as I recall the picture I can see no excuse for cutting Mr Barthelmess and Miss McAvoy did some of their best work in the final scenes when they waited so expectantly for the looks of approval and joy on the faces of their audience over their "miracle." Their dismay was so apparent when they realized that to their family they weer still "ugly ducklings" and that the "miracle" was within themselves that you almost felt like weeping for them.

Dear Movie Editor—You probably think I've forgotten you, but Oh, No! I have been reading your column all the time I have moved to a different town, but that doesn't make any difference, does it? I'm closer to you now.

I'll begin by asking questions as all the rest generally do. Give me the age of Claire Windsor, Blanche Sweet, Mildred Davis Pola Negri, Dorothy Gish, Norma Talmadge and Nita Naldi.

When was Harold Lloyd married? Don't think I'm behind times. I only forgot the date

Give me the latest address of Anita Stewart Nita Naldi, Mildred Davis, Eileen Percy, Dorothy Dalton, Jacqueline Logan and Lloyd Hughes please

Please send me some pictures of any stars. I better close, but always remaining,—"YOUNG BETTY, Beatrice, Neb

I almost wrote Pawnee City instead of Beatrice You see I have not forgotten you, either. I had been wondering what had become of you that you had neglected me for so long I'm glad to hear from you again and welcome you back to the fold

Claire Windsor was born in 1897, and Blanche Sweet is four years her senior Mildred is twenty-three and Pola confesses to having passed her twenty-sixth birthday Dorothy Gish is also twenty-six and Norma Talmadge is twenty-seven. Nita Naldi was born in 1899.

I can't give you the exact date of Harold's wedding anniversary but it was in March or April, and they were married in 1923

Address Anita Stewart in care of Cosmopolitan, New York City. Nita Naldi will receive letters sent in care of Famous Players-Lasky, Hollywood, Calif. Mildred Davis would get her mail if you sent it in care of Hal E. Roach studio, Culver City, Calif, where Harold has a box. Mildred is too busy learning the intricacies of first baths for infants to make any pictures at present. Dorothy Dalton is honeymooning but a letter sent to her in care of Famous Players-Lasky, Hollywood, Calif, would be forwarded I'm sure Jacqueline Logan is sojourning at the Ince studio, Culver City, Calif, at the present writing. You could write to Lloyd at 955 Micheltorena St, Los Angeles, Calif. I'm sorry that I don't have the pictures to send you, but you will receive some, I'm confident, if you will write to the stare direct.

Dear Movie Editor—It has been a long time since I have written to you, but I have a few more questions to ask if you don't mind my asking them How many reels was Johnny Hines in "Conductor 1492," How old is he? What is Rin Tin's next picture after "Where the North Begins?"

How many reels was the story. "Red Lights?" Who were the stars that played in it. Where was it made

Did Charles Jones play in "The Fast Mail" or ::The Fast Express?" How many reels was it?

Is Shirley Mason, Viola Dana's sister? What is Viola's and Shirley's next pictures?

What is Marie Prevost's latest picture? How old is she? Married or single.—A MOVIE FAN, Aurora, Neb.

This is a real reunion day, isn't it, so many old fans returning. I've missed you, too, and am glad to hear from you again

Johnny Hines was born July 25, 1895 There were five reels in "Conductor 1492" Rin Tin Tin neglected to give me the title of his most recent picture. He will no doubt bark it soon however.

The stars of "Red Lights" were Johnny Walker, Marie Prevost, Raymony Griffith, Alice Lake, Jean Hersholt, Frank Elliot and Dagmar Godowsky. It was filmed at the Goldwyn studio, Culver City, Calif, and was cut to about seven reels

Charles Jones played in "The Fast Mail," and William Duncan was the star of "The Fast Express"

Yes, Jack Hoxie had the role of "Pep" Pepper in "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande." It was about five reels

Shirley Mason and Viola are sisters There's another sister, too, Edna Flugrath Viola is playing opposite Glenn Hunter in the film version of "Merton of the Movies" Shirley recently released "The Strange Woman"

Marie Prevost's latest release is "How to Educate a Wife" She is twenty-six, and has been married once. Rumor has it that she is contemplating the step again with Kenneth Harlan.

Dear Movie Editor—As others have brought their questons to you, I wish to bring mine to you, also. First let me say I truly enjoy your Mail and read it every Sunday. Do you know the necessary requirements to be a movie actor? Whom should I wirte to? Someone said there were requirements of certain measurements of your face. Do you know what they are? Yours truly—BLUE EYES, Bismarck, Mo.

I believe you must really enjoy the page if you read it every Sunday, and I'm glad you do. It gives me a lot of encouragement to know that it is read in Missouri.

When we look at the multitude of faces we see on the screen, it would seem that there were no special requirements at all, but of course there are One of the first things they do when an actor applies or a position is to make a screen test of his face, because that is very essential. Some of the best known stage stars could never make a success on the screen because they do nt photograph well. Of course, "make-up" hides a multitude of sins, but dark eyes and light hair are given the preference from the cameraman's point of view Teeth that are regular, small hands and feet and a figure that is neither too large no too small are among the assets in motion picture work The players look larger on the screen than they are in reality, so a plump flapper could never "flap" before the camera Even Nita Naldi has had to begin to count the calories to hold her place among the vamps.

There are so many experienced "extras" in Hollywood that it's a very difficult proposition for an inexperienced person to get work even as an extra" If you have had any experienc in dancing, swimming, driving, and all forms of athletics, that would add greatly to your assets, and if you have only a pretty face your case is hopeless, because there are thousands of girls wth beauty as their only qualification for the screen who have gone to Hollywood and returned home bitterly disappointed.

Write to the Casting Director, Fox Film Corp., Hollywood, Calif; Casting Director, Goldwyn Studios, Culver City, Calif; Casting Director, Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Los Angeles, Calif., ad enclose your photograph If you have personality and character in your face, or happen to be a particular type that they are searching for, you might hear from him, but don't be disappointed if you do not, because they get a lot of letters every day from girls who are ambitious to become movie stars.

Dear Movie Editor—I couldn't stay away for a very long while, because I'm too full of questions However, I'll not keep you very long today My friend and I have been discussing Joseph Schildkraut, and wish you would please tell us if he isn't the young man that appeared in Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm?" I said he was, but my friend doesn't think so, and yet she can't tell me who it was if it wasn't him. I know Monte Blue had an important role in the picture, but I'm referring to the man who took the part of the chevalier. Wasn't that Schildkraut? I'll thank you now in advance, and not keep you any longer today—Sincerely your fan,—PEACHIE.

Yes, you are correct. Joseph Schildkraut had the role of "Chevalier de Vaudrey" in "Orphans of the Storm." Mr. Blue was "Danton" in the picture.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—May I have a minute of your time to ask some questions. Please tell me the height, weight, color of hair and eyes, to whom married, if so, and the addresses of Joseph Schildkraut, Conrad Nagel, Rod La Rocque and Colleen Moore.

Who played opopsite Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs?" Can you give me the cast for "Everywoman?" Could you tell me some of the pictures in which Conrad Nagel has played?

And what are the right pronunciations for Conrad Nagel's name, Colleen Moore, Rod La Rocque and Joseph Schildkraut?

I wrote to Bebe Daniels and received her picture some time ago. It was very pretty. And about a month ago I wrote to a number of stars and just this morning I received Marion Davies' picture. I dinn't send any quarter, but I enclosed a two cent stamp in with the letter and received an eight inch by ten inch picture. I am surely delighted with it, too. Well, if you have any of these I have mentioned in my letter, please send me one.—MARY-LIPS.

Mr. Schildkraut is twenty-eight and married. Address him in care of Norma Talmadge Productions, Hollywood, Calif. He has dark hair and eyes, weighs 165 pounds and is five feet eleven inches tall. Mr. Schildkraut is said to be the handsomest man in Europe. He became popular on the American stage when he made his debut in the leading role of "Liliom." Pronounce his name as though i twere spelled "Sk," and with the "I" short.

Mr. Nagel is married to Ruth Helms. He was born in 1896 with blond hair and blue eyes. He's six feet tall and weighs 165. Address him at 1846 Cherokee Ave., Los Angeles. His name is pronounced with the "A" long and the "G" hard.

Rod La Rocque is still single. He's also six feet tall and has dark hair and eyes. He weighs ten pounds more than Conrad and is about the same age. Address him in care of the Los Angeles Athletic club. Pronounce his last name as though it were spelled "Roke."

Colleen is married to Emmett McCormick. She has dark hair and eyes and is five feet three inches tall. She weighs 110 and is twenty-three. There is only one way to pronounce her name,—the usual way for that spelling. Address her in care of First Naltonal Pictures, Hollywood, Calif.

Mahlon Hamilton played the role of "Jarvis Pendleton" opposite Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs."

The cast for "Everywoman" is: "Everywoman," Violet Heming; "Youth," Clara Horton; "Beauty," Wanda Hawley; "Modesty," Margaret Loomis; "Conscience," Mildred Reardon; "Truth," Edythe Chapman; "Vice," Bebe Daniels; "Wealth," Theodore Roberts; "Love," Monte Blue; "Passion," Irving Cummings; "Nobody," James Neill; "Flattery," Raymond Hatton; "Lord Witless," Lucien Littlefield; "Stuff," Jay Dwiggins: "Bluff," Noah Beery; "Puff," Tully Marshall: "Age," Robert Brower; "Time," Charles Ogle; "Dissipation," Fred Huntley; "Auctioneer," Clarence Geldart.

Conrad Nagel has made numerous pictures during his career. He made his screen debut in "Little Woman," and has since played in "The Lost Romance," "Sacred and Profane Love," "What Every Woman Knows" "Mid-summer Madness," and so on. Among his more recent films are "Blood and Gold," "Three Weeks," "The Rendezvous," and "Name the Man."

I have no pictures of the stars you named, so you will have to write directly to them for their photographs. You were fortunate in getting nice pictures from Bebe and Marion.

To the Moving Picture Editor of The Star: I have just returned rom seeing "The Enchanted Cottage" at the Rialto, and while indignation is still seething within me, I want to voice a protest against the reckless and inartistic cutting of some of our finest pictures. "The Enchanted Cottage" is just as enchanting as it's name and Lincoln audiences are surely being cheated when the manager feels it necessary to take his scissors in hand and ruthlessly cut out a long strip of the most compelling part of the picture. We see the husband and wife starting down the stairway, apprehensively, not quite sure how they will appear to the waiting family below, then instead, of seeing them as they appear to the family, we are lef tgasping for breath, as we realize that the climax, the moment toward which the entire picture has been moving, has been entirely wiped out and the hero and heroine are clasped in a final embrace.

I have occasionally seen a picture in some other city and later—usually vvery much later—having seen the same thing here, have never failed to observe the wholesale cutting out of some of the best parts. A little less jazz on the stage and a little more continuity in the pictures would please some of us movie fans exceedingly.—ONE OF THE FANS.

I didn't happen to see "The Enchanting Cottage" at the Rialto, but I did see it in its entirety at another screening, and as I recall the picture I can see no excuse for cutting. Mr. Barthelmess and Miss McAvoy did some of their best work in the final scenes when they waited so expectantly for the looks of approval and joy on the faces of their audience over their "miracle." Their dismay was so apparent when they realized that to their family they weer still "ugly ducklings" and that the "miracle" was within themselves that you almost felt like weeping for them.

Dear Movie Editor—You probably think I've forgotten you, but Oh, No! I have been reading your column all the time. I have moved to a different town, but that doesn't make any difference, does it? I'm closer to you now.

I'll begin by asking questions as all the rest generally do. Give me the age of Claire Windsor, Blanche Sweet, Mildred Davis, Pola Negri, Dorothy Gish, Norma Talmadge and Nita Naldi.

When was Harold Lloyd married? Don't think I'm behind times. I only forgot the date.

Give me the latest address of Anita Stewart. Nita Naldi, Mildred Davis, Eileen Percy, Dorothy Dalton, Jacqueline Logan and Lloyd Hughes please.

Please send me some pictures of any stars. I better close, but always remaining,—"YOUNG BETTY, Beatrice, Neb.

I almost wrote Pawnee City instead of Beatrice. You see I have not forgotten you, either. I had been wondering what had become of you that you had neglected me for so long. I'm glad to hear from you again and welcome you back to the fold.

Claire Windsor was born in 1897, and Blanche Sweet is four years her senior. Mildred is twenty-three and Pola confesses to having passed her twenty-sixth birthday. Dorothy Gish is also twenty-six and Norma Talmadge is twenty-seven. Nita Naldi was born in 1899.

I can't give you the exact date of Harold's wedding anniversary but it was in March or April, and they were married in 1923.

Address Anita Stewart in care of Cosmopolitan, New York City. Nita Naldi will receive letters sent in care of Famous Players-Lasky, Hollywood, Calif. Mildred Davis would get her mail if you sent it in care of Hal E. Roach studio, Culver City, Calif., where Harold has a box. Mildred is too busy learning the intricacies of first baths for infants to make any pictures at present. Dorothy Dalton is honeymooning but a letter sent to her in care of Famous Players-Lasky, Hollywood, Calif., would be forwarded, I'm sure. Jacqueline Logan is sojourning at the Ince studio, Culver City, Calif, at the present writing. You could write to Lloyd at 955 Micheltorena St., Los Angeles, Calif. I'm sorry that I don't have the pictures to send you, but you will receive some, I'm confident, if you will write to the stare direct.

Dear Movie Editor—It has been a long time since I have written to you, but I have a few more questions to ask if you don't mind my asking them. How many reels was Johnny Hines in "Conductor 1492," How old is he? What is Rin Tin's next picture after "Where the North Begins?"

How many reels was the story. "Red Lights?" Who were the stars that played in it. Where was it made

Did Charles Jones play in "The Fast Mail" or ::The Fast Express?" How many reels was it?

Is Shirley Mason, Viola Dana's sister? What is Viola's and Shirley's next pictures?

What is Marie Prevost's latest picture? How old is she? Married or single.—A MOVIE FAN, Aurora, Neb.

This is a real reunion day, isn't it, so many old fans returning. I've missed you, too, and am glad to hear from you again.

Johnny Hines was born July 25, 1895. There were five reels in "Conductor 1492." Rin Tin Tin neglected to give me the title of his most recent picture. He will no doubt bark it soon however.

The stars of "Red Lights" were Johnny Walker, Marie Prevost, Raymony Griffith, Alice Lake, Jean Hersholt, Frank Elliot and Dagmar Godowsky. It was filmed at the Goldwyn studio, Culver City, Calif., and was cut to about seven reels.

Charles Jones played in "The Fast Mail," and William Duncan was the star of "The Fast Express."

Yes, Jack Hoxie had the role of "Pep" Pepper in "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande." It was about five reels.

Shirley Mason and Viola are sisters. There's another sister, too, Edna Flugrath. Viola is playing opposite Glenn Hunter in the film version of "Merton of the Movies." Shirley recently released "The Strange Woman."

Marie Prevost's latest release is "How to Educate a Wife." She is twenty-six, and has been married once. Rumor has it that she is contemplating the step again with Kenneth Harlan.

Dear Movie Editor—As others have brought their questons to you, I wish to bring mine to you, also. First let me say I truly enjoy your Mail and read it every Sunday. Do you know the necessary requirements to be a movie actor? Whom should I wirte to? Someone said there were requirements of certain measurements of your face. Do you know what they are? Yours truly—BLUE EYES, Bismarck, Mo.

I believe you must really enjoy the page if you read it every Sunday, and I'm glad you do. It gives me a lot of encouragement to know that it is read in Missouri.

When we look at the multitude of faces we see on the screen, it would seem that there were no special requirements at all, but of course there are. One of the first things they do when an actor applies or a position is to make a screen test of his face, because that is very essential. Some of the best known stage stars could never make a success on the screen because they do nt photograph well. Of course, "make-up" hides a multitude of sins, but dark eyes and light hair are given the preference from the cameraman's point of view. Teeth that are regular, small hands and feet and a figure that is neither too large no too small are among the assetsin motion picture work. The players look larger on the screen than they are in reality, so a plump flapper could never "flap" before the camera. Even Nita Naldi has had to begin to count the calories to hold her place among the vamps.

There are so many experienced "extras" in Hollywood that it's a very difficult proposition for an inexperienced person to get work even as an extra." If you have had any experienc in dancing, swimming, driving, and all forms of athletics, that would add greatly to your assets, and if you have only a pretty face your case is hopeless, because there are thousands of girls wth beauty as their only qualification for the screen who have gone to Hollywood and returned home bitterly disappointed.

Write to the Casting Director, Fox Film Corp., Hollywood, Calif.; Casting Director, Goldwyn Studios, Culver City, Calif.; Casting Director, Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Los Angeles, Calif., ad enclose your photograph. If you have personality and character in your face, or happen to be a particular type that they are searching for, you might hear from him, but don't be disappointed if you do not, because they get a lot of letters every day from girls who are ambitious to become movie stars.

Dear Movie Editor—I couldn't stay away for a very long while, because I'm too full of questions. However, I'll not keep you very long today. My friend and I have been discussing Joseph Schildkraut, and wish you would please tell us if he isn't the young man that appeared in Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm?" I said he was, but my friend doesn't think so, and yet she can't tell me who it was if it wasn't him. I know Monte Blue had an important role in the picture, but I'm referring to the man who took the part of the chevalier. Wasn't that Schildkraut? I'll thank you now in advance, and not keep you any longer today.—Sincerely your fan,—PEACHIE.

Yes, you are correct. Joseph Schildkraut had the role of "Chevalier de Vaudrey" in "Orphans of the Storm." Mr. Blue was "Danton" in the picture.

HAS A PARTY

David Farquar Patterson was five years old June 22, but his birthday party was held Saturday at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. D. K. Patterson, 1826 South Fourteenth street. Five little playmates with their mothers were guests at the party. A large white cake formed the centerpiece on the table, and place cards and candy baskets in pink and blue were also a part of the decoration. Ice cream was also served.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Lola Morris was seven years old June 17, and celebrated her birthday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morris, 1226 F street.

Nothing But Love.

Dear Minerva: When I was eighteen years old I was desperately in love with a young man. But my parents disapproved of him and I was so influenced by them that I gave him up completely, although I thought my heart was broken. Since that I have never met a man that I cared for in that way, although there have been any number who attracted me in the way of friendship only.

I have worked hard all these years My father suffered severe reverses in a financial way and I supported him and mother the last years of their life. I have always craved the nice things of life but have never had them. And now a man has asked me to marry him, a man who can give me a beautiful home, servants, travel, everything almost, and who is also a man I respect, admire and enjoy. He is five years older than myself, is inclined to be more settled and quiet in his ways than I am, is particular and meticulous about his daily routine where I am inclined to be easy-going and somewhat slam-bangy. But we have been friends several years and he has asked me to be his wife, knowing of our differencees in temperament

I like him very much indeed. But I don't love him. I don't have that desire to stroke his hair, or caress him, or that longing to be with him that I associate with love

But I desire to marry him. Could I do so and make him happy and be happy myself without actual love?

No doubt this question has been put to you many times. I have heard it discussed, I am sure, but it meant nothing to me in an academic way. It is only that it has come home to me that I am deeply concerned over it.

A BUSINESS WOMAN.

A. I consider it exceedingly foolish for a woman to marry for any reason other than love. Moreover I consider it immoral.

Marrying for money, for position, for comforts, for security all sound tempting at the time, no doubt But such marriages are but farces, or tragedies, usually both.

The woman who marries for other than love barters away her birthright for a mess of pottage It never pays. Those who give up their opportunity for love for gold never get happiness in the bargain

The time would come and probably come quickly when you would long for the old self reliance, the clean, crisp, independent business life which you put behind you. The fine house, smart clothes, travel, luxurious car, ease, the smart friends, country club life all would be diverting and entertaining. But the real you that longs for real, deep issues of life would remain dissatisfied, longing for a real mate, for love. The time would come when you would feel that you had indeed lost your soul, and that the purchasing power of money is very limited and the things that give real joy in living are not bought with money. You will become surfeited with the new ease and luxure and daily have to stifle your longing for a real home, companionship, contentment, peace.

The man you respect and admire but do not love will come to weary you and perhaps repel you after you are married to him. You will be forced to endure the caresses for which you have no longing You will be forced to pretend a tenderness which you do not feel and spend your life in the hypocritical pretense of being a devoted, loving wife when you are but a lukewarm friend to the man you married.

There is no happiness in such a life of unreality If you will think of the women, or the men, who have married for other than love, you will realize that there is no real happiness there.

We must have the spiritual things as well as material comforts of life We must have the satisfaction of having fulfilled our destiny in life, the thrill that comes only from right living in order to gain happiness

Problem of All Ages.

Dear Minerva: My husband came home very much shocked the other day; he had heard a young woman swear and he thought it a terrible thing for a woman to do. So it is And it was all the worse because this young woman was a mother.

What I am puzzling my head about though is this. Why do men do things they would condemn their wives for doing if she did the same thing? Why do men expect greater perfection of their wives than they have ever attained to themselves? Why do men lose respect for a woman who stoops to their level and does the same things they do? Why should a man who is not a saint demand that his wife be saintly? Isn't any common old hag good enough for him?

You men who swear every day of your lives, why are you not willing to have your wives and children swear as freely as you do? You who smoke cigarettes why shouldn't your wives do the same thing? You who see no wrong in chewing tobacco. would you be willing to spend as much money for your wife and children, if they chewed tobacco, as you spend on yourself?

I'd particularly like to hear what "Wage" and Plate Roth" would answer to these questions. B

A. Our men folks have been reared with the belief that men may have lower ideals than women and "get away with them." The custom of the double standard is such an ancient one that it is merely instinctive now with man. They do not reason out the theory of the demands they make of women. But they instinctively place woman on a pedestal and demand that she keep her skirts free of the sordidness in which they themselves may wallow at will Man demands the utmost purity in woman and he believes when she violates certain conventions that he holds for her that she will also violate others.

The woman who makes herself conspicuous by her free ignoring of the standards set for her by custom is looked at askance by the men and often believed to be much worse at heart than she really is.

The men have set high standards for the women and the women theretore make an effort to live up to them.

Women for the most part accept men at their own valuation: they do not atempt to dictate to them as to morals or habits. And consequently they accept lower standards from their men than men will accept from the women.

A Complicated Complex.

Dear Minerva: "Worth" must be suffering from some kind of a complex, don't you think? He hands out about the same kind of dope that was handed by Nathan Leopold to the woman reporter. In the interests of scientific research Leopold "explored the unknown" and dabbled his aristocratic hands in human blood Worth says we can't hope to progress if we don't explore the unknown. Columbus won lasting fame that way, 'tis true, but that was exploration of a different sort.

Whenever a sixteen year old girl bobs her hair and tears around on midnight joy-rides and dancing parties her exploration of the unknown is usually cut short by consequences of a most unpleasant nature, and nobody gains anything by her little fling, neither is the cause of science helped. That's the trouble.

When the flappers and flapperettes cut loose from ancient moorings to explore the unknown the sad part of it is that the pay-check they get in the end isn't satisfactory to themselves or anyone else. Out south of the city there is a whole colony of explorers who lost their liberty when they ventured into the unknown.

In the interests of the exploration of the unknown Worth wants to help regulate th affairs of thos who see things differently from what he does by sending them to St. Helena It is generous of him to offer to donate half of his all to help Uncle Sammy establish a reformers' colony, but that would only be the the opening wedge for the establishment of a lot of other colonies, and unless several million public-spirited citizens like Worth offered, similar donations, the money would have to be raised by increasing the taxes of the remaining citizens That would be striking a snag. The people would never consent to stand for more taxation About that time Worth would find out just how popular he was with the masses for having launched the colony idea as a cure-all for national ills. After the purchase of St. Helena for a reformer's colony, we should have to have a free-lovers' colony, an I W. W. colony, a colony for various kinds of "reus," or else government would be in the hands of the worst bunch of tyrants the world ever knew.

If "Worth" was the daddy of half a dozen boys and girls who all "wanted to follow the natural and lawful desires of youth" he would soon change his mind and whistle a different tune. It is a natural desire to want to throw off all parental restraint, but it isn't a lawful desire. What a pass this world would come to if there were no sensible parents to exercise some restraint over the young The girl who killed herself had probably been reading just such a lot of twaddle as Worth spouts, and had come to the conclusion that her parents were tyrannical old fogies or, as Worth says, "half petrified old fossils" because they objected to her doing as she pleased. There wouldn't be half so many young people going wrong if there wasn't so many old meddlesome matties to make them believe they should be honored and looked up to when they disobeyed their parents and ordered their livs as they pleard, with all restraint flung to the winds. The blood of that girl rests upon people like Worth.

Instead of inciting young people to further rebellion we need more sensible folks who teach and preach the virtue of obedience and respect to parents. A PARENT.

A Poor Make-up.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl of seventeen and am in bad with my parents most of the time. And why? Just because I want to be modern and do things as the other girls do. I haven't any desire to be fast or silly and stay out until late hours at night If I did these things they might object with reason. But all they can find to object to is that I dress too old. They raise a storm of protest because I use rouge on my cheeks and you know Minerva I would look like a freak among the girls if I did not When I bobbed my hair they acted as if the world was coming to an end, and last week when I let one of my girl friends shape my eyebrows a little with the tweezers they — well they simply raised cain. Just little things like that and they act as if I was breaking their hearts.

I am their only child and I think they have too much time to think about me. I don't know of any other parents that carry on like they do over just nothing. I wish you would tell them a little about how a girl has to be modern and up-to-date so they won't feel so badly. I know you approve of bobbed hair and such like.

CATHERINE.

A I like bobbed hair but not necessarily the "such like." Bobbed hair makes the girl appear all the more girlish unless she goes in for the mature sort of marcel.

But when it comes to long ear rings and patent leather eye-brows and red paint on the cheeks and a grotesque set of lips painted over the girl's slip of a mouth, then I am saddened indeed and long for the simpler days when girls were content with their faces as they were givn to them and did not attempt to make them into something they are not and should never want to be

I can't blame your parents for being distressed if you make yourself up to resemble an Apache Indian, as so many of the girls do, even if it is what "all the girls do"

It goes without saying that the girl who adorns herself like a dance-hall vamp does not have her mind on her serious studies and improving her mind and body.

You have only a few years in which to get an education, only a few years in which to be young and carefree. I have every sympathy with the little fads and foibles which school girls like to follow, but no sympathy whatever with them when they want to rig themselves up in an exaggerated make-up and extreme clothes They look just plain silly and pitiful. You cheapen yourselves and ruin your complexion, all to make yourself look a veritable fright.

I wouldn't worryandfretif hhh h

I wouldn't worry and fret if I were your mother but I would curtail your spending allowance and your freedom just as long as you insisted on having your own way in the matter of spoiling your natural good looks.

Silk and Beaded Embroidery Sponsored

In addition to the Russian embroidery for street wear, several of the dresses shown in redingote interpretation are embroidered in one shade of ribbonzine that matches the satin foundation of the dress.

The silhouette is straight, for the most part, although the circular line is achieved in a number of models by front knee flounces or circular sides. Suggestions of the tunic are important frequently sponsoring slightly circular lines.

The coat dress occupies a prominent position in this group, especially in models designed for larger women. This mode is also endorsed for youthful types, the majority buttoning down one side.

In one severely tailored frock of tan charminette, square buttons reaching from neck to hem are placed directly in front, suggesting a Directoire origin.

Red Oilcloth Trimming

Red oilcloth is used for trimming on a mole coat applied in a novelty pattern designed on the border.

Animal Appliques

Bloomer frocks for children from 6 to 10 years of age are referred to as "the animal lot," appliques of flying birds, parrots, chickens, cats, fishes, ducks, and geese being some shapes belonging to the animal kingdom that are noted. Flower pots, too, which are really pockets, furnish resting places for flourishing bright-flowered plants. These frocks make a point of pockets and if it should happen that they are not on the skirt of the dress itself, they are sure to be found in the panties beneath, and capacious patch pockets they are. Pleats inverted or cunningly introduced give extra width in the skirts of these dresses and it is said here that buyers are showing a definite appreciation of this feature.

One blue checked frock has an inserted appliqued panel of plain blue protected by inverted pleats. Tunic designs are also included in this group, the bottoms of the tunics being emphasized by scalloped piped edges.

Tapering Sleeve Lines

In both cloth street frocks and semi-formal gowns a tapering sleeve line is sponsored, and gauntlet effects in ornamentation are frequent. In the daytime models, Russian embroideries are a colorful touch of trimming, forming panels down the front, or fine bandings in simulated tapestry design which accent the various dress features.

Metal brocaded faille is one of the striking fabric innovations employed by this house. With the maintenance of conservative simplicity the importance of materials is accented, and a gold design bordering a beaver brown faille gives the rich appearance necessary for semi-formal development.

With the increase in support of velvet for evening wraps, brocades and metal effects are proportionately omitted from the program. Metal cloths, either plain or brocaded, enjoy favor as linings more noticeably than as major mediums, appearing in that service in velvet wraps.

Big Mid-Summer Clearance Sale At Gold & Company

Mid-summer is upon us and with it the marvelous clearance sale of ready-to-wear apparel which is to be presented to the public by Gold and Co., beginning Monday morning. The entire third floor stock of the store is to go at drastic reduction. When Gold and Co., advertise a sale, those who know realize that it is worth while. Look for the details on page three.

Black Velvet Dignified

To return to the velvets, there is one dignified model of black velvet, the wrapped around flap of the skirt and the train both being lined with white and a large white velvet rose catching the drapery at one side of the corsage. Trimming consists in loops of composition jet beads swung from either shoulder, those at one side carrying a little velvet bracelet to fasten around the wrist.

While this tea gown features the bateau neckline, the line that is high at the back with a border of fur, and cut low and square at the front, appears in a blue velvet which combines with flame brocaded chiffon.

Colors In Favor

Aside from the all-black group referred to, representing daytime types of sophisticated bearing, color is accorded favor, showing red well to the fore, with brown, tan, gray and green noted repeatedly.

Ostrich makes its winter appearance on velvet wraps, used in several instances in place of fur. A deep border of white ostrich, the latter ranged in a succession of the plumes ranged vertically, is striking on a black velvet evening wrap.

Cottage Cheese A Summer Dish

Too hot to eat! There is nothing that temps your appetite these hot days unless it is Robert's Dairy Cottage cheese, cool, fresh and clean, put up in small glass jars. Cottage cheese salad makes a delightful repast, or cottage chees combined with fresh vegetables for wonderful sandwiches. There are many ways it can be used that will be conducive to a good appetite. Have the man leave it at your door in the morning. A refund of two cents will be made for the return of the jar.

Variety of Models Shown

A washable silk slip-on is featured at this time in underwear knit with ribbed hip-bands, cuffs and boat neck introducing a contrasting color note.

Brilliance is again the keynote of color choice in these lovely velvet evening things, with red outstanding, and royal blue next in favor. Jade green, long a leader in evening wrap developments, appears to be out of the running, the nearest approach to this tone being turquoise or robin's egg blue sponsored for youthful wearers.

Long sleeves in semi-formal gowns and the endorsement of the three-piece costume are two features of outstanding interest in the fall collection. The straight lines which prevail are frequently diversified by tunic and apron arrangements, and slashed effects over a narrow foundation are also featured.

It is generous of him to offer to donate half of his all to help Uncle Sammy establish a reformers' colony, but that would only be the the opening wedge for the establishment of a lot of other colonies, and unless several million public-spirited citizens like Worth offered, similar donations, the money would have to be raised by increasing the taxes of the remaining citizens. That would be striking a snag. The people would never consent to stand for more taxation. About that time Worth would find out just how popular he was with the masses for having launched the colony idea as a cure-all for national ills. After the purchase of St. Helena for a reformer's colony, we should have to have a free-lovers' colony, an I. W. W. colony, a colony for various kinds of "reds," or else government would be in the hands of the worst burch of tyrants the world ever knew.

If "Worth" was the daddy of half a dozen boys and girls who all "wanted to follow the natural and lawful desires of youth" he would soon change his mind and whistle a different tune. It is a natural desire to want to throw off all parental restraint, but it isn't a lawful desire. What a pass this world would come to if there were no sensible parents to exercise some restraint over the young. The girl who killed herself had probably been reading just such a lot of twaddle as Worth spouts, and had come to the conclusion that her parents were tyrannical old fogies or, as Worth says, "half petrified old fossils" because they objected to her doing as she pleased. There wouldn't be half so many young people going wrong if there wasn't so many old meddlesome matties to make them believe they should be honored and looked up to when they disobeyed their parents and ordered their livs as they pleased, with all restraint flung to the winds. The blood of that girl rests upon people like Worth.

Instead of inciting young people to further rebellion we need more sensible folks who teach and preach the virtue of obedience and respect to parents. A PARENT.

A Poor Make-up.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl of seventeen and am in bad with my parents most of the time. And why? Just because I want to be modern and do things as the other girls do. I haven't any desire to be fast or silly and stay out until late hours at night. If I did these things they might object with reason. But all they can find to object to is that I dress too old. They raise a storm of protest because I use rouge on my cheeks and you know Minerva I would look like a freak among the girls if I did not. When I bobbed my hair they acted as if the world was coming to an end, and last week when I let one of my girl friends shape my eyebrows a little with the tweezers they — well they simply raised cain. Just little things like that and they act as if I was breaking their hearts.

I am their only child and I think they have too much time to think about me. I don't know of any other parents that carry on like they do over just nothing. I wish you would tell them a little about how a girl has to be modern and up-to-date so they won't feel so badly. I know you approve of bobbed hair and such like CATHERINE.

A. I like bobbed hair but not necessarily the "such like." Bobbed hair makes the girl appear all the more girlish unless she goes in for the mature sort of marcel.

But when it comes to long ear rings and patent leather eye-brows and red paint on the cheeks and a grotesque set of lips painted over the girl's slip of a mouth, then I am saddened indeed and long for the simpler days when girls were content with their faces as they were givn to them and did not attempt to make them into something they are not and should never want to be.

I can't blame your parents for being distressed if you make yourself up to resemble an Apache Indian, as so many of the girls do, even if it is what "all the girls do."

It goes without saying that the girl who adorns herself like a dance-hall vamp does not have her mind on her serious studies and improving her mind and body.

You have only a few years in which to get an education, only a few years in which to be young and carefree. I have every sympathy with the little fads and foibles which school girls like to follow, but no sympathy whatever with them when they want to rig themselves up in an exaggerated make-up and extreme clothes. They look just plain silly and pitiful. You cheapen yourselves and ruin your complexion, all to make yourself look a veritable fright.

I wouldn't worryandfretif hhh h

I wouldn't worry and fret if I were your mother but I would curtail your spending allowance and your freedom just as long as you insisted on having your own way in the matter of spoiling your natural good looks.

QUALITY or PRICE--

Dental services which are cheap in price are cheap in quality.

This is advice given to those whom it might benefit. Stop before you are taken in by cheap advertisers. There is a difference in all material and ways of doing any kind of dental work.

Let me explain between cheap and better material. Come in and investigate and you will see a difference.

Your dollars will go farther and your work last longer if you consult a dentist who is honest.

Silk and Beaded Embroidery Sponsored

Both silk and beaded embroidery on sheer fabrics are featured for semi-formal use, and a great many delicate designs are exploited in the copper and beige shades referred to above, with a preference for monotone arrangement outstanding.

In addition to the Russian embroidery for street wear, several of the dresses shown in redingote interpretation are embroidered in one shade of ribbonzine that matches the satin foundation of the dress.

The tailored mode is the prevailing theme for the fall dress collection shown. Few models deviate simplicity and, in most cases only such decorations as do not detract from the tailored ensemble are introduced.

The silhouette is straight, for the most part, although the circular line is achieved in a number of models by front knee flounces or circular sides. Suggestions of the tunic are important frequently sponsoring slightly circular lines.

The coat dress occupies a prominent position in this group, especially in models designed for larger women. This mode is also endorsed for youthful types, the majority buttoning down one side.

In one severely tailored frock of tan charminette, square buttons reaching from neck to hem are placed directly in front, suggesting a Directoire origin.

Red Oilcloth Trimming

Red oilcloth is used for trimming on a mole coat applied in a novelty pattern designed on the border.

Animal Appliques

Bloomer frocks for children from 6 to 10 years of age are referred to as "the animal lot," appliques of flying birds, parrots, chickens, cats, fishes, ducks, and geese being some shapes belonging to the animal kingdom that are noted. Flower pots, too, which are really pockets, furnish resting places for flourishing bright-flowered plants. These frocks make a point of pockets and if it should happen that they are not on the skirt of the dress itself, they are sure to be found in the panties beneath, and capacious patch pockets they are. Pleats inverted or cunningly introduced give extra width in the skirts of these dresses and it is said here that buyers are showing a definite appreciation of this feature.

One blue checked frock has an inserted appliqued panel of plain blue protected by inverted pleats. Tunic designs are also included in this group, the bottoms of the tunics being emphasized by scalloped piped edges.

Tapering Sleeve Lines

In both cloth street frocks and semi-formal gowns a tapering sleeve line is sponsored, and gauntlet effects in ornamentation are frequent. In the daytime models, Russian embroideries are a colorful touch of trimming, forming panels down the front, or fine bandings in simulated tapestry design which accent the various dress features.

Metal brocaded faille is one of the striking fabric innovations employed by this house. With the maintenance of conservative simplicity the importance of materials is accented, and a gold design bordering a beaver brown faille gives the rich appearance necessary for semi-formal development.

With the increase in support of velvet for evening wraps, brocades and metal effects are proportionately omitted from the program. Metal cloths, either plain or brocaded, enjoy favor as linings more noticeably than as major mediums, appearing in that service in velvet wraps.

Big Mid-Summer Clearance Sale At Gold & Company

Mid-summer is upon us and with it the marvelous clearance sale of ready-to-wear apparel which is to be presented to the public by Gold and Co., beginning Monday morning. The entire third floor stock of the store is to go at drastic reduction. When Gold and Co., advertise a sale, those who know realize that it is worth while. Look for the details on page three.

Black Velvet Dignified

To return to the velvets, there is one dignified model of black velvet, the wrapped around flap of the skirt and the train both being lined with white and a large white velvet rose catching the drapery at one side of the corsage. Trimming consists in loops of composition jet beads swung from either shoulder, those at one side carrying a little velvet bracelet to fasten around the wrist.

While this tea gown features the bateau neckline, the line that is high at the back with a border of fur, and cut low and square at the front, appears in a blue velvet which combines with flame brocaded chiffon.

Colors In Favor

Aside from the all-black group referred to, representing daytime types of sophisticated bearing, color is accorded favor, showing red well to the fore, with brown, tan, gray and green noted repeatedly.

Ostrich makes its winter appearance on velvet wraps, used in several instances in place of fur. A deep border of white ostrich, the latter ranged in a succession of the plumes ranged vertically, is striking on a black velvet evening wrap.

Cottage Cheese A Summer Dish

Too hot to eat! There is nothing that temps your appetite these hot days unless it is Robert's Dairy Cottage cheese, cool, fresh and clean, put up in small glass jars. Cottage cheese salad makes a delightful repast, or cottage chees combined with fresh vegetables for wonderful sandwiches. There are many ways it can be used that will be conducive to a good appetite. Have the man leave it at your door in the morning. A refund of two cents will be made for the return of the jar.

Variety of Models Shown

Coat sweaters are shown with plaid vests in subdued colorings. Slip-on models, however, play the more important part, usually in plain textures. Chiffon alpaca sweaters are trimmed in cretonne appliques with tinsel embroideries.

A washable silk slip-on is featured at this time in underwear knit with ribbed hip-bands, cuffs and boat neck introducing a contrasting color note.

Brilliance is again the keynote of color choice in these lovely velvet evening things, with red outstanding, and royal blue next in favor. Jade green, long a leader in evening wrap developments, appears to be out of the running, the nearest approach to this tone being turquoise or robin's egg blue sponsored for youthful wearers.

Long sleeves in semi-formal gowns and the endorsement of the three-piece costume are two features of outstanding interest in the fall collection. The straight lines which prevail are frequently diversified by tunic and apron arrangements, and slashed effects over a narrow foundation are also featured.

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face. That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you. But increase your red-blood-cells,—and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes venus-like and immaculate! Try it. It will do it every time. S. S. S. builds the red-blood-cells you need for a beautiful complexion. Begin using S. S. S. at once, and give yourself what you have been working for, for years.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine."—Mrs. JOE NOVAK, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.
